Seymour Kemach Swam to Tug

. . . 'now I know I'll live to be 60'

Former Gables Resident Tells Ordeal

He Gave Up But 'God Was Good'

Seymour Kemach, 36, a Brooklyn salesman and former resident of Coral Gables, was a passenger aboard the ill-fated American Airlines Electra that crashed in New York Tuesday night.

Kemach managed the Three Sisters Store in Hollywood and later the Three Sisters shop on Miracle Mile between 1946 and 1951.

He was sitting in the plane's lounge joking with the stewardesses when the plane slammed into the East River. Here is his story:

By SEYMOUR KEMACH

As Told to United Press International

God was good to me. It's the only way I could figure it out.

I wasn't sitting in my seat. I was sitting in the plane's lounge with another guy and two stewardesses. We were talking and joking. I was strapped into my seat.

Then we went down and I thought I was going to die.

How did I get out of the plane? I don't know, but I helped pull out two hostesses and a little boy.

That water was cold. I thought I'd never see my wife again. You don't know. I came close to giving up.

I swam in the water to a tugboat. I swear to God I gave up twice. You just don't know how lucky I was. Now I know I'll live to be 60.

I'm in good shape, only my ankle. But oh my back, my leg, my head. And I'm still freezing. That water—it was cold!

NEW YORK—(AP)—Little Robert Sullivan, 8, was sitting in the seat of the big airliner next to his mommy. Nearby were his father and two sisters.

They had been on a happy excursion to visit relatives in Chicago, as they often did, and were almost back home again.

Then came the nightmare. From a hospital bed later, little Robert told about it in halting phrases as he emerged from the shock of a terrible series of events.

"I was sitting in the seat next to mommy," he said.

"I don't know what happened but all of a sudden I began to slide and we went under the seat.

"Then I was on something in the water.

"Mommy was holding me.

"Then in the water we couldn't stay up.

"I tried to hold my breath. I was cold. My arms felt frozen."

Little Robert could speak no further. But somehow he knew of the tragedy that had befallen him.

Robert and his mother were rescued from the icy waters and rushed to the hospital. His mother died in the hospital.

His father, Joseph, and sisters, Patricia, 13, and Joan, 5, were listed among those missing as searchers continued to scour the waters of the East River for bodies.

Drop Inspection Demand

Reds Back Down, Let Trucks Pass

HELMSTEDT, Germany — (UPI) — The Russians backed down during cold-war maneuvering Wednesday night and released an American truck convoy held within a stone's throw of the West German frontier since Monday.

The five GIs manning the four trucks quickly gunned the vehicles past the border checkpoints into the West to end 56 cold hours of detention in East Germany.

They were not allowed to talk to waiting newsmen.

Soviet border guards freed the trucks finally after a meeting between State Department official Findlay Burns and Col. H. F. Markushin, of the Russian army. Burns said the Soviets had dropped their original demand to inspect the trucks' cargoes, but he did not elaborate.

Russian troopers carrying machineguns stopped the trucks Monday afternoon within 50 yards of the U. S. Army's border station here. The troopers insisted the open vehicles had to be searched.

Cpl. Richard C. Masiero, of West Stockbridge, Mass., who was in charge of the convoy during a 110-mile trip through East Germany from West Berlin to the frontier, replied that the trucks contained only jeeps. He refused to allow a search.

The border incident triggered a flurry of cold-war maneuvering highlighted Wednesday by Burns' frontier conference and a State Department protest to Moscow which demanded the release of the trucks and men.

American officials regarded the Russian action as an attempt to embarrass the West by a token cut-off of the land route to West Berlin within shouting distance of the West's heavily - guarded frontier.

Those in the trucks besides Masiero were Drivers Pfc. Benjamin G. Peoples, 20, of Theodore, Ala.; Specialist Robert E. Love, 20, of Plain City, Ohio; Specialist Elwood F. Johnson, 29, of Brooklyn and Specialist James E. Cook, 22, of Hardeeville, S.C.

Reds Step Near Brink -Kennan

WASHINGTON — (AP) — George F. Kennan, former ambassador to Moscow, voiced belief Wednesday Soviet leaders are prepared to play close to the edge of war to gain their objectives in Berlin.

"I do not think the Soviet leaders want war over Berlin," he told the Senate foreign relations disarmament subcommittee.

KENNAN

But, he said, in current efforts to force Western troop withdrawals and a free Berlin, Soviet leaders are prepared, for reasons not fully apparent, "to play particularly close to the edge.

"They have committed themselves extensively," Kennan continued, "and it would not be wise for the Western governments to take the matter too lightly."

Kennan also told the committee:

"I do not believe the Soviet leaders want another war, or would be likely to inaugurate one by surprise attack just because they felt they had a temporary advantage in long-range striking power."

"But I don't recommend that we do anything unilaterally," he said.

He told the committee he believes the Kremlin's chief concern in Central Europe is to separate German armed power from that of America.

He said a Germany that was neutralized, but allowed to maintain sufficient armed forces for its own defense, could have a democratically elected government safe against Communist political threat.

Burst Blood Vessel in Eye

Bob Hope Can't Be Here But Big Show Goes on

HOPE

"This is the first time in 25 years that I have had to renege on a promise to do a benefit," the veteran funnyman told officials here in a telephone call from Hollywood.

He said his doctors told him that the pressure from the high altitude plane trip to Miami might cost him the sight in his left eye. He was putting compresses on the eye Wednesday.

But even without Hope — who predicted the show will still draw a "packed house"— Jack Benny and dozens of big-name film, stage and television stars are here for the program. See story on Page 5C.

Dulles Approves Visit to Russia

LONDON — (AP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles Wednesday night gave U.S. approval to a plan of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to fly to Moscow for talks with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, reliable sources said.

The secretary was reported to have told Macmillan in a two-hour conference that the projected trip had the approval of both Dulles and President Eisenhower.

It was indicated that Macmillan had made clear to Dulles that he does not intend to engage in any private negotiations with the Russian leader.

Macmillan is to speak in the House of Commons today, and it is believed he will announce his plans to fly to Moscow — perhaps as early as Feb. 20 — for talks with Khrushchev on easing of East-West tensions.

Macmillan was believed to have deferred his final decision until he discussed it with Dulles.

Members of Parliament on both sides of the fence think Macmillan will make a personal bid in Moscow to ease tensions between East and West.

Shortly after his arrival in London, Dulles talked for two hours with Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd. They agreed that any East-West foreign ministers conference must take in reunifying Germany — not just the status of Berlin.

Informants said Dulles and Lloyd worked out what they thought should be on the agenda of such a meeting, which may be held before May 27, the date Russia has said it will turn over to East Germany its occupation duties in Berlin.

Store Marquee Falls, Kills 2

QUEBEC — (AP) — The collapse of a store marquee killed two persons Wednesday and injured more than a score.

The marquee, of reinforced concrete, was almost 15 feet wide and 300 feet long. It extended along the front of the Maurice Pollack department store. L-shaped steel braces held it to the building. It apparently gave way under the weight of snow and decorations erected for Quebec's winter carnival.

Congress Rejects Cut In Housing

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Both the House and the Senate Wednesday turned back Republican efforts to hold the line on housing.

The Senate rejected a Republican substitute aimed at cutting a $2,925,000,000 Democratic housing bill back to levels favored by President Eisenhower.

Before it adjourned overnight, however, the Senate agreed by voice vote to cut in half a 300-million-dollar provision for direct home loans to veterans. Democratic backers of the bill agreed to the change, which had the effect of cutting the total authorization to $2,775,000,000.

The Senate also beat down, 50-37, a Republican move to knock out of the bill provision for 51,000 low-rent, public housing units.

Only a little earlier, the House voted 310-89 for a 300-million-dollar GI home loan bill over protests from Republicans that "budget busters are on the move."

Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana led the House protest, trying to help Eisenhower in his fight against any move that might upset the 77-billion-dollar budget he has submitted.

The substitute the Senate turned down was offered by Sen. Homer Capehart (R., Ind.), who posed the question: "Do we or do we not wish a balanced budget?"

The Senate rejected Capehart's proposal 58-32.

Capehart estimated the spending in the Democratic bill would exceed President Eisenhower's budget estimates by 240 million dollars in the year beginning next July 1.

The Democratic bill compares with $1,800,000,000 in Capehart's substitute, which was revised slightly upward when the Indiana Republican offered it Wednesday.

The big issue, however, centered around proposed spending in the fiscal year starting next July 1. All the programs extend over several years.

Eisenhower said at his news conference Wednesday, in comment on the Democratic bill: "This means that right off in the very first bill the budget is to be unbalanced."

CAB Says Strip Had No Lights; Only 8 Survive

NEW YORK — (UPI) — An American Airlines prop-jet Electra which plunged into the East River killing 65 persons was trying to land on a runway lacking adequate instrument devices and without runway approach lights, it was revealed Wednesday night.

The new two-million-dollar Lockheed airliner, equipped with every safety factor, crashed shortly before Monday midnight in fog and drizzle less than 30 seconds short of a LaGuardia runway on a nonstop flight from Chicago.

There were 73 aboard. Nine survivors were fished from the icy water with boathooks by a tugboat crew. One of the survivors, a woman, died later.

Twenty-two bodies had been recovered and 43 still were missing when salvage operations were suspended Wednesday night.

Joseph Fluet, chief regional investigator for the Civil Aeronautics Board, revealed that the runway had instrument equipment advising the pilot on his direction but not whether he was coming in too high or low over the water for a landing.

"The aircraft was being tracked on the radarscope, and the plane was being vectored, that is being brought into position for its final approach, in a normal instrument landing system procedure," Fluet said.

Fluet declined to say why Runway 22 did not have the glide slope feature. He said that was not within his province. It was understood LaGuardia had been planning to install the device on the runway very shortly.

Capt. Albert H. Dewitt, of Decatur, Mich., the 59-year-old pilot with 30 years experience and one of the first to qualify on jet-prop planes, was killed. American had inagurated the Electra service only 12 days ago.

Investigators of the new Federal Aviation Agency revealed that the runway toward which Dewitt was headed was not equipped with instruments to inform the pilot whether his glide path approach was too high or too low.

There was a ceiling of 400 feet and visibility of two miles as the Electra approached Runway 22, known as the "back course." It had an instrument landing system which automatically radios the plane if it is coming in the proper direction.

But, investigators said, that runway does not have the second beam advising the plane of its altitude and distance from the runway. LaGuardia is equipped with radar. It was not known whether Dewitt asked the control tower to advise whether his approach was all right on the radar scopes.

A DC3 had landed on the same runway just a few minutes before. The Electra made its last radio contact at 11:54 p.m. when it received landing permission. It crashed at 11:57 p.m. less than a mile from the field, traveling at 135 miles an hour.

Lack of automatic guidance on his glide path descent plus the chance of human failure of visual depth perception in coming down over water were possible explanation of the disaster. The CAB made it clear,

He Blasts Pending Legislation

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower threw the gage of battle to Congress Wednesday, before flying to Georgia to cope with the quail.

Eisenhower took the unusual step of offering hostile comment on legislation not yet presented to him for his signature by the "spenders" of the Democratic 86th Congress.

The President's attitude made it clear that he intends to slug it out with the Democrats as the defender of an already shrunken dollar.

Eisenhower's vigorous and unsolicited criticism of two pending congressional proposals, offered at his press conference, was almost like a promotion ad for the television appearances the President plans to make this winter in his fight to hold the line against federal spending and inflation.

The President hoped a week ago that somebody at his press conference would ask his views about the airport construction bill, a 575-million-dollar tid-bit now in preparation by the Democratic majority.

But nobody raised the question last week and Eisenhower didn't wait Wednesday. He opened his seance with the reporters with a blast not only at the airport construction bill, but at the housing bill now going through the legislative machinery.

"If we are going to ask for these new expenditures," he said, "why doesn't each one of these bills include a measure for increasing taxes?

"That would be the straightforward, honest way to see whether the U.S. really wants this kind of thing." The President declined to say whether he would use his veto power in this fight with the "spenders," but there is no doubt that he intends to veto at least the airport construction bill as it is now shaping up.

The housing bill now before Congress contemplates spending $1,300,000,000 more than the President has recommended.

The airport construction bill, which the President regards as classic of pork-barrel legislation, would spend $375,000,000 more than the White House, the Budget Bureau, and the Federal Aviation Agency regard as prudent.

And Eisenhower made it very clear that he thinks that members of Congress are fakers when they come up with big spending measures and make no provision for taxes to meet the costs.

"I don't believe we should have higher taxes, and I do not believe the U.S. wants higher taxes," the President said.

Heap Big Pipe Dream

Indians May 'Sell' Dakota to Russia

MINNEAPOLIS — (UPI) — An Indian leader threatened Wednesday night to sell a third of the state of North Dakota to Soviet Russia.

Al La Fontaine, a Sioux who speaks for a group of Chippewas as head of the Indian Trades Council here, said he will ask the Russians for bids if the U.S. government refuses to help his people.

Nine million acres of North Dakota is at the Indians' — and the Russians' — disposal, La Fontaine said. The land was never legally turned over to the U.S. government, he said.

He plans to lead a delegation of Indians to Washington Saturday to demand government aid in "putting industries on the reservations." He hoped to take the speaker's rostrum in both the House and Senate to plead his case.

If he doesn't get satisfaction, La Fontaine said, he and the other Indians from Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana will drop around at the Soviet embassy.

La Fontaine started the ball rolling Tuesday by telephoning the Russian embassy and asking for a five-million-dollar loan to help the Indians. He said the Russians sounded receptive, but he had since changed his plans.

"When I get to Washington, I'm going to file a claim under a special claims commission for the nine million acres in North Dakota," he said. "These fellows think it's a joke, but I'm not fooling."

If that does no good, La Fontaine said, he will offer to sell nine million acres of oil-rich land in north-central North Dakota to the Russians.

"I'm not going to the Russians to beg," the Indian said.

La Fontaine and five other members of the Turtle Mountain Tribal Council will pile into an old-model car Saturday and head for Washington, he said.

Navy Eyes Mixup in Crash Dead

GAFFNEY, S.C.—(AP)—A mixup of bodies of three seamen killed in an auto accident at Pensacola, Fla., was laid before Navy authorities Wednesday by the distraught parents of one of the men.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Brunson Phillips of Gaffney said the body which arrived here from Pensacola was not that of their son, Jerry Robert Driskill, 23, reported killed in the wreck along with two Navy enlisted men from Wisconsin.

Young Driskill was riding with Seamen Donald L. Tullis, 19, of Racine, Wis., and Lawrence H. Geis, 22, of Milwaukee, when their auto collided with a truck. Their identities were established by the Pensacola Naval Air Station, where the three were stationed.

The body purported to be that of young Driskill arrived at the Schuford-Hatcher Funeral Home here Wednesday and funeral services were set for today.

However, when Phillips — Driskill's stepfather — viewed the body at the funeral home, he said the body was not that of his stepson.

Navy authorities checked on identification marks and reported these did not match those of Driskill.

Young Driskill, son of Mrs. Phillips by a previous marriage, enlisted in the Navy in 1955 and was due for discharge next month.

Producer Of 'Kukla' On Airliner

CHICAGO — (AP) — Miss Beulah Zachary, television pioneer who produced the show, "Kukla, Fran and Ollie," for 10 years, was bound for New York Tuesday night in a renewed effort to bring the show to live audiences.

She was listed Wednesday among the missing and presumed dead in the crash of an American Airlines plane.

Miss Zachary, who advanced from the role of studio hand to producer-director within three years after joining Station WBKB in Chicago in 1944, was personal manager and adviser to Burr Tillstrom, creater of the show.

Kukla and Ollie were a pair of puppet people. Their antics with Fran Allison delighted oldsters as well as the young before the show was dropped by the American Broadcasting Co. in 1957.

Tillstrom was the voice and life to Kukla, Ollie and several other "Kuklapolitans."

Ike's Plane Runs Into Storm

VALDOSTA, Ga. — (UPI) — A heavy rain and thunderstorm pummelled President Eisenhower's plane bringing the chief executive to a South Georgia vacation retreat Wednesday, forcing it to fly to an alternate field for a landing by instruments and radar. It landed safely at 4:18 p.m. at Valdosta.

A line squall from a Gulf of Mexico storm system raked the Valdosta-Moultrie area just as the presidential plane Columbine arrived for a scheduled landing at Spence Air Base, Moultrie, then flew on to Valdosta. The landing was delayed more than an hour because of the bad weather.

however, that it had reached no conclusion as to the cause of the crash.

"As of 6 p.m. tonight, the Civil Aeronautics Board Investigation of the American Airlines Electra accident near LaGuardia Field had revealed no facts indicating the cause of the crash," Edward E. Flattery, CAB information officer said.

Meanwhile, in Washington the House Commerce Committee announced it would look into the crash. Chairman Oren Harris (D., Ark.) called on the new Federal Aviation Agency to report on the accident at a closed committee session Friday.

The sleek four-engine liner smashed into the East River with a blast of noise that a tugboat captain said "sounded like dynamite." There was no flash of light nor any fire in the crash of the kerosene-fueled turbo-jet.

The tug H. Thomas Teti, towing two barges, was only a little more than 200 yards away. It cut loose the barges, opened full speed and rushed toward a fuselage and wing picked up in its spotlight.

The crew of eight lined the rail and pulled the living from the icy water with boathooks. Among them were Mrs. Lorraine Sullivan, 40, and her son, Robert, eight. The boy lived. Mrs. Sullivan died five hours later. The father, Joseph, and two daughters, Patricia, 13, and Joan, five, also perished. They were from Hempstead, N.Y.

Among the others killed was Beulah Zachary, Chicago TV producer of the Kukla, Fran and Ollie show.

Three of the five-member crew survived. Co-pilot Frank Hlavacek, 33, Wilmette, Ill., is in critical condition as is Joan Zeller, 21, Riverside, N. Y., a stewardess who began flying six months ago because "it is so thrilling." Warren E. Cook, 36, flight engineer from Aurora, Ill., is in poor condition.

Seymour Kemach, 36, a salesman from Brooklyn, pulled the Sullivan boy and the two stewardesses from the wreckage and suffered only a broken leg himself. Mae Markides, Rochester, N.Y., the other stewardess, died.

Also killed was Richard Winn of Norwalk, Conn., an American Airline executive appointed Feb. 1 to head the airline's jet research, development and planning.

Capt. Samuel Nickerson, 57, Rockland, Mass., captain of the tug Teti, said he didn't know at first what had happened when he heard the tremendous blast.

"We turned on our search light and the beam picked up wreckage floating in mud and water about 700 feet off our bow," he said.

Co-Capt. Everett Phelps, 48, Arlington, Vt., said the crew fished out the living with boathooks. They didn't bother with the dead, he said.

"Three people were perched on the fuselage," Phelps continued. "We hauled them aboard. As we did so, a hand poked through a door in the wreckage. The man inside called for help.

"Crewmen yanked on the door with hooks but couldn't get it open. Then the fuselage section pulled away from the hooks. The man's hand disappeared."

Conductor Offers to Adopt Boy

Fabien Sevitzky, internationally known musician and guest conductor this season with the University of Miami Symphony, said Wednesday he wants to adopt the eight-year-old boy left without a family in New York's plane crash.

"I read about him in the paper and I want very much to have the boy if the authorities will let me," said the 65-year-old, Russian-born conductor.

The boy is Robert Sullivan, of Hempstead, N.Y. The boy and his mother were pulled from the icy water after the American Airlines plane crashed into New York's East River, killing 65 persons.

But the mother died in a hospital and his father and two sisters were killed in the crash.

Sevitzky said he will be in New York in about two weeks and will ask authorities there about adopting the boy. Sevitzky said he is divorced, but may re-marry.

He lives at La Grange, Ind., when not on tour as a guest conductor.

Miamian's Brother Missing in Crash

Among those missing in the American Airlines crash in New York's East River was the brother of Mrs. Earl E. Brehmer, of 4111 NW Sixth St.

Her brother, Ray Gulley, of Kewanee, Ill., was presumed dead.

Group Seeks To Impeach High Court

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A group of some two dozen men and women Wednesday filed at the House clerk's office a petition to impeach the Supreme Court.

Mrs. Opal Tanner White, spokesman for the group, said the petition was 1,500 feet in length and carried names from all over the nation.

The petition itself contained foot-long pages headed "Impeach Warren." They were glued together and rolled on three rollers; on each page were instructions to mail the petition, when completed, to the Christian Nationalist Crusade, P.O. Box 27895, Los Angeles 27, Calif.

Mrs. White described herself as chairman of the special committee to impeach the Supreme Court and said her group worked with individuals and many organization to circulate the petition.

National Summary

A disturbance moving across the north central states spread snow over the upper Mississippi Valley and cold north winds behind the system carried snow from the Dakotas into Nebraska while temperatures were again below zero along the North Dakota, Minnesota border at noon Wednesday.

Cooler weather in the Pacific Northwest and a trend to colder from the northern and central Rockies into New England will include overnight temperatures as low as 20 to 30 below zero in parts of Minnesota.

Except for a few showers in Washington State and snow flurries in the northern mountains of California, dry weather should prevail over most of the Pacific states and plateau regions while snow or flurries will be scattered from the Rockies into portions of the western plains.

Rains over the southeast should give way to partly cloudy skies on Thursday but with a few showers lingering in Southern Florida.

A pattern of snow from Missouri into New England with flurries southward into the mountains of North Carolina during the night is expected to spread one to three inches of new snow across portions of the southern Great Lakes diminishing to flurries.

Gerstein Asks Public To Help Ethics Probe

State Attorney Richard E. Gerstein asked the public Wednesday for "any information" which might assist a special 15-man investigating commission probing unethical professional practices of attorneys and doctors in Dade County.

But Gerstein declined to say what progress the commission has made since it was created by Circuit Court in December. The investigators have been hearing witnesses in closed sessions.

Gerstein announced that Downey Rice, prominent Washington attorney and one time investigator for Sen. Estes Kefauver, has been hired as special consultant in the current investigations.

Suit Asks End To Deadlock

Dade Port Attorney James Eckhart filed suit Wednesday to end a deadlock between two airlines and some 15 members of Local 725 of the Steamfitters Union which has halted completion of the new airport terminal.

3rd Jet Pilot Held Unneeded

A flying executive of National Airlines — which has yet to tangle with its pilots over the "third man" issue — said Wednesday experience proves a third pilot is not needed in new jet airliners.

But even as NAL vice president Lew W. Dymond spoke, Pan American World Airways — from whom National leases Boeing 707 jets for its New York-Miami run — signed a contract with its pilots providing for an extra pilot in jets.

The Air Line Pilots Association has demanded a third pilot in jets. Eastern Air Lines, American and Pan American have given in to the demand.

But Dymond, speaking before the Greater Miami Aviation Association, said seven weeks of operating the 707 prove regular crews can handle its operations.

In fact, he said, cockpit operations in jets are not much different from prop-driven planes.

Dymond said he could foresee no future needs for a third pilot.

National has yet to bargain with the ALPA over the third man issue, which tossed Eastern into a costly 38-day strike.

Dymond did not say what NAL would do when contract talks come up in 1960 with the ALPA, which is expected to demand assignment of an extra pilot.

Giblin Files Second Suit

Circuit Judge Vincent C. Giblin asked a fellow judge Wednesday to declare that he is immune from arrest on a civil matter while en route to court.

The suit, to be heard by Circuit Judge John W. Prunty, is the second filed by Giblin in his dispute with the Coral Gables police department over his arrest for interfering with an officer who was ticketing Mrs. Giblin on a traffic charge.

Metro Sergeant Given New Post

Leon B. McKim, Metro Juvenile Division sergeant, was appointed Wednesday as chief of the Prevention Division of the Public Safety Dept.

McKim, who has served with the Juvenile Division since March of 1955, succeeds George E. Leppig, recently named chief of the Metro Road Patrol.

The Prevention Division of the Public Safety Dept. directs safety education, youth aid, fire inspections and car inspections, and animal control.

Nominees Bring Balk

County commissioners have declined to appoint county representatives to a City of Miami Transportation Advisory Board.

The problem, they agreed, is not a joint one with Miami only, but a county-wide problem.

They made it plain, however, that they will cooperate with the city's advisory board through the county's own Citizens Planning and Advisory Board.

The city commission had appointed Edward Fishbein, Thomas Reese, John B. Turner and Richard Swann as its members and invited the county to name three and Coral Gables and Miami Beach two each.

Club Elects, Plans Dance

Abraham Canter has been elected president of the Union County New Jersey Club of Florida. Other officers are William Neuman, Mrs. Lena Drittel and Herman Spitalny, vice presidents; Morris Cohen, treasurer; Mrs. Lillian Cohn, Mrs. Ruth Atlas and Mrs. Nettie Eisenstein, secretaries.

Dr. Jack B. Rosenthal and Aaron Eisenstein are honorary presidents. The club will have a dinner dance for Union Countians in Miami Feb. 15 at the Deauville Hotel. For reservations Call Lillian Cohn, JE 1-0888.

UM Names 2 Trustees

Two new University of Miami trustees have been elected and the resignation of a third accepted.

Emile L. Cotton, real estate operator, and Judge Mallory H. Horton, of the District Court of Appeals, were elected to the board at its annual meeting.

Cotton was elected for a three-year term and Horton, who succeeds Judge Ray H. Pearson as alumni representative, will serve for one year.

Mrs. Polly Davis resigned, explaining she was leaving the board for business reasons.

Goodwill Cuba Visit Eyed

Plans were made Wednesday to send some 350 Dade County school youngsters, as well as top county officials, on a goodwill trip to Havana at the expense of the Cuban government.

The Dade school board agreed to give youths who would make the trip two days off. The board acted on a letter from Robert D. Hoehen of the public safety department's prevention division recommending that the youths be allowed time off.

Public Safety Director Thomas J. Kelly said, meanwhile, that the trip is not definite, but that tentative plans call for the goodwill group to be in Havana on the weekend of either Feb. 14 or 21 to take part in a parade honoring the new government set up by Fidel Castro.

Invitations to make the trip are being readied for the Harvey Seeds Drum and Bugle Corps and the Crusader Boys Drum and Bugle Corps, the Miami High and Hialeah High School bands, and the Safety Department's motorcycle drill team.

Also making the trip would be Kelly, County Manager O. W. Campbell, County Commission Chairman Walter Weiss, and other county officials.

"If the trip becomes a reality, it ill give the young people of this country a chance to know the young people of Cuba," Kelly said.

Ex-Cons Get More Cash

CHEYENNE, Wyo. — (AP) — The Wyoming House of Representatives approved a bill increasing from $15 to $35 the cash given a man on his release from the state penitentiary.

Rep. Oscar Hall (D., Carbon) attributed the need for the bill to "the higher cost of leaving."

Miami's Printers Excluded?

They've Given Up Bidding State Jobs

By JOHN BOYLES
Of Our Capitol Bureau

TALLAHASSEE—The president of the Printing Industry of Greater Miami said Wednesday South Florida printers feel that bids on state jobs are "designed to keep Miami printers out."

Carl Westman, head of the Miami Post Publishing Co., said that although Greater Miami printers have no trouble getting on invitation lists to bid on state printing jobs, "we've gotten discouraged over the years and sort of gotten out of the habit of bidding."

Westman also disclosed that the Printing Industry of Greater Miami has asked a Miami firm owned by Charles Rosenberg of Tallahassee, involved in a controversy over the amount of state business given his firm, to resign from membership.

"The action was taken because of adverse publicity involving the Printing Industry of Florida, which Mr. Rosenberg represents as a lobbyist and which we felt would reflect on our organization," Westman said.

Rosenberg's Miami firm is the Publisher's Press. The controversy centers around his Rose Printing Co. of Tallahassee, which gets the bulk of state printing business.

Meanwhile, Gov. LeRoy Collins' chief administrative assistant, William Durden, said that Rosenberg had complained to him that he "wasn't getting enough business" from state agencies under the jurisdiction of the governor.

Durden said the incident took place about six months ago and that Rosenberg "didn't say or do anything improper," but that since then the sales manager for Rosenberg's firm had brought up the subject "four or five times."

At the same time, Dade County Rep. Cliff Herrell, chairman of the powerful Legislative Council and of the House Appropriations Committee, said he would join with Rep. John Mathews of Jacksonville in asking the Legislature to investigate printing practices.

Westman said the Dade-Broward Printers' Association also had voted to support the central purchasing plan.

Westman said that the 80 members of the Printing Industry of Greater Miami do about 80 per cent of the dollar volume of business in the Dade-Broward area, but that the organization does not employ a lobbyist at the Legislature because it would be "a waste of time."

But he said that "Miami firms probably have the biggest collection of printing equipment south of Nashville and we would be happy to get some of the state business."

He said, however, that some of his members had been told in the past that a state agency had to have a job delivered "in two or three weeks when any printer would know it was a six to eight-week job."

Rosenberg was traveling over the state and could not be reached.

For Florida. So Far It's Promising

Another Budget In Balance

FLORIDA'S new budget looks good—on paper. The cabinet budget commission has whacked off about $133 million from the asking figures of the various state departments, agencies and institutions for the next two years—a respectable amount of excess fat—and left the bill for the taxpayers at $726 million.

Though the figure represents a hefty cut, state operations will not be, under this proposed figure, on a penny-pinching basis. Actually the total is $104 million more than is being spent in the current two-year period. It is a respectable increase, in keeping with steady growth.

But the main reason for applause is that the cabinet's budget is substantially balanced. Comptroller General Ray E. Green estimated income at $716 million which he insits is conservative. "But it is better to have a surplus than a deficit," he says, and that is something with which all Floridians will agree.

AS the Senate Appropriations Committee begins hearings in Tallahassee this week the overriding question is: what will happen to the reasonable and balanced budget as it emerges from the cabinet?

The real test is yet to come. The Senate and House appropriations committees, and every individual lawmaker, will be subjected to terrific pressure from now on to put back some or all of the amounts trimmed by the budget makers.

For instance, the welfare department was cut $18 million. Imagine the cries from the individuals back home who must wait to get on the relief rolls! The general operating fund for schools was cut $3.7 million and the free text book fund was sliced $2.5 million. Already the protests are coming in from school officials at both the state and county level.

WILL the legislators be able to hold the line? No—if we go by past performance. Last time the budget commission recommended $560 million and the Legislature wound up appropriating about $617 million, plus special grants that pushed the total to $701 million. And this was not the exception but the rule.

However, there has been more economy talk in Tallahassee this year than ever before. Most legislators, and certainly the leadership of both houses, have pledged no new taxes. They must keep within the budget as now proposed if they intend to honor that pledge. Fiscal experts have made it plain that any additional grants mean new taxes.

Florida's tax structure is such that consumers carry a heavier share of the burden than in any other state. It is designed that way to collect part of the cost of government from our tourist visitors. But permanent residents can howl pretty loud when taxes go up—and they are the only ones who vote.

The pre-session considerations this week put the Legislature on the path that ends next June with final passage of the appropriations bill. Predictions are that the economy line will be held, despite past experience. Let's hope they come true.

Let's Get On With The Job

IT HAS been no real secret that Metro's progress has been slowed by the arms-length attitudes of the Metro commissioners and Manager O. W. Campbell.

But for those whose eyes were closed to this situation, it is good that it has been brought out into the open.

We cannot agree with Mr. Campbell's reasoning that he shouldn't submit ideas for Metro's development because of division within the commission. Nor can we agree with commissioners who merely sit back and criticize without having suggestions of their own.

The manager should be planning now for the present and the future of Metro and the community it embraces. So should the commissioners. They should be making decisions and the manager should be implementing them.

There's so much to be done. Let's get on with it, gentlemen.

'Parent-Option' For Florida?

"PARENT-OPTION," a plan devised by State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey and Attorney General Richard W. Ervin, seems to carry with it also the option of free public applause and criticism.

Critics have been quick to seize upon what they regard as errors in its construction. The very auspices under which the plan was presented—by two thoughtful and knowledgeable state officials—vest it automatically with much merit.

What is it, and how would it work?

Briefly stated, the plan would permit payments of public funds for private education to parents of Florida children who do not wish their children to go to legally-integrated schools.

This is the "option." It is designed to "preserve the principle of segregation" yet guarantee "the maintenance of free public schools." Admittedly, it is "complicated" and its "legal problems are intricate." However, again in the words of the authors, "it will keep our public schools open (and) where the parents desire it, it will provide a method for their children to continue to attend a segregated school."

WOULD IT, in reality, do all these things?

Any such expectation, as we see it, should be regarded with caution. The private tuition approach, which is the guiding principle, has been proposed in several states but has not been put in practice.

Perhaps the reason is that the courts have been most strict in their construction of what is "private" and what is "public."

For example, in Pennsylvania's Girard College (a prep school) case, the U.S. Supreme Court held that this private school could not practice segregation because the board of trustees included a member or members of Philadelphia's city governing board. Thus the merest public supervisory or contributory contact with a private institution seems to give it a public character.

Many other questions occur. Would the average payment of $240 a year support the cost of education in a private school? Most private schools charge much more, for in a sense they must be operated at a profit.

What about teacher tenure and pensions? School books and supplies? Recreational programs? And buildings themselves?

Some of these questions are dealt with ably but only in generalities in the Bailey-Ervin plan.

TWO thoughts may strike the reader as pertinent to the issue.

Accepting the premise that courts cannot be resisted in the long run, this plan and others simply "buy time" as a necessary political expedient.

Second, any such plan must rest on a pupil assignment law. Florida has one. It has yet to be implemented anywhere, and until it is, additional devices to preserve segregation in principle though not wholly in practice may only tend to confound an already confused matter.

Castro's 'Goals' Raise An Eyebrow

FIDEL CASTRO has announced his revolutionary program for the island republic he indisputably rules. The goals he has set for the new regime in free Cuba are nationalistic and to some extent, we regret to note, anti-United States.

Certainly there is a deep and underlying sympathy on the part of North Americans for this visionary leader which even the super-public trials and executions of Batista men could not destroy.

But two key points in his program will ruffle feelings in the United States. One is Senor Castro's decision to set up a Latin-American news agency. Its purpose, he says, is "to end once and for all the falsehoods of many foreign agencies which serve the interests of capital extracted from the entrails of the people." Would such an agency distribute hard "news" or just peddle propaganda?

He also wants a "total reform" of the tariff structure. Since the United States is Cuba's chief customer and in return sells her more goods than any other nation under a preferential tariff agreement, such a shift in an arrangement highly beneficial to Cuba lacks economic logic.

It's obvious Cuban-American relations are not entirely cordial. Some of the blame may lie with us. Now is the time to smooth things out as Cuba faces the long and hard pull. Though Senor Castro's charge that Cuba in the recent and unhappy past has been "ruled by U.S. ambassadors" has raised problems for our new ambassador to Havana, that diplomat should set out promptly to emphasize our good will and intention to help the new Cuba live in freedom and prosperity.

Of Antiquity's Scarcest Items

At least, that was the discovery of Mr. and Mrs. William Langley, who scoured museums in Europe for articles to be exhibited during Pensacola's observance of Florida's Quadricentennial, starting this year.

They found weapons galore — swords, armor, cannon, even bell-mouthed blunderbusses. Naval hardware was plentiful, including compasses, astrolabes, navigation lights and spy glasses.

"One problem we encountered was in the shortage of household and domestic items," Mrs. Langley remarked. "Apparently the Spanish housewives of the era had very few tools to work with and as a result there are hardly any, either original or in copy form, still available."

Posterity may form the same judgment, however ill-founded, of today's housewives. It won't be because they lack household gadgets, goodness knows.

Few women hang onto worn out cooking utensils, mops, brooms, pillow cases or even large appliances — fortunately. Otherwise, many a household would be overcrowded with old-fashioned ice boxes, sewing machines, clothes wringers, vacuum cleaners and so on.

They are the antiques of the future, but hardly anyone would bother preserving them. The investment for storage probably wouldn't pay off for a long time — say, a century or two.

No, we just don't see any end to Mrs. Langley's plaint: Where are the pots of yesteryear?

Exam Foreign To Physics 105

Editor The Herald: As an evening student at the University of Miami last semester, I appreciate your interest in our recent tragedy concerning the physics final examinations.

Your article, "Billy Zame Outscores UM Students," was not quite fair to the hard-working, sincere students who failed physics.

Billy is without a doubt an outstanding student among outstanding students. Adeptness with a slide rule in high school is rare, especially for a 13-year-old, don't you agree.

Billy probably has been studying math all semester and was warmed up and ready to go for the placement test. Russ Garnett, Oscar New and I had been far removed from mathematics last summer. We were given placement tests without warning on our first night of class. Familiar formulas and procedures had become vague during the summer months. We were cold on math and resulting mental blocks caused low placement scores. Given the same test today, we would all show much improvement.

I am sure that Billy could have done as well as many of us on the physics final. The Physics 105 course as taught was scarcely related to the Physics 105 final exam.

Just for the record, I passed the course. I'm not bitter.

Department Tops

Editor The Herald: There is a great injustice being done by a bunch of students at the University that do not deserve to be there. The Physics department at the U. of M. is one of the few good departments in the school's entire technical program.

Those students who are griping about the physics teachers should think about what they are supposed to learn in the physics courses.

I have taken both courses in dispute. The first, 105, I had one of the two A's in the course where 18 out of 28 failed.

The other course, 220, about 60 per cent failed in two classes. I made a C and didn't work as hard as I should have.

The problem is neither the teaching nor is it the grading system. The problem lies with the students.

Sure, the physics department can be replaced by unqualified men and a much higher percentage of the students could be pushed through. But these are not the engineers and physicists I want to work with and depend upon.

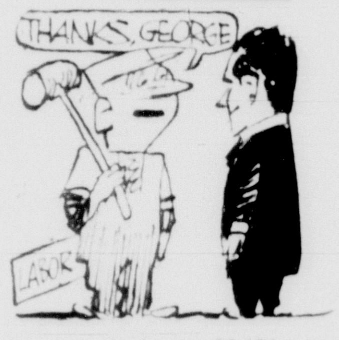
Young Oldsters Would Benefit

Editor The Herald: Sen. George Smathers proposes to try to change maximum earnings of Social Security workers from $1,200 to $2,400. Beneficiaries will be allowed to earn as much as $2,400 per year without losing their old age benefits.



I am sure that labor as a group will heartily endorse this change, for the $1,200 limit has worked a hardship on men 55 to 65 years of age who have to compete with slightly older men who cannot accept over $1,200 a year salaries. I am sure that the statesmen who gave us this wonderful insurance never contemplated that it could work a hardship on younger men near the retirement age.

Tutor Circular Gets Her Goat

Editor The Herald: This is the first time I've gotten really angry about the Dade County school system.

Today we received a "door-knob" circular from the Dade County Tutoring Association, Inc. stating that for $1 for each half hour lesson, they will "build a fire under" the lax (but college prospect) students and that "then" they "will be able to go ahead on their own volition."

Fine, but why do parents, who are already paying taxes to "build" that fire, also have to pay a tutoring fee in order that their children have the education and the interest in education, due them?

Although the association is not associated with the school system, it puts a big black mark against the schools in this area, advertising that even with modern teaching methods and PTA, the schools can't hold a student's interest for any length of time.

More parents should not only ask "why" but do something more constructive about it.

Good Will Project For Our Students

By JOHN PENNEKAMP

EVERY WEEK or so I get a quaintly worded letter laboriously written by some Japanese student, and it leaves me frustrated.

Example:

"Please excuse to trouble your worthful time —

"At present Japan is isolated island in Far East, especially since last Great War, but young generation are trying to do everything to regain friendship based on deep understanding."

Pennekamp

The writer wants to open a correspondence with some young American. Thousands of these letters must find their way to the United States.

Jack Bell and Jack Kofoed are others who receive them.

I am sure that there are students in our schools who would like to take on the work, if the teachers of social philosophy and such encourage it.

Or, it could be a worthwhile project for the junior service clubs, which are surviving the no-fraternity rule in our high schools only because of the pressure and influence of their sponsoring groups.

"My interests," reads the most recent appeal coming to me, "are stamp collection, a celestial man, astronomical observation, collecting coins, correspondence, and rocket."

The envelope in which it was enclosed was, itself, a collector's item.

At Sea

CAN YOU EXPLAIN IT?

We were fishing off Lower Matecumbe, Preston Bird, Todd Clay and I when we were attracted by a tattered piece of cloth flapping about 10 feet aloft in the breeze a short distance away.

Here's what we found: It was bound to the top of one of those bamboo fishing poles, probably 25 feet long.

Exactly half way down, the pole penetrated three square layers of that white, foam-like stuff that is used extensively by decorators especially during the holidays. This kept it afloat.

Tied to the bottom of the pole was a section of a fairly heavy link chain, which held the flag upright.

About half way between the float and this flag was a strange, but excellently made contraption. It consisted of two square batteries connected with a foot long projecting arm which had a flashlight type bulb at its end.

The batteries were worn out and so the bulb was no longer lit.

A somewhat frayed and encrusted piece of 2-inch rope trailed from the contrivance indicating that it had been in the water for some time.

It was too big for us to take aboard, so we left it drifting there, probably four or five miles from shore.

Do We Really Have A 14th Amendment?

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—The people of Virginia are not happy over the enforced integration in their public schools. They feel that they are being coerced into doing something against their will. They have been told the Constitution is "what the people of the United States say it is." But is it always? In no state have the people ever voted to approve any change in the Constitution that requires integration or desegregation in the public schools.

Lawrence

Nine men sitting in the Supreme Court have, however, said that they interpret the 14th Amendment to require desegregation in the public schools.

* * *

BUT DID the people ever ratify the 14th Amendment by the method prescribed in the Constitution—namely, by two-third of both houses of Congress and by three-fourths of the states?

Historians tell us this wasn't done. The secretary of state who proclaimed the 14th Amendment in 1868 expressed frankly his doubts as to whether it had been legally ratified.

Upon what were these doubts based? Abraham Lincoln had said the Union was indissoluble and that no state could secede. When the War Between the States was over, President Johnson in May 1865 formally proclaimed amnesty to former rebels and established provisional governments in the Southern states. All of these—except one—ratified the 13th Amendment, abolishing slavery. Their ratification was accepted as legal. So they were unquestionably in the Union.

* * *

HOWEVER, when Congress met in December 1865, all the senators and representatives from the Southern states, except Tennessee, were excluded. Nevertheless, the 14th Amendment was voted on by Congress and was formally submitted to the states in June 1866. Ten Southern states rejected it.

Congress thereupon passed a law putting the South under military rule and specifically ordering the states to ratify or remain excluded from the Union. The President vetoed the bill, but it was passed over his veto.

Under military rule, the Southern states "ratified" the 14th Amendment.

* * *

UP TO 1896, when the Supreme Court affirmed it, no court of importance held that the "separate but equal" idea for public schools was a violation of the Constitution. Even the same Congress which had ordered the 14th Amendment ratified by the South under military coercion passed a law providing for segregated public schools in the District of Columbia.

The present Supreme Court, before its 1954 decision, asked for testimony on the "intent" of the framers of the 14th Amendment, and then called the facts as submitted "inconclusive."

No decision has ever been rendered on the merits of the case. This was doubtless due to a feeling that, if ever passed upon, the Amendment would have to be declared illegal.

* * *

BUT WHY turn the clock back to 1868? This question is often asked, and it is answered by asking another question: Why in 1954 turn the clock back to 1896 to invalidate the doctrine of "separate but equal" which had for 58 years been the "law of the land?"

This correspondent attended an integrated public school both in the elementary grades and in high school and would gladly attend one again if he were a student. If a constitutional amendment were proposed that would permit the states to deal with this subject, this writer would vote for it. If the 14th Amendment were adopted today by the states, and it specifically forbade segregation, this writer would welcome it as an expression of the free will of the people uncoerced by bayonets and representing the desires of the American electorate.

In the absence of any Supreme Court decision to the contrary, the 14th Amendment is assumed to be valid. This means federal court orders based on its provisions must be obeyed. But no state is denied the right to try by legal means any form of circumvention. This is lawful until the court in each case specifically rules otherwise.

Meanwhile, can America afford to let the record of fraud and coercion stand as it is before the world — or will a troubled conscience some day make the people of the United States square that record by a lawfully adopted amendment to the Constitution?

Public Hold-the-Line Pressure Is Vital Factor

Labor's Wages, Company Price Hikes Woo Inflation

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

★ ★ ★

This is the second in a three-part series on the highlights of a 758-page senate committee report on how to fight inflation.

★ ★ ★

Seventy-one of the nation's keenest brains—industrialists, bankers, economists and professors—have already told Congress where to attack and how to do it.

Now President Eisenhower has declared a "relentless war" against inflation and has named a seven-man cabinet committee to wage it. The committee is headed by Vice President Nixon.

Another committee headed by Sen. Douglas (D., Ill.) has undertaken a new inquiry to learn what to do.

But the battle plan is already in the possession of the Senate, placed there last year by Sen. Byrd's finance committee who asked the 71 men for their views.

The assaults recommended were against two foes:

BIG LABOR, which wins big wage boosts by threatening to cripple a company that refuses to kick in.

Many of the experts, taking the middle ground, wished a plague on both houses — "monopoly wages and monopoly prices."

A wealth of specific legislative suggestions was offered to work toward a cure, among them:

—BRING ORGANIZED labor under the anti-trust laws.

—BAN COMPULSORY UNIONISM.

—LIMIT THE SIZE of union federations.

—DISCOURAGE escalator clauses and long-term union contracts.

—MAKE BIG business keep prices down.

The proposals included a unique plan for a cooling-off period before either wage or price boosts could be put into effect. This would copy a provision of the Taft-Hartley Act, under which labor grievances are settled before they become national strikes.

HALF OF THE NATIONAL leaders sending suggestions to the senators represented big industry, so the total report is weighted with the corporate position.

But regardless of position, all spokesmen agreed that wages and salaries are a critical factor in the inflationary push.

John A. Logan, president of the National Association of Food Chains, pointed it up by reporting that personal income makes up "about 70 per cent of the national income."

Though not all of this is represented by unions, overall wages and salaries to follow the patterns set by organized labor.

HOW THEN CAN union wages be kept in line?

One spokesman after another said that "labor has become big business and should therefore be brought under the anti-monopoly laws."

Harry E. Brinkman, president of the National Small Businessmen's Association, said that bargaining power has become distressingly high on the union side of the table.

As an example, he offered the auto industry, in which "there are four active producers, which negotiate independently, but one monopoly supplier of labor"—the United Auto Workers.

Eisenhower

Shuman

Nixon

To restore balance, "compulsory unionism should be prohibited by law," said Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

★ ★ ★

ELSEWHERE THE ECONOMIC spokesmen condemned escalator clauses union contracts, which call for automatic wage boosts as the cost-of-living index increases.

These clauses, they said, mean "built-in inflation."

Also hit were long-term union contracts, which may call for increasing wages during recession years because they were negotiated in prosperous years.

Big industry got its kicks from James G. Patton, president of the Farmers Union. He condemned the powerful corporations for not allowing economic laws to stabilize prices.

"The most dramatic example" he said, "is the steel industry, which deliberately raised prices (last spring) by $6 per ton and cut production" to half its capacity.

Under the law of supply and demand, the price of steel would drop as production is maintained.

Patton suggested: "This calls for means to require that boards of directors . . . take national economic goals into consideration in establishing their production and price policies."

★ ★ ★

SHOULD WE RE-INSTITUTE the wartime freezes on both wages and prices?

Unanimously the answer was no.

In a joint report the 12 presidents of the Federal Reserve banks declared that wage controls "infringe upon individual freedom and stifle private initiative."

Why should anyone work harder if he couldn't earn more for his extra effort?

And Gottfried Haberler, professor of economics at Harvard, pointed out that price controls are equally antagonistic to the American tradition of free enterprise.

Price ceilings, he said, also "would lead to black markets, corruption, favoritism, red tape—implying waste and inefficiency which would only make things worse."

★ ★ ★

A MODERATE SOLUTION—the one calling for a cooling-off period—was suggested by Gerhard Colm of the National Planning Association. He recommended a new government commission on wages and prices that would operate like this:

Congress would designate a few key industries that dominate the economy.

In these industries any plans for wage or price boosts would have to be submitted to the commission before they could be put into effect.

The commission would then make a study and the President's Council of Economic Advisers would review all sides of the question for him.

The President—if he thought the wage or price increase was bad for the country—would be authorized to suspend the effective date for, say, 60 days.

The key to success of the plan would be public pressure, which in some instances would enforce a hold-the-line policy.

Sitting on Time Bomb?

Trujillo Bit Anxious For Batista to Leave

By PETER LISAGOR

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

WASHINGTON—Why has Dominican Dictator Rafael Trujillo suddenly decided that Fulgencio Batista is a "repugnant" guest in Ciudad Trujillo?

LISAGOR

Informed Latin American specialists say that Trujillo realizes he's sitting on a Caribbean time bomb which the continued presence of the fallen Cuban dictator could help detonate.

These sources go so far as to say that Trujillo has foes inside the Dominican Republic who have been emboldened by the success of Fidel Castro's revolutionary movement in Cuba.

Until now, Trujillo has managed, in tidy ways known to dictators, to suppress any signs of disaffection among the Dominicans.

But reliable sources say the disaffection exists. It will, they add, be fanned by the Castro example.

TRUJILLO MAY REASON he can take some of the heat off if Batista finds a new address, they say.

The wealthy Cuban refugee was allowed to claim political asylum in the Dominican Republic because Trujillo regards it as an important principle.

It has been said, not altogether in jest, that he may need it himself one day.

It is conceded here that Trujillo and Batista have feuded in the past. At one time, Batista was charged with inspiring an attempt from Cuba to overthrow Trujillo.

But Trujillo's unease now springs from his apprehensions about the Castro movement and its contagious effect on him, these sources maintain.

THE CASTRO CONTAGION, according to these informants, also threatens the regime of Francois Duvalier, the Haitian strongman.

Haiti scarcely needs any outside influences to tilt its already shaky government, they assert. Its economy is precarious, and the slightest spark can send Duvalier packing.

The impetus of the Cuban revolution has caused ripples in another dictatorial stronghold, Nicaragua, these sources say.

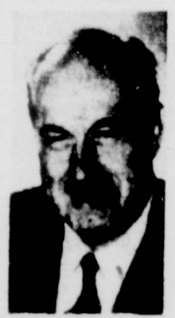
Ike Secretly Admits Doubt Of Balancing U.S. Budget

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower has been letting some interesting tid-bits drop at his breakfasts with Republican congressmen. They range from portrait painting to balancing the budget, to the sometimes dour visage of Herbert Hoover.



PEARSON

Regarding the budget, Ike has let it be known that he was not as optimistic, privately, about balancing it as he has been publicly.

It was Charlie Halleck of Indiana, the new GOP House Leader, who precipitated Ike's budget views by reminding him that it would be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to thwart Democratic demands for greater spending for missiles and defense.

There would also be trouble holding down Congressional spending for housing, rivers and harbors, flood control, and farm price supports, the President was told.

"Everyone in Congress wants to economize at the expense of the other fellow," remarked one breakfast guest. "Nobody is willing to sacrifice his own pet projects. That's the chief problem of keeping the budget balanced."

Ike didn't seem to appreciate this philosophy.

"It showed that the general public favored cuts all down the line in nondefense spending—and that the public wants us to balance the budget."

SILVER-CRESTED Congressman Barrett O'Hara of Chicago undoubtedly meant well in bringing a Negro boy to serve as page in the House of Representatives, but he could have saved the boy a heartache and his colleagues a lot of headaches if he had appointed a colored page some time ago instead of his own grandson.

The appointment of pages, Capitol policemen, doorkeepers, elevator operators and other employes, of which there are some 400 on Capitol Hill, is made according to political patronage.

When there's an opening and it's a congressman's turn to make an appointment, he can appoint anyone he wishes. The appointee must be competent, but no examination is required as in a congressman's appointment of youngsters to West Point or Annapolis.

A few years ago, Mr. O'Hara, the congressman who brought James A. Johnson Jr. to Washington to become a page, had an opening for a page boy. Whereupon, according to his colleagues, O'Hara appointed, not a Negro, but his own grandson.

Before he brought James Johnson to Washington from Chicago he telephoned Congressman Tad Walter of Pennsylvania, in charge of House patronage.

"Don't send him," Walter warned. "There is no vacancy. It will only cause confusion and hurt feelings."

He also desegregated the Capitol page boys' school five years ago.

Neither the Senate nor the House patronage committee has any idea who the boys are, or the color of their skins.

When they are recommended by a congressman and it's his turn for a vacancy, his recommended appointee gets the job.

U.S. Opens New Move

Will Iran Be Next to Quit Baghdad Pact for Russia?

By GEORGE WELLER

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

BAGHDAD, Iraq—With Iraq's place in the Baghdad Pact empty, Russia has opened a drive to widen the breach by winning neighboring Iran.

WELLER

The Soviet drive if successful would open a 2,000-mile gap beween Turkey and Pakistan, the pact's flanking members.

In an effort to meet this drive the United States promised 82 million dollars more in economic aid to Pakistan and pledged 359 million dollars in economic help to Turkey.

Adm. A. W. Radford and former Ambassador George McGhee, now in Ankara, are attempting to peg down the Turks.

AS THE KARACHI meeting of the Baghdad Pact faltered toward its indecisive close Jan. 29, Russia was already working behind the scenes in Teheran with the shah.

The Persians opened their doors to the Russians because of purported disappointment at dealings with the United States over a two-way treaty to stiffen the Baghdad Pact.

Iran wants unconditional aid going beyond the anti-Communist limitations of the Eisenhower doctrine and beyond the loosely optional defense clauses of Baghdad Pact defenses.

The State Department has pleaded its inability to extend these limited empowerments authorized by Congress.

IRAN'S VACILLATION is no surprise. Iran though benefiting by United States payment of its budgetary deficits—about 228 million dollars in economic aid in 10 years—has assumed an attitude of grievance because of not getting an armored division as a gift from the United States.

This lack has been emphasized privately by the shah as affecting his standing with the army.

Miami's Pay Up Like U.S.

The gross wages of Greater Miamians have kept pace with the national averages, experts said here Wednesday, and have been going up, Up, UP.

Those salaries in the broadly defined manufacturing fields have jumped 45 per cent in the past 13 years; and those working in the "retail field," such had boosts of 48 per cent.

The University of Miami Bureau of Business and Economic Research came up with these figures for an average weekly income:

Mfg.	$44.41	$54.14	$81.27
Retail	32.55	43.85	62.43

And the First Research Corporation supplied figures which indicate a 67 per cent increase in Dade County's annual payroll from 1948 through 1957.

The total wages paid out in Dade County back in 1948 amounted to $273,497,000.

In 1957, of course, there were more industries and more employes anong which the higher total was divided, but the "pie" which was split amounted to $852,800,000.

One Criticized President

Cuba Lets Press Flex Its Muscle

By STANFORD BRADSHAW

Associated Press Staff Writer

HAVANA, Cuba — Cuba's press—muzzled for years by Fulgencio Batista's censors—is enjoying freedom under the revolutionary government.

So far, except in one instance, it has refrained from criticism of the government of President Manuel Urrutia, backed by Fidel Castro.

How long the honeymoon will continue is anybody's guess.

Havana's big dailies are supporting the government, either explicitly or implicitly by refraining from comment.

In the matter of the war crimes trails of alleged killers under the Batista regime public opinion favoring the trials has been so strong that no paper has raised any objection to them.

There were flicks of criticism by individual columnists and cartoonists after the circus-like trial in the Sports Palace of ex-Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco. The papers did pick up—although sometimes buried on interior pages—dispatches expressing foreign criticism of the trials.

Among those keeping personal silence is Guillermo Martinez Marquez, former president of the Inter-American Press Association, and editor of the paper El Pais.

He and Raul Alfonso Gonse of El Mundo, another leading IAPA member, signed editorials praising the return of press freedom, which Castro has said repeatedly he guarantees.

An immediate result of Batista's fall was the suspension of four Havana dailies that had been backed with government funds. It also has resulted in the circulation of seemingly official lists showing monthly payments — in some cases $16,000—from the government to leading editors or publishers.

Fifty reporters were charged with having collaborated with the fallen regime and were threatened with loss of their professional permits.

One Batista-backed newspaper, Alerta, was taken over by revolutionary forces, and now appears as Revolucion. It is regarded as a semiofficial spokesman for the revolutionary government.

A newcomer on the scene has been Hoy (Today), a four to six page paper published by the Popular Socialist Party, but which follows the Communist line.

The only criticism of the new government has come on the issue of the political asylum granted by some of the Latin American embassies to leading figures of the Batista regime.

Two papers — Diario de la Marina and El Mundo — strongly criticized the government's decision to study on an individual basis the issuance of safe conducts to the refugees. They called upon the government to honor immediately its commitments under the treaties on political asylum.

A new feature of Cuban newspaper life under the revolutionary government has been the calling of news conferences by leading figures. Castro himself has led on this point, having formal conferences, as well as talking informally to individual newsmen.

This contrasts with the Batista regime, where it rarely was possible to talk to any leading figure.

Some of the ministers also have established "press coordinators," although few appear to have had newspaper experience, or to know newspaper needs. The result has been that in some cases the only source for information of the most routine type has been the minister or public officer himself. Access to information has not always been easy and has been further complicated by sudden shifts in policy.

UJA Plans Tribute to Jack Benny

Jack Benny and Abba S. Eban, Israel's ambassador to the U.S., will be guests of honor when the 1959 United Jewish Appeal launches its 21st annual nationwide campaign.

The National Inaugural Dinner, for which 1,000 Jewish leaders from all over the country are expected, will be Saturday at the Fontainebleau Hotel.

Benny will be honored for his years of service to Jewish communal and overseas causes.

This year's UJA goal is 100 million dollars in addition to its regular budget campaign. Much of this money will be used for housing immigrants to Israel.

Boy Falls Six Stories--and Lives

NEW YORK — (UPI) — For 10 terrifying minutes while his older brother clutched his wrists, little Jimmy Hughes dangled outside the apartment house window six stories off the ground — and then he fell.

But 13-year-old Jimmy will live to tell the nightmarish tale, doctors at Mount Sinai Hospital predicted, because the grass courtyard on which he crashed cushioned his fall just enough. He will be a long time recovering from painful injuries.

Jimmy hadn't expected to see his father, Walter, at home when he returned from school at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday. But there was Dad, and he was all upset about reports Jimmy had been misbehaving in school.

He ran to a sixth-floor window in the Madison Ave. apartment and sat on the window ledge.

His father was frightened. Hoping to lure Jimmy back from the ledge before anything happened, the elder Hughes told him, "I'm not going to hit you — and to prove it I'm leaving the house right now." He walked out.

Jimmy tried to get back into the room but he slipped.

As he fell he caught the window ledge with his hands and held on. And he screamed.

That brought his 15-year-old brother Walter Jr., on the run from another room. Walter grabbed Jimmy's wrists and held on as long as he could, but then his grip slipped and Jimmy fell.

A doctor and an attendant from Mount Sinai Hospital, directly across the street, gave Jimmy first aid and then took him into the hospital on a stretcher.

Paul Robeson Wins U.S. Tax Fight

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Singer Paul Robeson Wednesday won a five-year battle to escape taxation on the $25,000 Stalin Peace Prize he received in 1953.

The Internal Revenue Service announced it is abandoning its claim that the Negro entertainer owed federal income taxes of $9,655 on the award.

In effect, the Revenue Service took the position that the Stalin Prize—the highest Soviet award of its kind—is in the same tax-exempt category as the Nobel and Pulitzer prizes.

Robeson, 60, is now seriously ill in a Moscow hospital. He went to Russia after winning another lengthy fight to obtain a passport.

Shot May Cost Pension

The shot which ex-Indianapolis Police Lt. Enanuel Gebauer fired at a 17-year-old boy last Dec. 23 may cost him his pension.

Criminal Court Judge Ben C. Willard found Gebauer guilty of aggravated assault, suspending sentence on Gebauer's promise to pay a $400 hospital bill.

If the felony conviction sticks, Gebauer's pension may be cut off, attorneys said. Judge Willard said he may reconsider the conviction.

Gebauer told Judge Willard that never again will he carry a gun. He had it while shopping with his wife at the 163rd Street Shopping Center and saw John R. Brown, 2404 N. 20th St., West Hollywood, leave Richard's Store with a $25 jacket.

Against Hotelman Schine

Beach Broker's Suit In High Court Again

The long fight of Miami Beach Real Estate Broker John E. Porte to collect a $75,000 commission he claims is owed him by Hotel Magnate J. Meyer Schine has landed in the Florida Supreme Court for the second time.

Porte claims Schine hired him to sell the McAllister Hotel in downtown Miami and then refused to pay his fee after the deal fell through.

At his first trial, the jury awarded Porte the full $75,000 he claimed he was due. The Supreme Court reversed it and as the second trial, Porte lost.

On his appeal for still a third trial, Porte contends that he carried out his end of the deal when he obtained a buyer for the McAllister.

His attorney, H. Reid De Jarnette of Miami, said that Schine could have sold the hotel but was "irked" because the prospective buyer allegedly entered an agreement to resell the hotel at a quick profit.

Eight Awarded Sports Cars

Eight Miamians of the 90,796 who flocked to the Second International Foreign and Sports Car Show got new cars as prizes. The eight-day show closed Sunday at Dinner Key Auditorium.

Manuel Sherman, the director, said the show's success indicates Florida is becoming a leader in the sports car field.

Hedy's Husband Charges Cruelty In Divorce Suit

OILMAN W. HOWARD LEE has filed a court suit in Houston seeking a divorce from Actress Hedy Lamarr. His petition charges cruel treatment prior to the couple's separation last August.

The marriage was the second for Lee and the fifth for Miss Lamarr.

The actress has been living in Beverly Hills since the couple separated. They were married Dec. 23, 1953, in New York City.

When the couple separated, an agreement was filed, providing the actress a life income of $3,000 a month or one-half of Lee's income whichever is larger.

The Lees

On Jan. 21 Miss Lamarr filed a $51,000 Federal Court damage suit alleging Lee had made only two $3,000 payments. The petition also called for appointment of a receiver to sell certain properties and divide the proceeds.

In 1954 the couple purchased a $175,000 home in Houston's exclusive River Oaks. The damage suit filed by Miss Lamarr also alleged that Lee had failed to give the actress one-half of the proceeds from the sale of the home and its furnishings.

Miss Lamarr is 43. Lee is 50.

Valentine Girl Gets Her Crown

A LITTLE BLONDE girl with a patched up heart was crowned by Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower as America's Valentine girl for the 1959 Heart Fund.

Mrs. Eisenhower Crowns Debbie

. . . valentine girl of 1959 Heart Fund

Six-year-old Debbie Quinn of La Porte, Ind., who said her visit to Washington and to the White House was going to be the "bestest" day of her life, was a little shy when she got there. She didn't have much to say at the ceremony.

Debbie stood on the red-carpeted grand stairway in the north hallway of the White House as the first lady arrived for the photographing ceremony.

They posed together, and Debbie gave Mrs. Eisenhower a floral heart of 49 American beauty roses sent to the first lady by the Alaska Heart Association.

Baudouin Reports Premature?

GOVERNMENT and political circles said that reports of the engagement of King Baudouin and French Princess Marie-Therese were premature, if not unfounded.

BAUDOUIN and MARIE

The palace refused to comment on the Paris report that the princess, a descendant of Philip V of Spain and Louis XIV of France, had been measured for a wedding dress in preparation for her marriage to the 27-year-old king.

Government and political sources said that as a constitutional monarch, Baudouin would be forced to notify the government far in advance of any impending marriage and that as of now, he has not done so.

Farley Gets Party Honor

NEW YORK —(AP)— Former Postmaster General James A. Farley, a veteran of 50 years in politics, has logged 40 of them as a member of the National Democratic Club.

The 70-year-old politician was honored at a dinner of 200 club members.

Farley received a scroll citing his "outstanding civic and governmental achievement" and was described as a "symbol of democracy" by Carmine G. DeSapio, club president and head of Tammany Hall.

CURRY

The Tip Off

HERLONG

Few Bucks More . . . They Fly by Day

NIGHT AIR COACHES flying in and out of Miami are losing their low-cost appeal, some Miami-based airlines report. The swing in economy flying is to the day coach, which costs only a few dollars more.

* * *

QUIET FEELERS have gone out to ex-Dade Port Authority Director A. B. Curry from several influential businessmen about whether Curry would like his old job back. Curry lost his job after it was found he was on the payroll of an engineering firm doing airport work.

* * *

In the State

REPORTS FROM Monroe County are that sheriff's deputies will be shifted to different posts in the Keys "for failure to locate gambling establishments."

* * *

In the Nation

THE 86TH CONGRESS may break all records for spending money on investigations. One senator predicted the Senate will soon be investigating "things on the moon." Nearly four million dollars already has been approved for 30 investigating committees.

* * *

A PROPOSAL to set up a Freedom Academy to teach how to counteract Communist propaganda in foreign countries is reported to have firm backing in the House of Representatives. The bill was introduced by Florida Rep. A. Sydney Herlong Jr., who says the academy would "fill a vacuum" in the nation's cold war effort.

* * *

In Latin America

U.S. INVESTORS in Cuba, who have been lying low for the past year, will soon begin to dump large sums into that country. They would start now, but they are waiting to see if Fidel Castro places substantial citizens in all high government posts.

* * *

Abroad

IN RUSSIA the Soviet Communist Party Congress has heard one attack after another on the "anti-party" group accused of trying to sabotage Soviet policies. Members of the group were not called before the congress to confess or defend themselves.

Your Horoscope

Think of Future

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Thursday, February 5, 1959

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Spend a good part of today in happiest Aquarian style — by being good to others. Many fine ideas will occur to you. But do not be impulsive, as is your usual method. Think of terms of a long time into the future. FOR YOUR COPY of Carroll Righter's individual 16-page Forecast for March send your birth date and 50c in coin (no stamps) to Carroll Righter Forecast, (Miami Herald), Box 1895, Grand Central Sta., N.Y. 17 N.Y.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) A day for working along nicely with others so that you can attain mutual goals. Much real cooperation will be yours.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Get the approval of one in power today by showing how well your house is run and the beauty that exists therein. Treat this person to dinner and put out your best.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A good day for mingling with the right group so that you are introduced to as many influential and interesting persons as possible. But first scout around for those small items you can wear.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Imperative to listen to advice of experts or other persons involved in deals with you so that you can come to that happy meeting of minds, reconciliation and complete accord.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you wish to get the most out of those persons with whom you have human relations daily, it is vital that you think of their needs and how you can help them first.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) By the simple expedient of a little color here, a bit of art there which you apply to your surroundings, you can today make a fine impression on some influential person.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are so filled with inspiration how you can bring real happiness and contentment into the lives of others that it would be wise to get an early start putting your ideas to work actively.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take a quick look about your surroundings. Then put all in order, as well as add those special touches that bring commendation from important persons in your life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) It would be wise to seek out most dynamic partner you have today, and by honestly giving praise for what he or she has accomplished, you will get much-needed moral support.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Most important you roll up your sleeves and get to work on real estate, other property so that you improve its appearance and intrinsic value.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A day for enjoyment and happiness. As a Capricorn, however, you must combine some practical or emotional achievement with hours of lightheartedness.

New Date

Van Cliburn March 30

Van Cliburn, who canceled his piano recital scheduled here for tonight, will play in Miami March 30 instead, Civic Music Association officials announced Wednesday.

The recital will still be available only to holders of Civic Music subscription memberships, it was announced.

It will take the place of the recital originally scheduled for tonight, and there will consequently be no concert in Dade County Auditorium this evening.

Speed Cut Saves Lives in Germany

By DAVID M. NICHOL
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

BONN, Germany — A 30-mile-an-hour speed limit in built-up areas in West Germany saved at least 2,500 lives and more probably about 4,000 in the first full year of its operation.

From September, 1957 when the controversial limit was introduced, until the end of August, 1958, a total of 11,017 persons were killed in highway accidents. This is a decrease of 18.1 per cent compared with the previous 12-month figure of 13,457.

The number of accidents in which property damage was reported increased, by contrast, by 11.1 per cent.

Last August a 60-mile-an-hour speed limit was also imposed on a section of West Germany's superhighways between Frankfurt and Mannheim where the accident toll was notorious.

By the end of the year 14 persons had been killed in this stretch, compared with 35 in a similar period a year earlier, and the number of accidents was reduced from 541 to 359.

Man Kidnaps Fiancee's Sister

He kidnaped his fiancee's 15-year-old sister and ran off with her. Police arrested him a few hours later and rescued the girl.

No Cream--It's Still Ice Cream

It ruled thus after noting that nine-tenths of the nation's ice cream is made from vegetable oil, not milk.

To End Dictatorships

Cuban Predicts More Revolts

By ADON TAFT
Herald Religion Editor

Revolutions to end dictatorships in the Dominican Republic, Nicaragua and Paraguay were predicted Wednesday by a Cuban speaker at the closing session of the Florida Chain of Missionary Assemblies.

Dr. Alfonso Roriguez, president of the Evangelical Theological Seminary in Matanzas, Cuba, said the revolutions will come because his country is a pace-setter for all Latin America.

The Presbyterian scholar, first Cuban to receive a doctor of theology degree, said the real revolution in Cuba is in Christianity.

He said both Protestants and Roman Catholics in the island are adopting methods and personnel from the U.S. and Canada in an effort to throw off a clericalism which has been as stifling as militarism in Latin America.

Dr. Rodriguez said Christian leaders from all over South America now are training in the seminary he heads and are spreading the changing methods.

Dr. Paul E. Nilson, a missionary to Turkey, said that Christian laymen at American installations there are the greatest need of that land.

State Denies License to Union Aide

Harry Bush, of Miami, has been denied a union business agent license by the State Licensing Commission because of his alleged past connections with subversive organizations.

Protesting the application of Bush was Willard Smith, a bag boy for a Coral Gables supermarket.

Bush had requested a license to represent the Retail Employes Union of South Florida, Local 1010, and the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union, Local 885.

Smith appeared at the Tallahassee meeting armed with numerous records which he said showed that Bush was once linked with organizations in Texas and New York which had been named on the attorney general's list as subversive.

"I am a working man who favors union, but not this type of union man," Smith declared.

Just Napping?

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Police were called in when four-year-old Elnathan G. Smith got lost in his family's 45-room mansion. Police found him behind a divan in the living room.

Is TV Gobel the Real Gobel?

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer

Celebrity Parade

Crew cut comedian George Gobel ("Hello, Neighbors, this is your old friend, Lonesome George") is a man with whom his audience can identify themselves. On the television screen he's the little man coping with the complexities of life.

How did he come to portray this type of character? In his L-shaped Deauville Hotel suite overlooking the ocean, the five-foot-five-inch Gobel explained: "We-e-ell, it just turned out that I happen to be a little guy amazed at the complexities of life.

"I figured that the kind of problems people have are the kind of problems I have."

So the comedian goes through his routines of never quite dominating any situation. He bounces half awkwardly across the stage. He delivers monologues in unfinished sentences, ending with a blunt and underplayed O. Henry - type punch line. He goes through a maze of finding his way through a bewilderingly large supermarket; trying to settle an insurance claim for lost hubcaps.

Alice Gobel

"It's exaggerated, of course," he said, "and it's satire. But I think people have a tendency to identify themselves with it . . . we get many letters from people telling of parallel experiences."

If you know the TV Gobel, you know the real one. His expression off TV may be more serious — but he was tired after an afternoon of golf; nothing comes before his beloved golf while he's here for today's Cavalcade of Stars. And his way of speaking is less halting. But that's all.

To interview him is like calling on an old friend. He's pleasant, he's amusing, he's comfortable to be around.

He sat on the hotel's brocade chair as though it were his easy chair back home in Encino, Calif.—one leg tucked under him, smoking and talking quietly, occasionally breaking into part of a routine to explain a situation.

He's a rarity in the field of comedians — an introvert. He still gets stage fright before every performance. And "during the first year or so, seriously, I used to come home and say to Alice, 'Gee, honey, we've got to save money. I'm not going to last in this business.'"

* * *

Will Rogers Is Out Now

ALTHOUGH HE CALLS himself "a comic," he's a humorist. In the Gobel vernacular, you can't hardly get them kind no more.

The Will Rogers type of humorist wouldn't go today, he says. Too much the humorist can't use. "You'd be surprised at the reaction we get. But some people don't realize it's satire."

(Earlier this week, famed comedian Jack Benny took the opposite view. "If Will Rogers were alive today he'd be sensational," Benny said. "Think of the material he'd have to work with.")

Gobel explained: "First, you have to figure out what your show's going to be, write it out and then sit down and go through it and say, 'This will offend someone,' and 'That will offend someone.'" He shook his head.

"It's amazing that people will object to something on TV that they wouldn't in a nightclub act.

"In a club you can make jokes about somebody at ring side, about his turkey business, if you know that's what he's in, and in the club he's a big man. It's okay.

"But if you make some kind of reference about the turkey business on TV and he's sitting in his living room watching, all of a sudden he takes offense."

* * *

The Nickname That Stuck

IT WAS IN a nightclub that Gobel got his nickname of "Lonesome George."

"I did a skit about a late disc jockey and you know they don't have ordinary names like George Gobel. They have to be Tumbleweed Gobel or something. So I took the name Lonesome George."

It stuck. And it's significant in many respects—not of the well-known man, of course. There are the autograph seekers, the fans. But of the deeper man?

Comedian George Gobel Is in Miami
. . 'sometimes I feel lonesome'

"Sure. Sometimes I feel lonesome. You know, I can never just walk right into a crowd. I stand around a bit."

Even as a boy he stood around a bit, observing the customers in his father's grocery store in Chicago. He's still observing. It's what his shows are made of—that, and the fact that "I have an affinity for spooks. If there's one spook in the whole hotel, this clown will be crossing my path just as I walk through the lobby. They always find me."

* * *

'She'll Never Make Five'

In real life she's a lovely dark-haired woman with a one-dimple smile who has none of the domineering ways Gobel jokes attribute to her. She was his childhood sweetheart. Stories have it that George met her by tripping her as she collected homework papers.

"We-e-ell, that's a lie," he said, bristling. "Actually, I knocked the tray out of her hands in the cafeteria. She's been trying to get even with me ever since. And anyone who would be vindictive enough to marry a person for a thing like that . . ." It was one of the quick flashes into the Gobel-type humor.

It came again as he talked proudly of their children, Gregg, 13; Georgia, eight; and Leslie, nearly five.

"That Leslie," he says and shook his head. "She'll never make five. She's a little flaky. She walks around the place like she paid for the whole thing. Locking herself in bird cages . . ."

The cage, Mrs. Gobel explained, was part of the former owners' home. There are no birds in it. Her husband added, "We also have a stable with four stalls. Our 3 cats live there."

* * *

George Wants Show Perfect

WHAT'S AHEAD? Possibly a half-hour weekly show, nothing definite yet. But Gobel would like to have an arrangement "like Jack Benny," part filmed, part live. For he yearns to be able to perfect his material before using it.

"It shakes you up having material you just got a few days ago and you're so busy just learning it, you can't perfect it."

Is It Epilepsy?

By DR. J. G. MOLNER

Is there any way for a person to find out if he is subject to epileptic seizures?—L.B.

I've omitted some of the details of your case, but the answer in any case of doubt is that an electro-encephalogram (brain wave test) will show the patterns which accompany epileptic seizures whether of the grand mal or petit mal type.

History of the pattern of the attacks is also helpful.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible. Always write to him in care of The Miami Herald.

'Our Kids Just Ignore Neighbors'

Column with a Heart

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

After reading Peace Loving's letter, I felt I had to write. Our neighborhood had a similar problem. But instead of one person doing the job alone, the neighborhood as a whole group took matters in hand.

We all realize that children fight and tease, and we have agreed that fighting our children's battles is petty. So, if we see that our child cannot get along with another, we keep that child away from the other children until he or she thinks they can play and act like children should.

If problems arise which need ironing out, we go to each other as friends and try to solve it together.

However, there are two parents who insist their children can do no wrong. But we tell our kids to ignore them when they start their antics. And much to the rebellious neighbors' chagrin, it works beautifully!

Ignore your neighbor, Peace Loving, and perhaps this will bring her around.

DEEP RED ROSE

Your good neighbor policy is excellent. Other neighborhoods should adopt it!

'Our Home Is a Paradise'

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

Moonbeams' letter has prompted me to write about our marriage.

Despite the fact that my husband has been out of work on several occasions, we have been extremely happy. He is a good worker and never drinks.

There are always compliments coming from each of us. It's like Moonbeams says, "Marriage is a full time job and you have to put your heart and soul into it, like any worthwhile job."

I could write a book on my wonderful husband and our happy home, which is a paradise.

EADIE

Apparently you picked, not only the right man but the right last name, too. Thank you for writing.

'I'd Hate To Be In Tess' Shoes'

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

The letter from Tess sounded like my husband. We were married at 18 and 19, which I know now was too young, although I believed I was ready for marriage.

For 13 years we got along wonderful. I even got along with his mother. I let her show me and tell me things even though I didn't always do them.

Life has not been easy. For many years he never held a job longer than 18 months, until he got his present job which he has held for 10 years. Since then there have been affairs with many women.

I have not been able to talk any problems over with him because he gets mad right away. So I have to solve everything the best way I can. My motto now is "Do the best I can the best way I know how in the best way it is possible to do."

The children always go to school and Sunday school.

I am glad to see so many share my views for women like Tess. I would not like to be in her shoes when she meets her Maker. It is my belief that women like her will pay dearly some day.

All I ask out of life now is to see my children grow up educated and happy. It seems as if that is all I have.

TROUBLED: One point you overlooked in your letter, the age of the boy with the car!

Looking 17 or 18 is a lot different from being it.

Don't be too anxious to add two or three years to your age, cause it won't be long before you'll be wishing you could subtract them.

You're lucky to have parents who care enough about you to drive you and your date to the movies. Buses? Well, they're better than walking.

As for the two phone calls, let's hope that the boy you like calls first the next time so he'll get the 15-minute talk, and the second boy will be reduced to the 10-minute session.

Twenty-five minutes on the phone, all at once, is a lot of conversation, particularly on a party line.

Eleanor Hart.

Column With a Heart welcomes disucssion of your problems and your replies to the problems of others. Write to Eleanor Hart, The Miami Herald, Miami, Fla.

Texture Tells the Early American Story in This Room
. . . old brick, pine paneling set the decor theme

Wise Use of Textures Adds Charm to Home Decorations

By KAY MURPHY
Herald Decorating Editor

You can cultivate charm in your home as easily as you can cultivate it in yourself.

The easiest way to cultivate charm in your home is to utilize the contrasting textures now available.

And what exactly are contrasting textures in the decorator's dictionary? They're materials of varying "structure" or to break the definition down even more, materials that either look or feel different from each other.

Take brick and wood. These two contrasting textures are frequently combined in the architecture of a home. Often they determine the decorating scheme since these two textures have long been associated with the Early American design for living.

Brass and fabrics with a homespun look are other textures that can be introduced to underscore the charm of an Early American scheme. Yet none of these textures is even remotely similar.

Teak flooring and grasscloth on the walls usually establish an Oriental theme in decor. Pure silk fabrics, carved ivory figurines and "rice" china point up such a theme.

If you dwell in marble-floored halls, with gilt-edged mirrors on the walls — surrounded by Venetian glass art objects, velvets and brocades —then it's obvious your texture pattern is Italian.

Pigskin tiles underfoot and walnut panels on the walls seem to "go" with the kind of streamlined, twentieth century styling we call contemporary in home furnishings.

Texture, then, is as important in your decorating plans as color and craftmanship.

Coordination counts when choosing textures. A cake may be made of the finest ingredients but if they aren't combined properly, the cake's a failure.

Using textures to establish a mood of feeling in a home is a wise rule to follow since most homes today have open floor plans. In an open floor plans, rooms should seem to flow into one another because there are fewer halls, doors and general separations.

Each room shuld have a personality suited to its function but the eye should travel from one area to another without jarring interruptions.

Name Varies But Not Coat

NEW YORK — (UPI) — This year's car coat will be next year's sailing jacket, predicts designer John Weitz.

"Sports cars are fading as a chi chi symbol. Next year it will be skiing and boats, boats, boats," said Weitz.

"The sports car is fading because it's a fashion. And all fashion must of necessity change. It's purely a kick, like the Charleston and the chemise. It's a total parallel to jazz, the beat generation, hi fi and Scott Fitzgerald.

"There will always be a hard core of fans, but the sport doesn't depend on the majority of people who follow it. They know nothing about the cars—they just like their looks and the lingo. The avant garde already has made the switch to sailing," said Weitz.

What will happen to clothes tagged as "sports car fashions"?

"They're useless for sports car driving, anyway. So designers and manufacturers will just change the names and sell them for sailing," he said.

Aluminum Is High Style

RAINCOAT of aluminum cloth is modeled by Miss Evelyn Mitchell. She is secretary to Arthur Vining Davis, honorary chairman of the board of the Aluminum Corporation of America.

By BEVERLEY WILSON
Herald Fashion Editor

"Mrs. Doe looked chic in aluminum." Sound like a strange item for a society column? You may see it this winter.

Aluminum has been given the glamor treatment by top designers like Adele Simpson, Ceil Chapman and Nelly de Grab.

Fabric of Aluminum Goes on Sale Here

Where To Buy?

Call FR 9-3826 after 9:30 a.m. today. After 24 hours, write to The Miami Herald Shopping Service, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Home-sewers too will be wearing aluminum this season.

A new fabric—aluminum laminated on nylon jersey and embroidered with pale blue flowers—is being sold in the yard goods department of a local store.

Created by the same company that makes the aluminum wrap you use in your refrigerator, it's a glamor material for a very dressy evening ensemble.

Still expensive (about $20 a yard), it's rust and tarnish proof as well as water repellent.

GM Confirms U.S. Is Pushing Anti-Trust Suit

By Herald Wire Services

DETROIT — General Motors Corp. Wednesday night confirmed reports that its huge automotive operation is being investigated by the U.S. Justice Department.

Frederic G. Donner, GM board chairman, said the company was served Wednesday with a subpena by the Justice Department "calling for a tremendous amount of information, records and reports going back to 1946, and in some cases to 1929.

Donner's statement followed a story in The New York Journal-American Wednesday that said the Justice Department is preparing its long rumored antitrust suit against the corporation.

The story, by Financial Editor Leslie Gould, said the suit will seek to force GM to drop at least one — possibly two — of its five motor divisions and General Motors Acceptance Corp., its financing affiliate.

Florida Power Plans $94 Million Expansion

Dow Jones Service

NEW YORK—Florida Power Corp. announced Wednesday it plans to spend 94 million dollars for new construction in the next three years.

W. J. Clapp, president of the company, told the New York Society of Security Analysts that about a third of that amount will be spent in 1959 and the other two-thirds spread over 1960 and 1961.

Clapp said Florida Power's gross revenue last year was nearly 57 million dollars, which was a 10 per cent increase over the previous year.

He said 1959 revenue should hit around 62 million.

This is a conservative estimate, he said, because "for the past five years in a row our total gross revenue has exceeded our forecast."

'Phone Operators Need Long Arms'

After 46 Years, Hello-Girl Says Goodby

By EVELYN DETARDO
Herald Staff Writer

If you're disgruntled or the aggressive type and apply for a job as operator with the telephone company — you're a wrong number as far as Mrs. Teresa Outland is concerned.

But if you're tall and have a good arm reach, it's in your favor.

It's not that Mrs. Outland objects personally if you snap at her, it just indicates you're the type that will snap at customers. And during 46 years with the telephone company she has a substantial record for hiring pleasant operators — several thousand of them. As well as rejecting many thousand more.

Mrs. Outland retired Jan. 31, and with her goes a lot of good common sense, personnel know-how and just plain energy.

Mrs. Outland has a sharp eye for disgruntled or aggressive job applicants.

If you're on the defensive when she says you live pretty far away, that's a sign. And if you retort sharply that you are not too short, that's another sign.

She also weeds out the users of crude or ungrammatical language. You may be hired if the 10th grade was the end of your schooling. Then again, if you're a college graduate, and an "ain't" slips out, you've got your wires crossed.

Mrs. Outland was less choosey during the war. "At that that time we hired anyone that wandered into the buiding who could speak," she said.

At 18, Mrs. Outland was hiring and training personnel for the telephone company in Springfield, Mass. In 1933 she came to Miami and did clerical work for the company for a short time.

They soon asked her to join the personnel staff.

She did not just hire operators, but interviewed for the traffic, plant, commercial and accounting departments.

"When Calvin Coolidge was inaugerated, I sat at the switchboard in his law offices for two weeks intercepting calls from crackpots, hecklers and the like.

"During my first years in Miami," she remembered, "there were only two of us to interview, handle the payroll and the disability cases. Now there are 18 persons interviewing or giving tests."

She is eager to start on retirement which is officially the end of the month but actually has already begun with her three-week vacation.

"I think I've interviewed enough," she said. "Besides, I've got my husband, my yard and garden waiting at home."

This Is All a Memory Now for Mrs. Outland
. . . her advise: if you're disgruntled, you're a wrong number

Citronelle Oil Purchases Cut

HOUSTON, Tex. —(AP)— The firm which buys all the oil produced at Citronelle, Alabama's largest field, has cut its purchases from the field by 67 per cent.

The Daily Investor

'Can I Buy on My $3,200 a Year?'

By WILLIAM A. DOYLE

Q. I am a 40-year-old woman. I have managed to feed and clothe a family of five and save a little, too, on $3,200 a year, which takes some doing. I am thinking of buying $40 to $50 worth of stock a year for the next 10 years.

We live in a small town and don't know any brokers. Should I ask the local bank to arrange the details of my stock purchases?

A. By all means, go visit your local bank. Tell your entire story to the trust officer there. If he's as conservative as most, he'll probably talk you out of investing at all.

DOYLE

I think he should do just that. It's very doubtful that you can afford even to think about buying stock. Investing should be done with extra money, not the "little" you have managed to save.

You are to be congratulated for saving anything at all. My blue-eyed finance officer (and plenty of other women, I'll bet) would love to know how you managed it. Even in a small town, $3,200 a year doesn't go far these days.

Q. My broker and I came to the conclusion that the following common stocks were best suited for me for growth over the next 10 years: Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing, Merck, U.S. Steel, Dow Chemical, Eastman Kodak, International Business Machines, Reynolds Metals, Standard Oil (New Jersey) and General Motors. I intend to invest $250 a month.

In order to reduce commission charges, my broker suggests that I save $750 and purchase one of the above stocks every three months. Should I follow my broker's suggestion or should I go through with my original plan?

A. Your broker deserves a pat on the back. You and he have come up with a good group of securities. His suggestion on the method of purchasing has some merit. It's unusual to find a customers' man who worries about the commission a client pays. After all, those commissions are his bread and butter.

Even though you would save some commissions with his plan, you would lose some other advantages. In your original plan, you could do a more effective job of dollar-averaging. You could, that is, if you put the $250 into a different stock each month and follow a set pattern of rotating your purchases.

Maybe I'm a bug on this, but I still say that dollar-averaging is the best way for the average investor to come out ahead. Sure, you would be buying more odd lots (less than 100 shares) but that shouldn't bother you. And $250 wouldn't buy even one share of IBM, but you could stretch out your buying a bit to include that high-quality issue in your portfolio.

Q. It is possible to make 15 to 25 per cent a year in income with complete safety on rental properties. And, for increasing value, there is nothing like land. Yet, you never mention real estate properties in your column. How come?

A. Yes, its possible to get a fat return on rentals. And big profits on land are commonplace. But the investor who buys individual properties often has to take on management problems. There can be a lot of work involved. Besides that, each piece of real estate should be considered and investigated separately. It's a specialized business.

"Complete safety?" Don't tell that to people who have lost their shirts in real estate.

Building Drops

WASHINGTON —(AP)— New building activity declined normally last month to $3,708,000,000, but nevertheless was 10 per cent above the previous January record set last year.

Movies Plan Fewer Films

HOLLYWOOD — Major film makers plan to release no more than 220 full-length feature films this year — about 15 per cent less than in 1958.

The studios are concentrating on fewer—but costlier — movies in the belief that big-budget films are about the only kind that can make substantial profits in today's tight movie market.

Small theater operators disagree. They say Hollywood's policy of fewer films is leading to a movie shortage that will force hundreds of theaters to close.

Stock Values and The MISSILE PROGRAM

REGARDLESS of the outcome of the current legislative debate concerning the amount of defense expenditures to be authorized for the coming year, it seems a virtual certainty that appropriations for missile development will be increased. This is truly a growth industry. Missile outlays, negligible less than a decade ago, have soared to an annual rate in excess of $3 billion currently!

Because the progress of the missile program has become so important to the companies engaged in this activity, The Value Line Investment Survey has prepared a special, up-to-date report showing all 75 missiles known to be under development at this time, the present status of each (whether in research, development, production, or actual operation), and the individual companies participating in each one. The report also lists the 59 major missile contractors, and the number of missiles with which each is concerned. A 1958 missile chronology is also included. Investors owning, or planning to buy, the shares of companies active in the missile program will find it helpful to consult this report for the latest available factual information on our missile development.

This special report on missiles will be sent to you at no extra charge under the introductory offer described below.

Coppers Up As Ships, Motors Dip

Turnover was 3,170,000 shares compared with 3,220,000 Tuesday and once more was the smallest since last Dec. 24.

Lukens Steel, which made a sensational rise of 9 3-8 Tuesday, dropped 4¾ as the company denied rumors of a merger or stock split.

Coppers continued to make moderate progress in response to the latest price increase for the metal. Shipbuilding stocks, which rallied solidly Tuesday, were slipped for small losses Wednesday except for American Shipbuilding which picked up 2 7-8 in light dealings.

The motor stocks were down slightly and American Motors was off 1½ in active trading.

Some tobaccos, oils and selected issues, including a good representation of lower-priced stocks, made gains. The losing side included steels, airlines and aircrafts.

American Stock Exchange prices were mixed on volume of 1,810,000 shares compared with 1,670,000 Tuesday.

Coffee Imports Up, Prices Down

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — United States coffee imports increased sharply in volume and total value in October from September, but the average import price per pound declined about two and one-half cents, according to Commerce Department statistics.

Volume was larger in October from all of the 19 principal supplying areas except Honduras, Cuba, Ecuador, Peru, Ethiopia, Madagascar, and Belgian Congo.

There was an extraordinary increase from Portuguese Angola.

THE PETROLEUM OUTLOOK FOR 1959. Our February Monthly Letter contains a detailed study of the current situation in the oil industry, answering such questions as "Is consumption likely to rise this year?" "Are inventories in balance?" "How strong are prices?" "What will be done about imports?" Our analysts recommend the stocks of 8 integrated companies, which, they believe, offer more value and sell at lower price-earnings ratios than many stocks of comparable quality in other industries. LIFE WITH LARRY THOMPSON

Hypochondriac No Less

I HAVE BEEN writing a story about heart disease, and I almost couldn't finish it because I developed such a bad case of it I felt like rushing to the nearest hospital.

This is a common practice of mine, catching every disease I read about. No matter what it is, I can recall having every symptom described for it.

No one body could hold all the diseases I've thought I had.

If some doctor announced he had discovered a brand new disease, and that the only person in the world who had it was a baby aborigine deep in the bush country of Australia, as soon as I read about the symptoms, I'd know I had that very ailment.

One nice thing about my diseases. I recover from one just as soon as I read about another one.

This rapid recovery probably is what has saved me for so many years.

THERE SURE IS A TOWN of Sawdust, Fla., just like we reported.

I said I couldn't find it on a map, which inspired Margaret R. Bannon, Cocoa Beach, to search through her maps. The only one she could find with Sawdust on it was the North American Van Lines Road Atlas, published by Rand McNally.

But Edward A. Marusa, a Miami real estate broker, not only found Sawdust on a map, but had one sent to me. It is a "sectional map" prepared with taxpayers' money by the Department of Agriculture at Tallahassee.

It shows about everything except roads, and is the best general map of the state I've ever seen, though I'd hate to get lost on a country road with nothing else to go by.

The best proof, though, about Sawdust doesn't come from a map but from Mrs. John J. Pollak, 117 NW 99th St., who was born there.

She questions that Sawdust deserves the title of a town, but adds: "It is a community of wonderful people. It has a country store and at one time there was a post office."

If you want to visit Sawdust, it is 14 miles north of Hosford, seven miles west of Quincy, and about 520 miles north, northwest of Miami, in Gadsen County.

SPEAKING OF YOUNG OLD people, as we like to do, a Mrs. Clayton Princeton, says that Albert Nelson, Clearwater, will be 101 years young in July. She says that he loves baseball and people and has a good memory. He would need one to remember all those years, and we salute him.

IN CASE OUR OLD SONGS and Poems Musical and Literary Society needs an executive secretary, Mrs. O. A. Carroll, 18730 SW 316th St., Homestead, would qualify, at least for the music department

Her brother, G. D. Woods, 1129 NW 116th St., who is an Old Oakie and therefore a man of unquestioned standing, says that Mrs. Carroll has a library of 25 leather bound volumes of sheet music given to her by an uncle in 1913.

This uncle had a hobby of collecting sheet music and it seems that he collected about everything ever published before 1913 in the way of songs.

A FELLOW NAMED Marty Wucher must be quite a fellow. He and his wife are members of the Sabal Palm Elementary PTA. When that group decided to put on a musical to raise money, he got stuck with about every job connected with it.

He wrote it, had the scripts typed, got the costumes, then directed it, and is doing everything except sing a quartet by himself.

The production, "Alice's Wonderland, Broadway," will be given Friday night at North Miami Beach High School.

It'll include a hot Charleston number in which the modern moms and teachers will make like flappers. I don't think Mr. Wucher takes part in that either.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♥	Pass	2 ♦
Pass	2 NT.	Pass	3 NT.
Pass	Pass	Pass

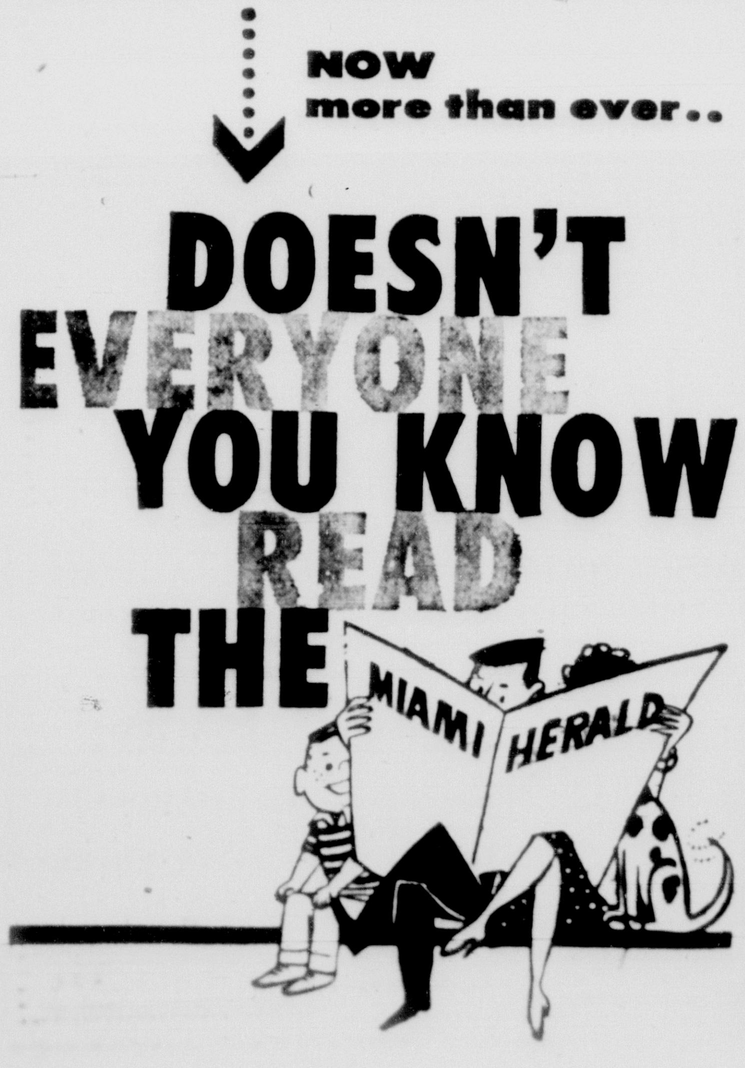
Opening lead: Five of ♠.

In countless situations the correct bid is a matter of choice. In some cases the player is faced with an out and out guess. In others, the type of strategy should be dictated by the character of the partner. One course may seem appropriate with an optimistic partner, whereas a different choice might be made with one who is known to hold the middle of the road.

South's rebid today after his partner's two diamond takeout is the one in question. When I saw the hand played in a recent tournament, one South actually chose to raise partner to three diamonds, and while technically such action cannot be labeled wrong, strategically it must be looked upon as an error. After the raise North chose to try for game in the minor, whereupon East led the queen of clubs and the result was a one trick set.

The recommended rebid by South is two no trump which North, of course, will be happy to raise to three, a contract which no lead by West can defeat. Actually West will lead the five of spades, and declarer should not yield to the temptation of finessing. With 10 tricks in sight and the king of clubs open to attack, should East obtain the lead, grabbing tactics are indicated.

The importance of protecting the strength of your hand from an opening attack is not to be overlooked. Possession of a guarded king should induce a player to try to become declarer. With this thought in mind the better strategic opening by South would have been one no trump. North's proper response is three no trump. Once again the direct method proves superior, and South is charged with a demerit for opening with one heart.



NOW more than ever..

Jack Kofoed Says

Little Bardot Bad For Growing Girls

BRIGITTE BARDOT has revamped the sex appeal motif in the entertainment business.

Until her appearance on the scene, Marilyn Monroe, Jayne Mansfield, Diana Dors, and other damsels more noted for the size of their bosoms than acting talent, had a monopoly on the limelight.

This was a throwback to the days of Lillian Russell and Kitty Gordon, when even the suggestion of a pencil silhouette, such as became popular in the 20s would have caused consternation.

Brigitte is by no means the straight up-and-down type, and her specialized appeal seems to be that she wears less clothes than any other performer before the cameras.

There's no denying BB makes a pretty picture, but her influence is not beneficial, more harmful to very young girls than to those of the opposite gender.

This is noted particularly in the case of a 14-year-old English lass named Gillian Hills. At 14 a girl is usually demure, unsophisticated, just beginning to develop into womanhood. Not Gillian.

With a figure like Bardot, and the same uninhibited desire to show off her figure, Miss Hills is gaining the sort of attention a 14-year-old shouldn't get. Her mother seems in accord with the sexpot routine.

When asked if the girl had quit school, her mater replied: "Of course, she has. There's no time for that sort of thing now."

No time for school. No time for innocent things a child of that age is expected to do, and finds fun in doing. It's too bad. A girl who starts a sexpot career at 14 grows old and disillusioned far too soon.

Of all people, you'd expect her mother to realize that, but apparently Mrs. Hills is different.

ROSS SOBEL, the Westview golf pro, tells about two partners, who were worrying about the firm's debts, and hadn't enough cash to meet those obligations.

After awhile they went out for a cup of coffee. One partner, wanting to change the subject, said: "What about the Taft-Hartley Bill?"

"Ah, the heck with it," the other answered. "Let them wait like everybody else."

SEN. WILLIAM Fulbright has taken over as head of the Foreign Relations Comittee, and in my book this is a heartening change. Sen. Fulbright does not see Secretary of State John Foster Dulles in the same adoring light President Eisenhower does. As a matter of fact, he has a feeling that Mr. Dulles is less than adequate, and our foreign policy is a horse-and-buggy job in a jet age.

Fulbright's predecessor was a fine old gentleman of 91, keen for his age, and energetic, but 91 is too heavy a burden to carry in such a game as this.

The Foreign Relations Committee has considerable power, but under Sen. Greene did not utilize it. The committee may now assess the moves of Mr. Dulles with a more critical attitude, and it is to be devoutly hoped that it will.

NOTES ON A SHABBY CUFF:

If Willie Mays complains about an $80,000 salary, why is Ernie Banks satisfied with $40,000. Willie isn't twice as good as Ernie . . . Leo Fox, general manager of the Dania jai alai fronton, and his lovely missus celebrated their 15th wedding anniversary . . . The Hollywood Beach Hotel Country Club's golf course has had a heavier play this year than ever before in its history.

Young Terry Brennan, fired as football coach at Notre Dame, proved himself one of the smartest fellows in his ulcer-inducing business. He has given up football to join an investment firm.

The antique show at Bayfront auditorium beginning Feb. 12 will have exhibits from all over the world . . . Hugey Barrett, one of the best liked musicmen in Our Town, will be out of North Shore hospital any day now . . . They had a competition in Pack 8 Den 5 of the Cub Scouts to pick the best reasons why the young fellows wanted to be Cubs. Donald Baggett wrote: "I like to be a Cub Scout, because it teaches me how to get along with other boys, and to help others."

If we could all learn that, this would be a pretty good old world.

TALKING of old timers reminds me of a brother team, Andrinua and Bari, who play jai alai at the Dania fronton. Years of racing up and down the concrete flooring of canchas all over the world have taken a toll of their legs, but their knowledge accumulated over the years enables them to outfox many a youngster boiling with the desire to win. As the politician seeking re-election always says, there is no substitute for experience.

THAT'S LIFE

When a chance acquaintance stops me
With a tearful tale of strife,
If it really doesn't "get me"
I say, "Cheer up, pal . . . THAT'S LIFE."
When my own woes seem to press me,
And they cut me like a knife,
I could cuss the calloused so-and-so
Who tells me: "Well . . . THAT'S LIFE!"
This is just an allegory
And it isn't strictly true,
But I trust you get the point, pal . . .
It makes a difference WHO!
(I mean, it's one thing when it's ME . . .
Another, when it's YOU!)

Tests Put Dade High Schoolers Above U.S. Average

Our Kids Brightest in U.S., Hall Says

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

Dade County high school students are among the brightest in the country, School Superintendent Joe Hall said Wednesday.

The average freshman here is "well above both state and national averages" in both knowledge and ability to learn, he said.

Hall's remarks, made to the Dade School Board, were based on a state-wide testing program of ninth graders carried out last fall. Results of the performances of pupils in Dade schools were released Wednesday.

However, lest pupils in the higher scoring schools become swell-headed, Hall refused to identify any of them in the report. They were listed by code numbers instead of by name.

"It would be a mistake if the student body of one school were to be known as the intellectually elite while another is identified as a dumb group," he said.

The report did show a good deal of difference in both intelligence and performance of students in the various schools.

A school identified only as "Code No. 0108," for example, scored in the top one per cent of white Florida schools on each of five separate measures of educational development. It ranked among the top two per cent in the intelligence of its pupils.

But another white school, Code No. 0116, scored below both the Florida and the national averages in all but one area of achievement. This was in spite of the fact that its pupils were above average in intelligence.

Negro schools were considered separately, but the same pattern prevailed with some scoring well above the state average, and a few falling below.

Hall said the tests will show which junior high schools need improving, as well as their areas of greatest weakness.

His refusal to name the schools was challenged by Board Member Jess Yarborough, who said:

"It seems to me this is just like football. You can play it smart or you can play it dumb, but either way the public knows all about it."

The scores of individual pupils will, however, be given to parents on a special report card which carries an admonition that "individual test scores are personal. Good taste dictates that they not become a matter of public concern."

The Town Crier

BY Jack Bell

OUR HOSS SHOW program—two weeks long this year—opens tonight at Dinner Key. This in town show runs through Sunday night. Then the horses move to the South Miami Riding Club for competitions next Friday Saturday and Sunday.

BELL

More than 450 horses, including 170 out-of-state entries, are stabled in the area waiting for the two competitions. The well-established Dinner Key competitions, now sanctioned by the American Horse Show Association, are "all set." The boxes are sold. Trophies have been bought and everything's ready for the seven competitive programs. The opener tonight will be followed by afternoon and night shows the next three days.

Dinner Key's profits go to the Cancer Institute at Miami. The South Miami club has chosen Variety Children's hospital as its recipient. Y'see, these big time show hoss owners would be horrified at the thought of getting money for winning. They want it to go to charity, and I'm sure on their side.

The biggest entry comes from Al Frohock and the Greynolds Park stables, 32 stalls. Bob Mannix, equitation instructor and a member of the American Horse Show Association board, is with this outfit. Candy Schaffer's stable has 17 entries, Sue Hammond and her Dixie Lily stable have about a dozen. Cary Latimer will ride, too.

As for South Florida, everybody with a horse or two is in.

Soup's On

Is it true Jump for Joy is closing, then reopening as a new show, Natives are Dancing?

Musical History

Perhaps never in University of Miami symphony history has there been a concert equal to that of Sunday and Monday evenings. We've learned what a master conductor can do with student and professional musicians, in the three concerts conducted by Fabien Sevitzky. He will conduct the symphony this weekend.

And with Sevitzky, as soloist, will be a really grand old man of the romantic school, 82-year-old Ernst von Dohnanyi. He will play his Piano concerto in B Minor.

This genius, born in Hungary in 1877, was conductor of the Budapest Philharmonic for 30 years.

The Concerto he will play here had its world premiere in London, the Royal Philharmonic under Sir Thomas Beecham.

Verily, these will be concerts to remember.

A Big Kitty

Bayshore Women's Golf Association played a tournament one morning last week. There was $75 in the kitty for prizes. They tossed the $75 into the hospital collection, making the total $1,084.67.

City Must Answer Suit

Circuit Judge Robert H. Anderson denied a motion Wednesday to dismiss a suit filed by two traffic offenders seeking to outlaw Miami Municipal Court and to have about a million dollars in city fines refunded.

Anderson gave attorneys for the city, who filed the motion to dismiss the suit, 15 days in which to answer the suit.

The suit was filed last Oct. 22 by Oise Keton, who was fined $50 for drunk driving, and Gene C. Russo, charged $15 for running a stop sign.

15 New Schools Planned

But Classroom Shortage Stays

Dade County school children will get 15 new schools next fall, but no relief of the classroom shortage is in sight, school officials said Wednesday.

The new buildings will have 360 classrooms — not quite enough to take care of the expected increase in enrollment, much less erase the present 300-room deficit.

"Those temporary wooden classrooms still, look mighty permanent," said one administrator.

The doleful tale of growing school needs and uncertain finances was told at a briefing session for board members held before the regular meeting.

The coming money crisis is at least a year away, however, the three members who attended the session were told. Cash is on hand for the 15 new schools scheduled for opening next September.

But in 1960, Dade County will have to raise an estimated 10 million dollars for new school buildings and additions, D. R. Snyder, assistant superintendent in charge of the physical plant, told the board members.

The estimate was based on expected construction of new housing, much of it in the booming South Dade area, between now and the fall of 1960, Snyder said.

The key to raising the 10 million dollars for those classrooms will lie with the State Legislature, according to Edwin R. Hilgendorf, assistant superintendent for business services.

Even with the proposed construction, the county's shortage of classrooms is likely to increase, according to Frank Sloane, director of research for the school system.

Only bright spot has been a slight lag in expected enrollments, he said.

Commission Votes For Turnover, 4-1

By JOHN MORTON
Herald Staff Writer

After a seven-year search, the proposed Interama Cultural and Trade Center finally found a home Wednesday.

Miami Commissioners voted 4-1 to turn over the city's 1,765-acre Graves Tract to the Inter-American Center Authority.

Purpose of the center — a permanent "fair" expected to cost about 30 million dollars when completed—is to promote cultural and business relations between Miami and Latin American nations.

Authority Member William D. Pawley told commissioners the land the city originally acquired for less than $500,000 could eventually be worth 45 million dollars when the authority develops the entire tract as an Inter-American Center.

For the land Miami will receive bonds equal to its appraised value, estimated to be worth seven million dollars undeveloped.

Said Pawley:

"No single act by an official body in Dade county could be more far-reaching for the future economic and cultural well-being of the area."

He predicted the financing arrangements would be worked out in several months.

At last," he said, "all of the principal obstacles to the project are removed."

The project—known by various names down through the years — was first envisioned by the late Mayor E. G. Sewell in the 1920s.

Through the years it has picked up various degrees of backing from the state, U.S. and private interests, but always bogged down on the point: How do we finance it?

The agreement passed Wednesday is based on four-way cooperation among the city, county, state and Interama board.

Here are the major provisions on each level:

MIAMI—The city will give a deed to the Graves Tract to the Interama authority. In exchange, the city will receive authority bonds equal to the appraised value of the land.

DADE COUNTY—Will put up $500,000 for administrative expenses of the authority for the next two years.

STATE—Legislation will be asked to allow the Metro and Miami Commissions each to name three members of the authority. The members will serve until the authority debt to both the city and county is repaid. Endorsement of the plan by Gov. LeRoy Collins, who names authority members, also was requested.

AUTHORITY—Interama must borrow money to finance the development of the center. It must fill and bulkhead the land necessary for building the center.

Commissioner Otis W. Shiver, an authority member who has led the efforts to get Miami approval of the plan, introduced the resolution as a "major milestone in the growth—both economic and cultural—of the entire area."

Commissioner James W. High cast the lone opposing vote asking for "more time to study the proposal."

Slams His Public Relations Staff

McSherry Wants More Cash To Tell 'The Airport Story'

By LEO ADDE
Herald Staff Writer

$13,500
$13,500
$9,000
$6,800

AGEY TROXEL MASSMANN ROLLASON

Port Authority Director George McSherry, who has $43,750 in public relations talent available for airport work this year, said Wednesday he plans to ask his Metro Commission bosses for more.

Four of the five public relations men now at work for the county are either inexperienced or unsatisfactory, McSherry said. The fifth, freelance columnist and publicist Jim Maxwell, is in the running for a new, permanent public relations job at the Port Authority, the director said.

McSherry has commissioned Maxwell, on a $950 one-shot contract, to report on "what's wrong with airport public relations."

"I'll admit I can't figure out the situation," McSherry said. "Here we are, just finishing the biggest and best airport in the world. It will earn for the county two million dollars a year in non-aeronautical contracts alone. And yet, nearly everything I read about myself and the airport is critical."

Maxwell, now a non-paid columnist for the weekly North Dade Journal and once — for a few weeks — a Miami News reporter, said he will make his report to McSherry alone, and not release it to the press.

"I suppose my chances of getting a permanent Port Authority public relations job depends on how highly McSherry regards my report," Maxwell said.

McSherry now has available for public relations:

1. Hoyt Agey and Dick Troxel, the county's $27,000-a-year publicity consultants.

2. Paul Massmann, who has offices at the airport, across the hall from McSherry's, but who says he "spends less than 25 per cent of my time on Port Authority business."

Massmann was hired at $9,000-a-year as senior consultant for Interama, when that trade center was under consideration as a Port Authority project.

Massmann retains the same pay and title, although Interama is divorced from the Port Authority.

3. Wendell Rollason, $6,800-a-year public information officer for McSherry, and former ramp supervisor for the Port Authority. Rollason was also hired as an Interama consultant.

McSherry said he turned down Metro Commissioners' offer of Troxel and Agey services more than a year ago, when he first requested public relations aid.

"Without going into details, I didn't think they filled the bill," McSherry said. Troxel, however, was brought in to handle last week's terminal dedication.

Massmann and Rollason, McSherry said, are "not experienced in doing the kind of public relations work we need."

McSherry said he would review the Maxwell report with Metro Commission Chairman Walter Weiss before approaching the entire board with a request for a new public relations man.

Court OKs North Dade Water Deal

By PHIL FORTMAN
Herald Staff Writer

The Dade Metro Commission has the power to regulate water supply and sewage disposal facilities in the county, but since it isn't doing anything about it, North Miami Beach can go ahead and buy a private water and sewer plant, the State Supreme Court in Tallahassee ruled Wednesday.

The high court upheld the Dade Circuit Court's validation of $5,445,000 in bonds to enable the city to acquire the sewage treatment plant and facilities of the North Dade Water Co.

It also upheld the Circuit Court's validation of $2,909,000 in bonds so the city can buy the private utility's water plant and mains.

The state attorney, in a test case, opposed the validation, contending that under the Dade home rule charter, North Miami Beach should have gotten a permit from the Dade Commission before issuing the bonds.

But the court, in an opinion by Justice E. Harris Drew, said that though the Metro county commissioners have the power to regulate water and sewer improvements, the power has no effect until the commissioners exercise it.

"Until the county commissioners properly exercise the power which they have, but are not required to exercise, the power of municipalities within Dade County . . . with regard to water supply and sewage disposal is unimpaired," the court said.

The North Dade Water Co. is owned by Nathan Rood, a private developer. Its plant facilities are at NW 175th St. and 29th Ave. The firm provides water and sanitary sewer facilities for about 3,500 homes in unincorporated area home projects near North Miami Beach, Frank Sepede, the city's water department superintendent said.

Joe Miller, Jr., a North Miami Beach council spokesman, said the city plans to acquire the property within 45 days.

The city does not plan to install sanitary sewers within its boundary for another six or seven years, Miller said.

HUSICK

YARAS

Suspect Nabbed on 5th Green

Partner Also Held In Armed Robbery

By AL FINKELSTEIN
Herald Staff Writer

Police Wednesday arrested a suspect in a 24-hour-old robbery and international money-switching scheme on a Miami Beach golf course.

Dave Yaras, a small-time Chicago hood, "played" into the hands of two detectives on the fifth green at Bayshore Golf Course.

He was arrested by Lt. C. W. Huddleston and Detective A. H. (Red) Leonard.

Minutes later, in another section of the Beach, Yaras' alleged accomplice, Benjamin Husick, 39, was picked up for the 17th time in his rackets-filled career.

He was watching television in his home at 945 W. 48th St. when Detectives Dave Richards, Jack Webb, Lou Reilly and Ed Patton arrested him.

Both were charged with vagrancy and armed robbery. Lt. Huddleston said a third suspect in Tuesday's holdup of a plush DiLido Island home was expected to be arrested early today.

Huddleston said Husick and Yaras were "positively identified" by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Vasquez as two of the trio that attempted to con them out of $175,000 in Cuban pesos with a put-up holdup.

They got away with $3,500 in jewelry, instead. Vasquez hadn't brought the sackful of pesos to close the deal as Husick had planned, police said.

The Philadelphia-born Husick palmed himself off in previous meetings with the Vasquezes as an investment broker named "Tony Valoni."

Police said he was so "convincing" that Mrs. Vasquez — known in Cuban rebel circles as Marisol Alba, and suspected as informer for Batista — allowed Husick to open the door when the bandits knocked.

The trio had planned to hold onto the pesos until they could be exchanged later without suspicion for American dollars in Havana, police said.

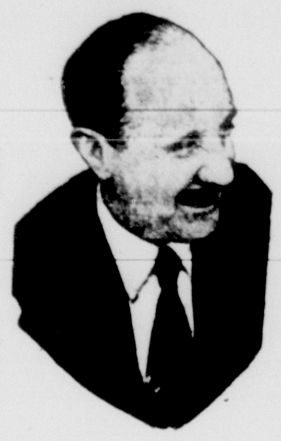
Nightlife with George Bourke

Benny's Nightclub Invasion Frolics to a Sweeping Victory



TWICE NIGHTLY — at something around 9:30 and later near oneish in a repeat for the late coast — Ben Novack's enlarged La Ronde Room of the Fontainebleau Hotel is converted these evenings into a 500-inch television screen. On it is shown, live, in color and in 3-D a sort of commercial-free, pay - as - you-guzzle version of a talent which has enjoyed high Hooper, Trendex or what-have-you ratings on the airwaves for what seems to have been 39 years.

That "39" should be a clue. The talent is that of Jack Benny, who is essaying his first excursion into cafe show business, excepting a pair of previous dates in Las Vegas, in modern times and a "concert" at the old Floridian here in the 20's for Mert Wertheimer.

Yup, the Jack Benny you get at the Fontainebleau is the same past-master of the off-hand delivery, the identical perfectionist of the long-suffering petulant pose, a happy carbon of the professional protestant of the state of perpetual middle-age, and a soft-key echo of the familiar character who is uncertainly unsure of himself and covers it with self-effacing boastfulness.

Amusements

THESE MATTERS are not the usual fare for cafes.

The habitual pub-crawler might complain that Mr. Benny doesn't have "an act," even with some business with Gisele MacKenzie, who sings, looks and plays the violin with memorable charm, and with Chiquita and Johnson, a pair of exciting dancers. That well might be—by night club standards—but if Mr. Benny doesn't have "an act" then somebody had a charm ray gun concealed somewhere in the wings and was wafting waves of winning stuff audience-wise at the show we caught.

Mr. Benny doesn't overwhelm or shock you in the manner that the Ritz Brothers or Louis Prima and Keely Smith might but when you look at your watch and find he has been on stage something like 40 minutes and it didn't seem like 10 you know you have been watching a personality with class and show savvy at work.

He relies almost completely on techniques and routines already proven audience-proof. He chatters topically and about show business. He fiddles in solo and in duet with Miss MacKenzie and allows an intrusion of the dance team to bring his famous expression of resigned tolerance to his face. And, in his only departure into un-television lines, he makes a mildly daring comparison of the bags under Phil Harris' eyes to the anatomy of a female.

Jack Benny
. . . victor

Bennett Cerf
. . . quake?

Jerry Brooks
. . . home

In her solo spot Miss MacKenzie is as clean and refreshing as one of her native Canadian summer breezes. In gimmick-free voice she enchants with a repertory which ranges from a French folk song to a medley of Broadway hit tunes of the Rodgers and Hammerstein variety. You won't learn any new dirty or boorish jokes from Benny and MacKenzie but you won't be bored either.

'Viva Cuba' Rushed to Theaters

WARNER BROTHERS is rushing prints of Carl Dudley's "Viva, Cuba!" out to the theaters to take advantage of the headlines . . . Did you know that the National Suit and Coat Recovery Board is meeting at the EmPRESS Hotel? Wonder if their theme song is "Look for the Silver Lining."

A Los Angeles periodical states: "The foul Florida weather has already put 'Operation Petticoat' behind schedule." Ouch, fellers, my sunburn hurts when we laugh!

Add intriguing names: Dawn Greenhalgg, a member of the Canadian Players who will present "As You Like It" at Barry College Auditorium on Feb. 21. Actually she's Mrs. Ted Follows, wife of the troupe's co-star . . . Jimmy Grippo, hypnotist and card manipulator, mesmerizing a steak at Charcoal Hut in Surfside . . . Now there's swank King Arthur's Court in Miami Springs Villas, and there's King Arthur Drive-In on Coral Way. They are not related.

Janet Tanned--By Florida Sun

JANET

If you have an old key ring unused around the house you might ship it off to movie actress Janet Leigh at the Saxony Hotel on Miami Beach or to the Key Wester in Key West.

Miss Leigh, in the course of a three-city tour of theaters showing her latest film "The Perfect Furlough," last night picked up three keys to city from the mayors of Coral Gables, Miami and Miami Beach.

A low-cut sheath gown of black satin, with a gold flower pattern, revealed generous areas of tanned flesh — and in response to fellow actor Guy Rennie's questions in an interview on the Miami Theater stage, she deftly side-stepped the issue of California weather versus Florida's — but admitted that the tan was a Florida product.

"I don't have time for sunning at home," she said.

Poitier Story: Dishwasher To Top Star

Sidney Poitier . . . unlimited

SIDNEY POITIER'S career is rocketing. He clicked in "The Defiant Ones" movie. He is one of the stars in the upcoming "Porgy and Bess" flicker. And he is starring in a new play, "A Raisin in the Sun," which won raves in the tryout towns . . . About a decade ago Poitier was toiling as a dishwasher. And during that period, he often slept on the roof of a Broadway building. Very soon, his name will light up the Broadway skies. In this case, a rocket to the stars began in the darkness.

* * *

Kim Stanley . . . unique

ONE OF THE STRANGER phenomenons of our times is the willingness of luminaries to publicly expose the dark corners of their lives. There was a time when people would confide only to skull-shrinkers while being stretched across a couch. Nowadays, the couch has no boundaries. It extends to mags, dailies and books. The latest Tell-It-All is actress Mary Astor's tome—wherein she details her personal sorrows, romantic complications, bouts with alcoholism and many other privacies.

The fascination of such confessions is easy to explain. Everybody is interested in the other person's troubles.

* * *

KIM STANLEY, who is co-starring in "A Touch of the Poet," is a unique actress. She established a precedent several seasons ago by demoting herself from stardom in "Bus Stop" to featured billing. In Miss Stanley's judgment, it wasn't a star's role. We record it here—since a modest actress is news.

* * *

Margaret O'Brien . . . unusual

THE FOREGOING recalls Oscar Wilde's classic: "Actors are so fortunate. They can choose whether they will appear in a tragedy or in a comedy, whether they will suffer or make merry, laugh or shed tears. But in real life it is different. Most men and women are forced to perform parts for which they have no qualities. The world is a stage, but the play is badly cast."

* * *

You realize that tempus really fugits when the papers disclose Margaret O'Brien is 21 and altar-bound. She was one of the most remarkable child actresses. While film-making, a director told the 6-year-old to weep during the scene. The tot looked up at him and inquired: "How far down do you want the tears to fall?"

* * *

LATEST melancholy glama-killer starred Hedy Lamarr. The beautiful actress, who was once loved by millions, is now suing her estranged husband. She described him as "the only man I ever loved." And she is suing because she is "broke, tired and sick."

The sad story confirms a basic fact of life: All girls are Girls. They have similar desires and find gratification the same way. Nothing is as democratic as a kiss—or a heartache. And substitutes for love—whether they are called "Career" or "Duty" or "Success"—represent the ultimate in folly. There is no substitute for love any more than there is a substitute for life. Love is Life. In short, stardom is not as wonderful as the love that puts stars in your eyes.

'The Trap' Clicks as Melodrama

IN BRIEF — Crime syndicate stubs its toe in efforts to corrupt the law out West.

Movie Review

"The Trap," at the Flamingo, Riviera and Paramount Theaters," is one of those desert town action melodramas which have been missed since Humphrey Bogart used to do them so menacingly some years ago.

This one tells the basic story of a crime syndicate's efforts to isolate a small southwestern town's airport so that a member wanted for murder can be flown out of the country.

Within the fabric of this action is a second story line concerning Richard Widmark's efforts, as the syndicate's lawyer, to get his father, who is sheriff of the town to look the other way while the escape is made.

Complicating the situation are these facts: Father and son have not been on speaking terms for years and Widmark's brother, Earl Holliman, is married to Widmark's former sweetheart, Tina Louise, who still carries a torch for her first love.

There's a lot of story and a lot of unrelenting violence crammed into the footage — and naturally some of it gets in the way of smooth story telling. But on the level of knock-'em-down-drag-'em-out melodrama and blood-letting (it's in color!) "The Trap should more than satisfy.

Chief trouble is that too many loose ends are tied up too patly to bring about the ending.

Spicy Comedy a la Paree

'Perfect Furlough' High Fun

IN BRIEF — Rollicking comedy, with some Gallic-type spice about a GI on the not so loose in Paris.

By GEORGE BOURKE
Herald Amusement Editor

Movie Review

"The Perfect Furlough," at the Carib, Miami and Miracle Theaters, is a spicy bit of American comedy, localed in Paris, in a manner of speaking, and dealing with the frustrations of a GI who won a date with a movie star—but just couldn't get around to executing it.

If a film starring Janet Leigh and Tony Curtis, with Keenan Wynn, Linda Cristal and Elaine Stritch in support, can be considered in the category of a "sleeper" — an unanticipated success — then "The Perfect Furlough" is a wide-awake sleeper.

Blake Edwards directed with a delightfully adult comedy hand and it is easy to see why he has already been voted several honors for his work on this film.

Story line takes romantic conniver Curtis, a corporal assigned to an Arctic base to keep his urges for the opposite sex in the deep freeze, into Paris, where he is supposed to frolic as a proxy for the 140 other GI's in his command who could not come.

But aware of his past escapades the officers in charge of the stunt assign Janet Leigh and Les Tremayne as a buffer to see that he is never alone with his date, Miss Cristal. The results of Curtis's efforts to evade the barrier are hilarious and should not be detailed here for fear of spoiling the fun.

Suffice it to state that the climax revolves around a case of mistaken paternity — or rather two or maybe three cases of mistaken paternity.

Hope Out With Eye Ailment but Benny, Grable, Others on Hand

Despite the enforced absence of Bob Hope, tonight's benefit Show of Shows for Variety Children's Hospital affords the bargain of the year for fans interested in seeing a grand array of stars in one program.

In announcing Hope's withdrawal because of an eye ailment, Sammy Walsh, producer of the Miami Beach Auditorium show, emphasized that the program still offers "the greatest array of show business stars in the country" including Hope's famous and friendly rival, Jack Benny, and lovely Betty Grable.

"We will open at 8:15 as scheduled," Walsh said, "and some of the best names in show business will fill in for Hope." He said George DeWitt, Paul Gray, Harry Richman and others will share the emcee role.

There is also a good possibility, Walsh said, that comedian George Gobel will appear.

Walsh said he talked at length Tuesday with Hope and the comedian's eye specialist, a Dr. Beagleman. Although Hope urged his doctor to let him make the trip, Dr. Beagleman insisted that a blood clot in the optic area made it imperative that Hope get immediate rest and continued medical attention.

The "Who's Who of Show Business" on tap tonight includes Pat Henning, Rudy Vallee, Jerry Lester, Nancy Donovan, Herkie Styles, Alan Gale, Damita Jo, The Treniers, Buddy Rich, Rosette Shaw, Paul Gray, Gloria Blake, Harvey Bell and Jody, Bobby Hackett, Diosa Costello, Milos Velarde, Don Casino, Harry Richman, Billy Gilbert, Duke Ellington, Pupi Campo, Darryl Stewart, Richard Roberson, The Szonys, Tina Robin and Jackie Heller.

Choice tickets still are available for the three-hour, star-filled program, and can be purchased at the Miami Beach Auditorium. Prices range from $2.50 to $20.

Cabbies 'Hungry,' Beach Told

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

Miami Beach taxi drivers, longtime foes of the airport limousine drivers, complained to the city council Wednesday they were oppressed, broke and hungry.

Twenty minutes later, Saul Weingarten, director of the Beach Better Business Bureau, complained that cabbies get "turkey money" or pay-offs from restaurants and motels for steering in patronage.

Ex-Governor Fuller Warren pleaded the "pitiful plight" of his taxi driver clients who want strict terminal-to-terminal regulations against the 85 Beach limousines which they claim have a near monopoly on the profitable hotel-airport business.

Drivers bemoaned hotel "courtesy buses."

The limousine service contends it charges $1.75 for the hotel-airport hop while taxi fare runs $4 and up.

9 Miamians Certified as Accountants

They were: Joseph Feld, Allen F. J. Liehr, Martin I. Rosenberg, Edward W. Benjamin, W. Charles Becker, Myles F. Dudley, Stanley B. Goldstein, Raymond A. Ross and Leonard A. Burt.

Eleven other Miamians, who also successfully passed their examinations but did not have the required amount of experience to be awarded a CPA certificate were:

Donald Chaiken, Laurie S. Holtz, Alan J. Strelser, Herbert D. Katz, R. Cranstoun Reinoso, Robert M. Blacker, Herman S. Schlussel, Maurice Friedland, Sidney M. Unterberg, Ira I. Bigman and Jay Howard Rossin.

J. D. A. Holley, chairman of the State Board of Accountancy, Tallahassee, who made the announcements, said 64 out of 383 students in the state who wrote the exams won CPA ratings.

Helicopter Too Strong

The Coast Guard tried this week to make its first practical test of towing a stranded vessel with a helicopter, but the towline broke under the copter's power.

The unsuccessful attempt involved the 45-foot cruiser Privateer, which ran aground on a shoal south of Key Biscayne's Cape Florida.

The copter hooked a line to the boat, but the line snapped on the first tug. A 40-foot Coast Guard boat finally pulled the stranded boat to deeper water. Owner William J. Cherret was aboard.

Policemen Give Blood to Negro

Ten Miami policemen have volunteered blood at Jackson Memorial Hospital for the wife of a Negro officer who had already used 45 pints in recovering from an ulcer operation.

Hospital officials said both Negro and white officers volunteered to give blood to Mrs. Farrington, 36, wife of Policeman Prince Farrington, 2741 NW 43rd Ter. The call was put out over police radio by Miami Police Capt. Jack Maddox.

Car Crash Kills Flier Jack Frye

TUCSON, Ariz. —(AP)— Jack Frye, pioneer flier who helped build one of the world's largest air transport firms, died in an Arizona traffic accident. He was 54.

A pilot with a record of 7,000 hours in the air, Frye died when his car smashed into the side of a car that pulled into the road in front of him south of Tucson.

Sheriff's deputies said the impact hurled his body 40 feet. The driver of the other car, identified as Rosabell M. Wright, 42, of Tucson, escaped with minor injuries.

Frye was president of Standard Airlines of Los Angeles in 1927 when the firm pioneered airline service to the East. He also worked as a pilot for the company and flew the first commercial airliners into Phoenix and Tucson.

In 1930, Standard merged into the Western Air Express Corp., and later that year into Transcontinental and Western Airlines, now Trans World Airlines.

He became president of TWA in 1934 when it had a payroll of 600. When he left 13 years later, the firm was a 70 million dollar operation with more than 17,000 employes. Its planes circle the globe.

After leaving TWA, he became president of General Aniline and Film Corp. of New York and later chairman of its board.

Union to Mark 25th Birthday

Members of the Club and Restaurant Employes and Bartenders Union will celebrate the 25th anniversary of Local 133 with a ball Monday night in Bayfront Park Auditorium.

The program will start at 10 p.m. with a variety show, followed by dancing, but the highlight will be judging and crowning of the Queen of Waitresses. Morris G. Drapkin, secretary-treasurer, said Circuit Judges George Holt, Vincent Giblin and J. Fritz Gordon have been asked to judge the events.

Many dignitaries will be introduced, but there will be no speeches, Drapkin promised.

Lahey to Join Nieman Panel

Edwin A. Lahey, chief of the Washington Bureau of Knight Newspapers, has been named by Harvard University Wednesday to the selection committee for the Nieman fellowships.

The fellowships are awarded annually to working newspapermen for a year of study at Harvard.

John B. Johnson, editor and publisher of The Watertown (N.Y.) Times, will be the other newspaperman on the five-man selection committee.

He Just Buys It Back

Home Condemned; Owner Nets $12,800

A Miami home-owner, whose property was condemned for the North-South Expressway, came out of the transaction with a new lot, the same house and $12,800 cash profit.

It was just one of the 321 deals the State Road Department has made for its most recent right-of-way project.

H. M. Armstrong, SRD property manager here, said some property owners are profiting from the condemnation.

The state condemned his home and paid $21,000.

The owner found a suitable lot about four blocks from the old homesite and paid $3,500 for it.

Then he entered a bid of $700 on his original house—and it was accepted by the state. It cost him $4,000 to move the old house to the new lot.

Under condemnation proceedings, the SRD puts homes on the market for public sale by sealed bids.

"It would cost us from $500 to $1,500 to demolish the houses," Armstrong said. "This way, we save the demolition money — and pick up the sale price."

Bids at the latest sale ranged from $27 for a small concrete block structure to $1,883 for a large frame house.

"The frame houses are easier to move," Armstrong said.

Perhaps the biggest bargain was a four-unit CBS apartment building which went for $750.

Armstrong said the state is going to put 26 more houses up for sale Feb. 17.

Judge Levies $200 Fine in Picket Line

Teamster Organizer Ralph Carbone, 43, of 2233 Day Ave., said he would appeal the decision by Judge Mitchell Goldman.

Carbone was charged with illegal picketing after police picked him up carrying his poster near a wholesale grocery truck making deliveries on Miami's Pier 1.

Assistant City Attorney Jack Rice said it is illegal for pickets to picket except on the same side of the street on which the business property being picketed is located.

Lawrence Hollander, Carbone's lawyer, said the arrest and sentence violated the Teamster's constitutional rights.

Health Slips, Then Suicide

Harry Nachman was found dead in the bathroom of his apartment at 7291 Wayne Ave.

Madala Reported In 'Good Shape'

John Madala, Hialeah Race Course's security chief who was shot Jan. 30, was reported in "good condition" Wednesday.

Madala was hit three times with .38 caliber slugs fired by a disgruntled race track tout, Maxim Gay.

The shooting took place in Hialeah's paddock area after Gay accused Madala of "taking away my livelihood." Gay had been ruled off the track.

Gay, unable to make bond, is held in county jail under charges of assault with intent to commit murder with a firearm.

Auto Thief Gets 6 Months

David Alvis Robinson, 24, of 8000 NW 10th Ave., has been sentenced to six months in county jail for stealing an automobile which crashed into another car, killing Mrs. William H. Lingefelt, 37, of 2366 NW 29th St.

Officers said responsibility for the collision could not be fixed but Robinson was on parole at the time under a suspension of sentence for other automobile thefts. Robinson pleaded guilty and sentence was imposed by Criminal Court Judge Ben C. Willard.

Teacher Fired At Filer High

Filer Junior High teacher Evelyn Gray, whose students tossed rocks in class, was fired Wednesday by the Dade County School Board, despite her request for a new hearing.

Her attorney, S. R. Sterbenz, hinted that she might appeal the decision to Circuit Court.

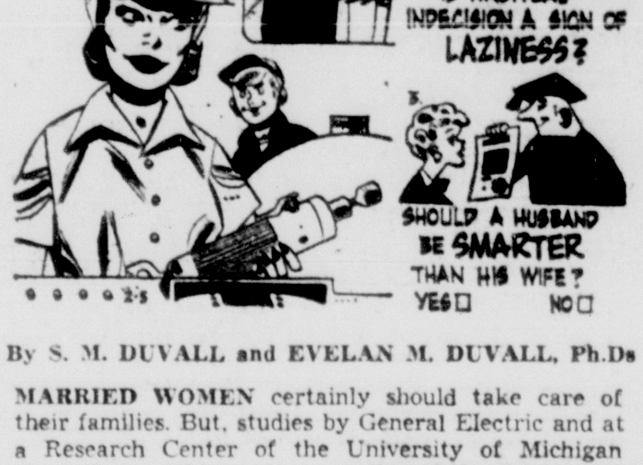
Woman's Place



A WOMAN'S PLACE IS IN THE HOME!
TRUE ☐
FALSE ☐
IS HABITUAL INDECISION A SIGN OF LAZINESS?
SHOULD A HUSBAND BE SMARTER THAN HIS WIFE?
YES ☐
NO ☐

By S. M. DUVALL and EVELAN M. DUVALL, Ph.Ds

MARRIED WOMEN certainly should take care of their families. But, studies by General Electric and at a Research Center of the University of Michigan show that working wives, on the whole, do as well as those who "stay home." There is some evidence to show also, that an active interest in worthy causes gives the children an example of good citizenship, and makes the wife a more interesting person to the husband.

2. No. The person who can't make up his mind may have to work far harder at it than the individual who makes decisions quickly. Chronic indecision is usually an indication of fear of failure. If the uncertain person makes up his mind the wrong way, things may turn out all wrong—the chance the indecisive one finds it unusually hard to take. The anxiety underlying chronic inability to make decisions can sometimes be relieved by psychotherapy.

3. Since this is socially expected, it is usually safer than the other way around. Certainly, too, men with special training, such as doctors or lawyers, can hardly expect competence equal to their own in their fields. Yet a wife should be intelligent and educated enough to meet her husband's friends and their wives on a fairly equal basis. Too great a difference is risky.

ALL THIS adds up to being a TOP moneymaker — and I will even give a TRIAL PERIOD if you are a "Doubting Thomas."

WHY buy a used trailer? When you can buy a brand new one—never lived in—at less than dealer wholesale cost! We are auto dealers — and did sell a lot of House Trailers — but we don't believe the two businesses go together. Hence we are absolutely liquidating our seven remaining Trailers at hundreds of Dollars under our cost. You can see the actual Factory invoice if you wish. Cash preferred but can offer reasonable terms BUT with Sensible Down payment. These are brand new Knox's, Detroiter's, Melody Homes, Travellite's, eight by ten feet wide, some with Front Kitchens, up to fifty feet, including all colored appliances, and low as $2,850 complete. Displayed only at our Trail and South Miami Stores. Open till ten P.M. closed Sundays. L. P. Evans 3345 S.W. 8th Street. L. P. Evans 6150 S. Dixie Hwy.

HERE'S another example of the kind of "VALUE BUYS" that you'll always find in our huge selection of fine automobiles. It's our 1952 CHEVROLET 4-door DELUXE sedan. The interior including the seats, door pannels headliner and floor mats are completely factory original. This is positive evidence of the kind of care that this smooth performer must have had by it's former owner.

And you'll have all the extras to make driving it a pleasure for you. There's POWERGLIDE automatic transmission, a Chevrolet heater, directional signals, clock, the best De Luxe "8" tube push button radio and a way way above average set of Firestone "Gum Dipped" tires.

It's guaranteed in writing by Grentner Bros., for 90 days, and there's no cash needed for the down payment. Just trade in your old model automobile.

Some Race Fans Make Hialeah Look Like An Open Air Library

OPINIONS DIFFER on whether you'll do better at Hialeah playing hunches or studying the past performances of the thoroughbreds. There are loyal disciples of each theory, but the safe conclusion is you can go broke by sticking with either system.

Women are the more avid hunch players. One year at Tropical several ladies cashed in on a horse named "I'm Expecting" because they had friends in that condition.

DOROTHY KIRBY

"How'd you happen to bet that horse?" Dorothy was asked.

"Because I know Herman Talmadge (then governor of her native Georgia) and I thought it was a good hunch," she replied.

Another time at Tropical, the lady of the house suggested that I bet Jellico, 50-1 shot, reasoning, "He's a black horse and you don't like jello."

The hunch was ignored, but you know what I heard when Jellico showed and paid a whopping 40 bucks.

Observations at Hialeah inspire the thought hunch players are outnumbered by those who study past performances. Between races, the place looks like an outdoor library. Fans are reading up on the next race entries — many avidly perusing Joe McLaughlin's Graded Line, others the Morning Telegraph and some the tip cards.

Charts Helpful to Ken Church

JOCKEYS STUDY past performances to familiarize themselves with how their own mounts and other horses have run in the past.

CHURCH

"Most of the time you can get something from past performance records," said Kenny Church, former Canadian who lives in a Miami Springs home with his wife, Nancy, and three children.

"You can find out where the speed will come from and that tips you off as to where you should have your horse in the early part of the race. If the speed horses aren't in front of you, say, it means something is wrong. Having studied the past performances helps you size up the race for the first eighth of a mile. After that you're pretty much on your own, but generally it enables you to ride a much headier race."

How Johnny Ruane Judges Pace

"I WANT TO know who has as much speed as I have so I can judge my pace," Johnny Ruane explains. "I want to know whether I should be on the lead or laying back sixth or seventh. Sometime you can see, for example, where a horse you are to ride has gone to the lead and stopped in his last race. That may indicate I should try to take him back off the pace early and then come on with him from behind in the stretch."

Mrs. Payson

Ruane, 22, is one of the more talented jockeys, although he has been in the United States only four years from his native County Mayo in Ireland. He is under concontract to the Greentree Stable, owned by John Hay Whitney, United States Ambassador to England, and his sister, Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson.

You wouldn't think Johnny was an Irishman until he gets into a spirited conversation. Then he lapses into a pleasantly thick Irish brogue.

* * *

Sellers Keeps an Open Mind

"I STUDY the past performances just to make sure I haven't overlooked anything," says Johnny Sellers, 21-year-old Oklahoman, a free lancer. "But I like to keep an open mind about a horse. I let the trainer tell me how a horse runs and how he wants me to ride him in any particular race. If something unexpected comes up, I may change tactics."

Larry Gilligan, who was coached early in his career by Willie Molter, trainer of Round Table, thinks he gets a lot of information from past performances. He said, "A horse may have finished fifth, but the chart shows he was beaten only by a length or two. A change in post position may be important, or a change in equipment, such as whip or blinkers."

"Reading the past performances has certainly helped me win races," said Mike Kay, apprentice rider of Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's Brookmeade Stable. Last year he was a hopeful exercise boy, awaiting his chance to ride.

"Trainer Elliott Burch goes over the charts with me every morning," Kay continued. "I think it is important to know which horses in a race have the speed. If you have it, too, you don't have to be afraid to go right out there with them at the start. Also, reading the footnotes you may discover a horse which habitually drifts out. You want to stay on the inside of one like that, or he can cost you the race by carrying you wide."

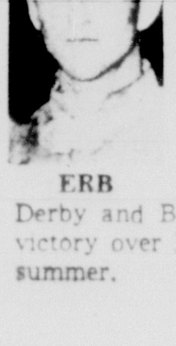
Erb Keeps His Own File

DAVE ERB, who has spent half of his 33 years riding, keeps his own file of charts.



ERB

"I make personal notes on these charts," he explained. "When a race comes up I can go to my file and maybe find something that will help me choose a horse to ride, or help me do better by the one I am riding. This is a business. You've got to work at it like a business."

Erb has done real well at his business. He rode Needles, the Florida-bred, to victory in the Flamingo, Florida Derby, Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes in 1956. He guided Clem to victory over Round Table in record time at Chicago last summer.

Longshot Troilus Turns on Heat in Stretch to Win Hialeah Feature

. . . To Capture Bahamas

By JOE McLAUGHLIN
Herald Turf Editor

Troilus, whose debut here was delayed, did not tarry Wednesday and raced seven furlongs in 1:23 1-5 to capture the $27,100 Bahamas before a sun-drenched crowd of 18,281 at Hialeah.

The Priam 2nd-Drift Song offspring, taking a big step toward the $100,000 Flamingo, did it nicely for Jockey Chris Rogers. Troilus' owner, Bayard Sharp of Middletown, Del., picked up a purse of $17,190.

Troilus came from behind to defeat Elkham Stables' Open View, under Sam Boulmetis, by two and a quarter lengths.

Third was Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Rare Rice, just a nose away from Open View. Fourth, by another length and a half, was The Irishman.

Troilus, who was ninth in his only other Hialeah start, was overlooked in wagering and paid $39.40, $20.80 and $10.30. Open View returned $10.10 and $6.60 while Rare Rice under Bobby Ussery was $4.20 to show.

Troilus lost all chance in his last start when he hit a "sun-spot." Wednesday Trainer Charles Peoples added blinkers to Troilus' equipment.

The favored Octopus, from the Spring Hill Farm of Jim Norris, was tasting defeat for the first time in four starts. He finished fifth. Then came Octopus' stablemate, Easy Spur; Master Palynch, Scotland, Cedar Brook, (who was coupled with Rare Rice) Indian Maid, Quiz Star, Prince's Gem, Rough Tempo, Prybu and Michael's Choice.

Rogers kept Troilus close to the pace throughout. He was third as the field sprang from the gate behind Octopus and Master Palynch. In the stretch Rogers sent Troilus on his way.

After the race, Rogers said: "I worked this horse (Troilus) the other morning and he propped at the three-eighths pole. Today he was running behind the two leaders and when he got dirt kicked in his face he started to throw his head. So I moved him outside a little and he really began to run. I think he is just learning to run."

HOOFBEATS — Dave Neuman's Time Clock carries the same name as the Brookmeade colt which won Hialeah's 1934 Flamingo . . . Leonard Glazier, groom for Octopus and also Easy Spur, worked as an inspector of Navy aircraft engines for Pratt Whitney for nine and a half years . . . Idun impressed in a workout Tuesday between races, and will make her 1959 debut in next Wednesday's Columbiana. The filly champion went seven furlongs in 1:24 3-5 . . . Big Effort sizzled three quarters in 1:11 4-5 from the gate Wednesday, staying right with Oligarchy . . . The Brookmeade filly's speed, however, seems to be all in the morning . . . Natalie was :59 flat for five furlongs, and Hubcap required 1-5 more . . . Pot Corn and Bald Eagle, not together, went six furlongs in 1:13 3-5.

Preps To Fight OB Rental Hike With '58 Figures

By PETE BRATAGER
Herald Sports Writer

The figures, compiled by Miami High Business Manager Bob Conarroe, show the city made an estimated profit of $1,306.20 per game last year off 14 high school football games.

Members of the stadium advisory board have proposed hiking minimum rental from $250-$350 to $650-$750. (The first figure in each case is the cost for opening only one side of the OB; the second is or both sides.)

The advisory board is expected to take action on the rental hike this morning when it meets with Miami High Coach Ottis Mooney, Jackson's Frank Downing, Edison's Haywood Fowle, Coral Gables' Nick Kotys and Archbishop Curley's Sam Scarnecchia.

"According to figures from a report by Podgy Hay (stadium manager), the total expense for using the stadium is $836 for each high school game," said Conarroe.

"The Big Four schools (Edison, Jackson, MHS and Gables) played 14 games in the stadium last year. They had a total attendance of 147,542 fans and paid a total rental fee of $15,655.61.

"That means an average of 10,538 fans for those games, and an average rental of $1,118.25. Revenues from parking and concessions made the average income $2,142.20

"Deduct the $836 for expenses, and the city made a profit of $1,306 per game," concluded Conarroe, who'll present his figures to the board today.

Here is a breakdown of the games played by the Big Four in the OB last season, with the attendance and rental figures:

Edison	5	62,058	$7,223.42
Jackson	4	24,368	2,055.35
Miami	3	33,230	3,815.12
Gables	2	27,886	2,561.62

Callooh Captures Sail Test

By LUTHER EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

NASSAU — With a fantastic performance to windward — the point where sailing races are won or lost — the 42-foot yawl Callooh Wednesday night emerged as unofficial victor in the 21st annual Miami to Nassau yacht race.

Sailed by Emil (Bus) Mosbacher like it's never been sailed before, the green-hulled castoff of two former owners defeated 27 rivals in the 184-mile classic.

Called the 12th fastest boat in the handicap fleet, cleared the finish line at 6:22 p.m. Wednesday, hard in the wake of four supposedly much faster Class A entrants.

Her time allowance of four hours, 12 minutes and 16 seconds gave the Class B boat a corrected time of 25:55.04.

Once the handicaps were figured, nobody else came close to Callooh, borrowed by Mosbacher from Jack M. Brown.

Official confirmation of Callooh's victory however was not immediately forthcoming for a good reason. The race committee was still at sea aboard the Coast Guard cutter Aurora which had taken George Locke's 40-foot sloop Intermezzo in tow earlier in the day after she suffered a broken mast.

"Don't worry about who won," one disgruntled rival crewman said. "Not even Einstein could figure out how to beat Callooh the way she charged to windward on today's last leg."

Callooh held her own in a four-boat fight with Gabriel Giannini's Marie Amelie, Hugh Schaddelee's 55-foot yawl Hilaria, and David Morrison's 55-foot Salty.

First to finish, under the excellent combined helmsmanship of Henry dePont, Charles Dell and Ed Disharron, was Caribbee.

A two-time former Miami-Nassau winner under Carlton Mitchell, Caribbee knifed through Wednesday's white-capped and gusty winds to complete the 184-miles in 29

Wins TV Split Decision

Flanagan Stuns Dupas

ST. PAUL, Minn. —(AP)— Del Flanagan of St. Paul exploited a six-pound weight advantage to gain a split decision over buzzsaw Ralph Dupas in a 10-round welterweight bout Wednesday night. Flanagan weighed 148, Dupas 142.

The victory boosted the veteran St. Paul Irishman's hopes of landing a title shot. Dupas was rated No. 3 welterweight contender by the National Boxing Association Flanagan was fourth.

Referee Johnny Stanton scored the nationally televised fight 97-95 for Flanagan and Judge Dick Delaney had it 98-95 for the St. Paulite. Judge Jimmy Perrault had Dupas ahead, 97-96. The Associated Press scored it 97-96 for Flanagan.

Flanagan discarded finesse to fight the tricky Dupas from a flat-footed stance and landed the heavier wallops.

There were no knockdowns though both fighters were damaged in the early rounds. Flanagan drew blood when he landed a hard left hook to Dupas' nose in the second round. A round later the Irishman opened a cut alongside Dupas' left eye.

Dupas retaliated in the fourth by smashing a hard right near Flanagan's left eye and Del bled occasionally through the bout.

The partisan Flanagan crowd cheered in the final round when Del shoved Dupas through the ropes during a wild flurry. Dupas, seemingly gaining strength in the late rounds, couldn't seize the initiative in the tenth when the fight hung in the balance.

Angelo Dundee claimed the scales were inaccurate and that Flanagan weighed close to 150. Both Dundee and Dupas also wanted to check the official scorecards.

Second across the line, despite being under-rigged for the last 15 hours after losing lower spreaders, was Dick Richardson's Good Hope.

Hilaria, Marie Amelie and Callooh followed Good Hope past the finish buoy. Hilaria got across at 6:16.42; Marie Amelie 6:17.56; Callooh at 6:22.20, and Salty at 6:23.34.

With yachts in every class — A, B and C — still to finish, it was not possible to determine the overall runnerup or divisional victors late Wednesday night.

A possible runnerup was Arial V, second Class B boat to finish and seventh overall. Her elapsed time for the race which started at Miami Beach Tuesday at 9 a.m. was 30:46.09.

With Mosbacher, who handled Vim's wheel in the America's Cup trial, skippering his first Miami-Nassau voyage, Callooh was just another longshot contender until two-thirds of the race was completed.

After two easy-going reaches, the yachtsmen rounded Great Stirrup Cay, some 55 miles from Nassau and found 18 to 25 mile winds pelting in the face.

Previously, locked in a boat-for-boat duel with Horace Binney's 44-foot yawl, Arial V, Callooh immediately began to outfoot every other craft approximating her size.

City Proceeds With Golf Plan

City of Miami is going ahead with plans for its new-type par 3, 4, 5 golf course, and is expected to move toward construction of a new 18-hole layout on LeJeune Road.

Only the return of golf Architect Dick Wilson from Australia is holding up the par 3, 4, 5 project, which would be located next to the Miami Springs course.

Wilson and Robert Trent Jones have submitted bids on the LeJune Road course. City officials also may give Art Mahannah, Riviera golf superintendent, a chance to bid.

James Hilton, public welfare director, said that he and other city staffers "believe the new-type course will be popular once it is in operation." If it's not, Hilton added, it could be changed to a conventional par 3 course.

INDIANAPOLIS — The 500-mile Auto Race, fouled up under a single-file start the last two years, will go back to a 33-car lineup on Memorial Day this year, Anton Hulman Jr., said Wednesday.

"I'm convinced now that the old start, with the cars lined up on the track itself, is what the public wants," said Hulman, owner of the Indianaplis Motor Speedway.

Harris Wins

EL PASO, Tex.—Alton Erickson, deputy state boxing commissioner, indicated Wednesday he would rule Roy Harris the winner of a fight with John Hunt of Tyler by a decision.

Harris, the Texas heavyweight champion, knocked Hunt down in the fifth round of their bout Tuesday night. Hunt got up at the referee's count of nine. But the timekeeper, Saul Paredes, had counted 10.

The fighters continued to exchange punches before the timekeeper rang the bell to stop the fight, claiming Hunt had been knocked out.

Miami Marlin General Manager Joe Ryan, who announced the ticket sale opening, also revealed Wednesday he has purchased Pitcher Nell Held from Baltimore.

Held, a 29-year-old veteran of 11 years in the minors, posted a 7-7 record last year with Vancouver of the Pacific Coast League.

The 200-pound righthander's best season came in 1955—24-7 for San Antonio of the Texas League.

The Stadium ticket office will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily starting Monday. The Baltimore Orioles, who will train at the Stadium, will play their first exhibition against Kansas City on March 8.

The New York Yankees have scheduled six games in the Stadium — including two against World Series rival Milwaukee.

Also due at the Stadium this spring are Pittsburgh, Chicago White Sox, Philadelphia Phils, St. Louis Cards and Washington.

MIAMI BEACH DOG TRACK
ON THE GOLDEN SHORES OF THE BLUE ATLANTIC

Late afternoon—trips to Lakeland, Winterhaven, other cities.

Morning—Chevy panel hustles over causeway to St. Petersburg.

Night—a long run to Punta Gorda and points south.

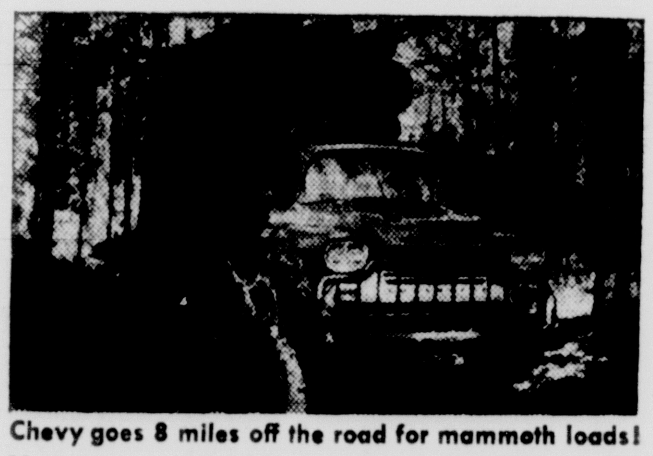
Chevy panel steps lively in Florida...runs day and night, delivers 19.3 miles per gallon!

Fighting the clock every mile, this '59 Chevy panel services west-central Florida daily with on-time newspaper deliveries. The truck is on the go morning, noon and night; it covers as much as 587 miles a day . . . runs so constantly that its engine never cools off completely. Yet Mr. Clark Farber, the Tampa Tribune's circulation manager, reports that this rugged truck is delivering 19.3 miles per gallon! Here's evidence of the money-saving ability and stamina that's making Chevy the solid favorite on tough jobs everywhere.

Any tough job—whether it involves a daily race against time or a bruising high-tonnage grind—becomes strictly routine when you tackle it with a Chevy. Because this year the light, medium and heavy trucks of the Task-Force fleet are out to whip anything that comes their way—and they've got what it takes to do it!

Take the panel pictured above, for example. Powered by the '59 Thriftmaster 6 with new economy-contoured camshaft, it's building a sensational economy record, despite the sizzling pace of its work. That's typical of the way Chevies of all sizes are turning-to on the most challenging jobs in America. Every one of them, including the one for you, comes equipped with the latest in tough truck components, with the right components for the task at hand. The way they're made, they make the hardest hauls look easy!

If you have a job that puts a truck on its mettle, seeing your Chevrolet dealer has never made so much sense. He's waiting nearby with a new stock of work-whipping equipment that can be tailored, precisely, to your specifications.



Chevy goes 8 miles off the road for mammoth loads! Not even the deep woods of southern Louisiana can daunt a Chevy. This truck, working for the Sabine Lumber Company of Zwolle, bulls its way as far as 8 miles off the road, over ruts and jagged stumps; then grinds back out with towering loads of logs. More proof of tough power and stamina!

UM-Irish '63 Date Fades; Flamingo Way Is Rough

ALL University of Miami football hands look forward to the 1960 date (Nov. 12) with Notre Dame here, but hopes for a 1963 rematch have been knocked down. Irish Athletic Director Moose Krause told UM's Jack Harding that Notre Dame will play either Air Force Academy or Syracuse on the 1963 weekend previously considered a possibility for Miami-Notre Dame . . . Don't pronounce Tomy Lee's first name as "Tommy" unless you're picking an argument with Owner Fred Turner. He told Gulfstream Park's Jimmy Donn Jr. on a California visit: "The colt's name rhymes with 'show me,' which is just what he had to do before we could believe our stop-watches. When Tomy Lee was first shipped from England, he was a mournful-looking colt with the flattest knees ever tacked onto a horse. For a month we didn't even consider him worth breezing. Finally he was taken to the track as a pacesetter for one of our more highly regarded runners. Tomy Lee ran away and hid from the other one, and he was on his way." The colt is being pointed for the Florida Derby April 4.

Liston and Louis

NOTE the similarity — in the Sonny Liston-Mike DeJohn TV fight here Feb. 18 — between Liston's stalking, shuffling style and that of old bomber Joe Louis. Liston can hit a lick or two, too . . . Hialeah's betting and attendance decline in an otherwise healthy South Florida season is not so amazing as the fact that the track can get anybody at all to come over from the Miami side along the Flamingo Way route. The street's scarred surface and shoulders suggest some more appropriate name (The Pig-path?) . . . Georgia sounds strong up the middle for its football matches against Florida State (Oct. 31) and Florida (Nov. 7). The Bulldogs have shifted All-America center candidate Dave Lloyd to fullback. Heir apparent at center is Phil Ashe, a rock-tough specimen from, of all places, Stone Mountain.

* * *

A FLAMINGO without a Calumet horse? It's possible, Trainer Jimmy Jones told The Racing Form's Joe Hirsch, pointing to the indifferent recent performances of Numo and the still-doubtful condition of On and On. But don't bet against it until about 1:30 p.m. on Feb. 28. (That's Flamingo Day) . . . The University of Florida considers Bobby Dodd Jr. a sure-fire enrollee. Farther north, though, Davidson College still hopes to land the quarterbacking son of the Georgia Tech coach . . . Slammin' Sam Snead speaks: "LaGorce is the toughest course in the Miami area. But Ponte Vedra is the toughest in the state." . . . Fight Manager Doc Kearns is totally unimpressed by George Raft's movie-tough-guy reputation in jolly negotiations for an Archie Moore-Ray Robinson bout. Calls him "Georgie."

Two USC Recruiters Demoted

LOS ANGELES — (AP) — The University of Southern California Wednesday announced a sweeping reorganization of its athletic program and relieved two recruiters of their duties.

Nick Pappas, field secretary of the alumni association, and assistant football coach Al Davis no longer will recruit athletes. But both will be tendered other positions in the university. Davis may continue as an assistant coach.

The move follows drastic penalties imposed on Southern California by the National Collegiate Athletic Association at its January convention in Cincinnati.

In the new order, the responsibility for contacting prospective athletes will rest in the department of intercollegiate athletics, headed by Athletic Director Jess Hill.

Contributions from alumni and friends of the university for support of athletics will go directly to the university.

KO 'Specialist' Giles Heads Bayfront Fight Card Tonight

They will clash in one of four six-rounders on the card promoted by Major W. H. Peeples.

Giles turned out the lights for Willie Finney in less than a round on Jan. 22. Pearson has performed at Miami Beach in preliminary bouts.

The fights begin at 8:45.

Houston Adds Coach

HOUSTON — (AP) — University of Houston has added Dudley Parker, defensive backfield coach at Baylor the past two years, to its coaching staff. Parker will succeed Red Conkright, who resigned to become coach of Stephen F. Austin College.

Two 100-Mile Auto Races Set at Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH — (AP) — Two 100-mile automobile races and a 1,000 kilometer contest are set for April at the New Daytona International Speedway.

The 100-mile races, one for Indianapolis racers and the other for Formula Libre sports cars, will be held April 4. The 1,000 kilometer event will be run April 5.

The United States Auto Club said it will sanction and supervise six days of high-speed practice runs on the new speedway prior to the April races.

The banked track may be the world's fastest, the club said, and the practice runs will give drivers a chance to build up cautiously to top speed.

Racer Hurt At Tampa

Loetscher's Offenhauser careened into a wall in the first heat of the 15-lap feature. The racer turned over several times and was hit by another auto driven by Mickey McCormick of Hutchinson, Kan.

He suffered a broken arm, fractured ribs and critical injuries. He underwent an operation Wednesday night.

49ers Hire Bengtson

GREEN BAY — (AP) — Phil Bengtson, an assistant coach with the San Francisco 49ers for the last nine National Football League seasons, Wednesday was named defensive coach of the Green Bay Packers.

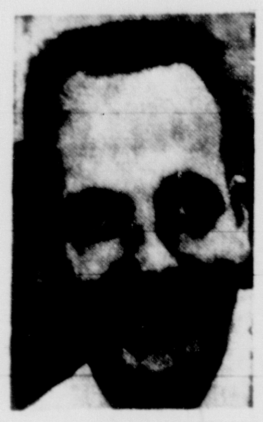
Hot or Cold, Fishermen Want Change

All weathermen should pause for a minute every now and again to give thanks that they cannot control the weather, only guess at it.

If weather control were possible, the weatherman could improve his popularity by turning on a shower over the farmlands; dabbing a dose of sunshine across parks and picnic areas; kicking up a brisk little breeze for sailing events; or perhaps dropping the temperature a few degrees on autumn football afternoons.



DUNAWAY

But he'd still be public enemy number one to anglers. How could you dish out the kind of weather a fisherman wants when the angler himself doesn't even know what that is?

Hark back to a year ago when Florida fuel salesmen were rubbing their hands in delight while everybody else was growling and freezing. Some of the loudest cold-weather complaints came from fishermen.

You'd naturally think that the current mild winter, broken so far by only a couple of well-spaced cold snaps, would have all anglers content and grinning.

Think again.

* * *

Criticism Depends on the Results

IN THE SAME DAY this week I talked to two unacquainted anglers who had just returned from fishing trips to the Ten Thousand Islands. They sang the same song: back-country fishing is terrible. Why? Because the weather has been too warm, of course. Everybody knows it takes cold weather to bunch up the fish back in those bays and rivers.

FISHING
with Vic Dunaway

Things would be different, said these men, if we could only come up with a prolonged cold spell for four or five days. They sounded almost prayerful.

Now suppose the weatherman could surge to rescue and order up chilly temperatures to accommodate those back-country anglers. He'd have to face irate protests from another quarter.

A day after I talked to the two men mentioned above, there came a telephone call from a guide in the Ten Thousand Islands. He was rather excited.

"We're catching snook over here around the outside islands. Usually this time of year you have to go way back in the creeks to find snook, but now we're getting 'em in our regular summer spots. The warm weather's doing it. Isn't it great?"

* * *

Now, Gary, Did You Really Enjoy It?

"With the absence of the extreme cold weather which we enjoyed (?) last January, we find our trout catches for this January cut just about in half. Our total for this month is 145 lunker (6-lbs., or better) trout, with five of them going over 10 pounds. A year ago we had 283 lunkers in the first month.

"Last February, another bitterly cold month, stacked up 288 big trout. For the rest of this month, if the mild weather continues, we can't hope to equal or better last year's record."

Not a few Miami area fishermen are wishing for cold weather in the hope of improving kingfish success.

Down on the Keys they're saying that the high temperatures will make for the best early tarpon fishing in years.

It's just as well that nobody can be blamed for the weather.

Record 'Sticks' to Mischner

You Can't Beat This UM Swimmer for Consistency

On Feb. 4, 1956, Hal Mischner, swimming for the University of Miami against Xavier College in the Veterans Hospital pool, equalled Gordon Sellick's 23:5 second record for the 50-yard freestyle event. He had no inkling then that he would make a career of that same stunt.

MISCHNER

Hal was in the service in 1957 and 1958 but is back for another campaign as a senior.

In the opening meet of the present season, Hal picked up where he left off in 1956—he won the 50-yard free style against the University of Florida in 23:5 seconds.

A week later, against University of Georgia, he won the 50-yard freestyle — in 23:5 seconds.

Last week, against Homestead Air Base, he again won the 50-yard freestyle. Time-23:5 seconds, of course.

This Saturday, Mischner will be appearing in his final home meet for the Hurricanes when Miami battles Eastern Carolina.

Mischner will be favored to win the 50-yard freestyle event . . . but he would like to do it in say, 23:4 seconds for a change!

Foursome's 61 Wins Indian Creek Golf

A net 61 won Indian Creek's second roundup tournament, a best ball of foursome event, Wednesday. Winning team included Vincent Fitzgerald, Dr. Charles G. Mueller, M. R. Harrison and G. E. Gagnier.

Hialeah High Golfers Trim North Miami

Hialeah High's golfers beat North Miami, 3 1-2 to 1 1-2 Wednesday in a match at Miami Shores. Mike Allen was low scorer for the nine hole play with 41.

Churruca, Echey Eye 5th Win

Echeverria and Churruca, hoping to fatten their lead in the World Series doubles championship at Miami Fronton, seek a fifth victory tonight as play enters the eighth round.

Clinging to the Italian entry like a shadow has been the Mexican combine of Solozabal and Larranaga. Through the first seven rounds of play Echeverria-Churruca had 23 points, the Mexican entry 17.

Last week, for the fourth time, the Italians annexed the crucial tenth game, but Solozabal and Larranaga saved the place—and their runnerup position in the race.

Cuba's defending champions, Orbea and Arakistain, are running third in the series with 10 points.

Dania's Reto 'Plugs Along'

Because of unspectacular play, the husky Basque, Reto, is often overlooked in pregame selections at Dania Jai-Alai Palace. But his record speaks for itself.

He has been in the money an average of better than once out of every two games played.

Teaming with the veteran Josechu in the first game tonight, Reto should be difficult to beat.

Title-Seeking UM Five Meets Stetson Tonight

Herald Service

DELAND — Weary after playing three basketball games in four days, the University of Miami Hurricanes caught a breather Wednesday before tackling two of the most formidable of their road trip foes.

Miami meets Stetson in DeLand tonight and faces Rollins in Winter Park Friday.

Stetson is in second place in the Florida Intercollegiate Conference with a 3-1 record to Miami's 6-0. The Hurricanes could insure themselves of no less than a tie for the title they now hold by winning tonight while Stetson must win to keep alive its hopes for a tie or a league title.

The Hatters, always tough at home, have won all their league games on their own court. Recently they downed Kentucky Wesleyan by a more decisive margin than Miami could achieve.

Coach Bruce Hale's club, now 12-6 for the year and sporting a four game winning streak, looks for no breather Friday against Rollins. It was the Tars who gave Miami its only loss a year ago on a similar four-game road trip.

Rollins, after a slow start, has won two of its last three league games, the lone loss coming by one point in Jacksonville.

Since both the Florida Southern and University of Tampa games were in doubt to the final seconds, Coach Hale had little chance to rest his weary regulars.

Nap Lajoie 'Recovering'

DAYTONA BEACH — (AP) — Napoleon Lajoie had a good day but it probably will be several more days before he is released from Halifax General Hospital.

This was the report Wednesday from the hospital on the 83-year-old big time baseball player who is slowly recovering from a bout with pneumonia.

PRIME VENTURE, hard held early, improved his position steadily to attain command earlier than desired, then held sway while showing a tendency to loaf. SHOW BRIDGE finished well after having been slow to respond. SHERPA moved boldly on the final turn, then wore down tired horses.

SCRATCHES: Mighty Tom, Fleet Argo, Nose Buster, Nickel Pump.

LOVELY HILDY, steadied after having been involved in early crowding, responded well through the stretch and wore down SHORT PAUSE. The latter established a commanding advantage nearing the stretch and failed to last. TRIANON made up considerable ground after having trailed. GOLDEN WEDDING was badly crowded along the inside at the first turn, loomed a threat after five furlongs and lacked further response.

SCRATCHES: Acclaim, Ellen J., In A Rage.

ALI WING wore down the leaders and won with speed in reserve. MADRE kept a true course along the inside to wear down PROMENADE HOME. The latter was in front after a quarter and weakened. MARYMOUNT MISS was a bit unruly going postward, broke alertly but could not keep pace while drifting out slightly.

SCRATCHES: Christine R., Ebbie's Girl, Carla Belle, Star Toy.

Mar Dilly Returns To Action Tonight

The youngster will seek his fourth victory in six starts in the ninth race, one of two Grade A features.

In three winning efforts and seven schooling races, Mar Dilly piled up an amazing total of 121 winning lengths. Matched with Mar Dilly are Big Card, Fedo, Black Issue, Bo's Randle, Holiday Sin, Red Lips and Added Expense.

Cactus Hunter Goes at Beach

Perdulario At Hialeah

After spending several days in quarantine in accordance with customary regulations, the Argentine-bred horse Perdulario — flown from Panama where he won his last start — vanned to Hialeah to prepare for a U.S. debut.

Hialeah's Turf Cup Draws 26

Twenty-six horses representing seven nations have been nominated for the $75,000 added, Hialeah Turf Cup Feb. 14.

Included are 14 winners of 31 stakes in 1958 and three winners in major events this year: Clem (Palm Beach), General Arthur (Bougainvillea), and Petare (Royal Palm), the last named a very doubtful starter due to his injury in the Bougainvillea.

Eleven of the nominees also are eligible for the $100,000 Widener a week later: Clem, Oligarchy, One-Eyed King, Victory Morn, Jack Ketch, Ekaba, Mystic 2nd, Tempest 2nd, Fouguier, A Dragon Killer and Grey Monarch.

Rounding out the Turf Cup eligibles are: Mahan, Rumesnil, Powder Cap, Pop Corn, Sarcasmo, Tudor Era, Four Fathoms, Saim, Waterford 2nd, Minsing, Rafty, King Grail and Gunman.

GAY DICTATION needed last race, likely to gain top here; BELCHISE was a trifle short as beaten favorite; ROSEMERE GREER must be given consideration with Hartack aboard; WAY-LADY showed an even effort, world of early speed.

a—R. Lowe & L. M. Roebling entry.

KENTUCKY ROMAN appears best on recent works; KING ME is a contender but must get off "also" list; TURKSON was good in New York; DR. JOE KAY could be better than rated.

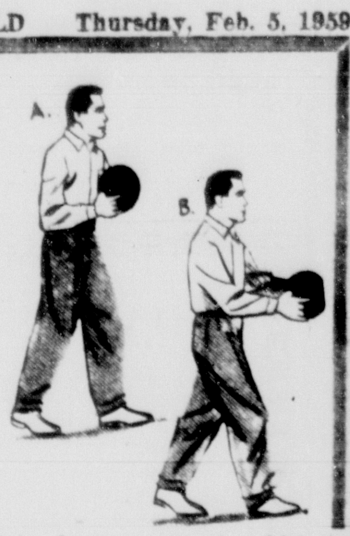
Steps Vary

Pick Own Bowling Footwork



By BILLY SIXTY

Footwork runs in wide stages from a single step to seven or eight. How many steps you take to the foul line doesn't matter. What counts is that you finish at exactly the same spot every time with your first (strike) ball.

John (Count) Gengler, once one of the game's greats, confined his footwork to one step, using a forward and backward rock of the body to effect his perfect timing. Otto (Dutch) Stein, on the other extreme, took six steps, short and fast, when he was match king.

So it's a case of everyone to his own method of approaching the line. I suggest, though, that you try four steps first, starting with a short, shuffling right foot movement, which is what most of the bigtimers do. Like the Vardon grip in golf, four-stepping is considered standard in bowling.

But if you don't immediately catch good balance both in stride and at the line with four steps, go to five. I recommend it especially for women and for small, unathletic or older men. The extra step, users all agree, lends itself better than four-stepping to altogether smoother footwork.

The only difference in four and five stepping is that with five steps (Sketch A) you delay the push-away of the ball. While the first step is taken, you do nothing with the ball. Just hold it still.

It's with the second step (Sketch B) that you push the ball outward toward the pins to put it in swing. From there on you are in four-step action—after the trigger fifth step has started you on your way. Just one thing: The first step, in five-stepping, must be short.

Blood Donors To Receive Turf Passes

The Horseman's Benevolent and Protective Association, which will stage its annual blood bank drive announced Wednesday donors will be given a free pass to Hialeah Park and $5.

Harold O. Simmons, executive secretary and treasurer of the HBPA, said atent will be placed near the racing secretary's office to handle blood donors.

IN AN agreement with the Hialeah Park stewards, the HBPA executive committee now will be furnished with any doubtful trainer's application for racing here.

After a meeting between the stewards and the executive committee it was decided that before the stewards grant or give a new trainer a license, that it should first go to the HBPA for approval.

Cook It At The Table

By JEANNE VOLTZ

Herald Homemaking Editor

Chafing dishes, hibachis, automatic skillets, portable griddles and electric grills make a casual meal elegant as a theater opening night.

For food cooked before the eyes of guests and family is sheer drama. And you, the cook, are the star actor.

Small talk pauses as guests gaze admiringly and you deftly swirl beef and vegetables for sukiyaki. The lights are dimmed and flames leap over bananas for a brilliant finale to dinner or supper.

This sort of meal does away with the last minute kitchen puttering if other foods can be done ahead. And this is easy since a table-cooked main dish demands few go-alongs.

As we were planning this page a new, enlarged edition of book which has been a guidepost to table cooking came to our desk.

It is The Chafing Dish Cookbook by John and Marie Roberson (Prentice-Hall, $3.50). A host or hostess aspiring to thrill guests will find scores of ideas in this book.

With each recipe is a check list of what goes on the tray to set beside the chafing dish. Except for hot hors d'oeuvres, each recipe has a suggested menu. Recipes are in two parts — what to do behind the scenes and what to do in front of guests.

Blazing Ham Steak

2	pounds sliced smoked ham
1/2	pound mushrooms
2	tablespoons curry powder
1	tablespoon flour
2	tablespoons fine crumbs
1/4	teaspoon pepper
1/4	teaspoon salt
1	egg
1	tablespoon water
2	tablespoons butter
1/2	cup consomme
1/4	cup spiced brandied peaches, chopped fine
1/4	cup juice from peaches
2	tablespoons brandy

BEHIND THE SCENES — Have the ham cut into thin steaks at market. At home, trim off the fat. Cut this fat into bits and save for later use. Cut steaks into 8 serving-size pieces. Mix seasonings, flour and crumbs. Mix egg with water. Dip ham in crumb mixture, then egg, then crumbs. Stem mushrooms. Slice stems. Use mushrooms whole if small enough.

BEFORE THE GUESTS — Melt butter in blazer pan of chafing dish. Then saute prepared ham in this until pieces are delicately browned. Add mushrooms and brown. Then add consomme. Cover and cook gently 10 minutes. Add the spiced peaches and juice. Reheat. Pour brandy over top., set aflame. Serve as soon as flame dies out. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Eggs With Tomatoes

8	slices bacon
6	eggs
2	medium-sized tomatoes, skinned, cut into small pieces
	Salt and pepper
	Paprika
	Watercress

BEHIND THE SCENES — Skin and cut tomatoes into pieces. Set up tray.

BEFORE THE GUESTS — Fry out the bacon in the blazer pan of the chafing dish until delicately crisp. Remove to paper towel but keep warm. Add tomatoes to the fat. Simmer until reduced to rich paste. Add salt and pepper to taste. Add eggs, one at a time, stirring as they slide into the tomato gravy. Then place blazer pan over hot water and continue stirring until eggs are cooked to desired degree. Serve with sprinkle of paprika, 2 slices of bacon to each serving with a garnish of watercress on toast points. Makes 4 servings.

Spanish Macaroni With Meat Sauce

1	tablespoon salt
3	quarts boiling water
2	cups elbow macaroni
1	pound ground beef chuck
1	medium-sized onion, sliced
1	cup grated Cheddar cheese (about 1/4 pound)
1	tablespoon olive or salad oil
1	12-ounce can tomato juice
1	teaspoon chili powder
1	teaspoon salt
1/4	teaspoon pepper
1/2	teaspoon thyme

BEHIND THE SCENES — Add 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add macaroni so water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain into colander. Shape beef chuck into 1 1/2-inch balls. Slice onion. Grate cheese.

BEFORE THE GUESTS — Heat oil in chafing dish. Add meatballs and onion and cook until meat balls are browned on all sides. Add macaroni, tomato juice, seasonings and cheese. Mix well. Cook, covered, 20 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Crisp, Colorful Vegetables, Beef Are Cooked on Hibachi at Table for Sukiyaki

This charcoal brazier with cook pot is used for sukiyaki and other quick cooked Japanese dishes. Sukiyaki, delicately flavored meat and vegetables cooked just crisp-tender, is a delectable adventure in at-the-table cooking.

If you don't have an hibachi, don't fret. A chafing dish or automatic skillet will serve just as well.

Other recipes to keep your table cooker busy are Shrimp Fried Rice, this a Chinese style dish; English Woodchuck, eggs and cheese to serve on toast; pan sauteed shrimp, turkey or chicken curry and a show-off dessert, flaming bananas.

Sukiyaki is served over mounds of fluffy hot rice. With an Oriental dinner a fruit dessert is authentic and good—fresh or mandarin orange sections sprinkled with coconut or a mixed fruit compote.

* * *

Sukiyaki

1	pound beef (sirloin or rib), cut in paper thin slices
1 1/2	teaspoons monosodium glutamate
1/4	cup salad oil
2	medium onions, thinly sliced
1/2	pound tender spinach
1/4	pound mushrooms, sliced
12	green onions, sliced
1	canned whole bamboo shoot, cut in strips
2	cups sliced celery
1	10-ounce can bouillon
1/3	cup soy sauce
3	tablespoons sugar
1/4	cup sherry
	Hot cooked rice

Sprinkle beef with 1 teaspoon monosodium glutamate. Heat oil in hibachi pot, chafing dish or skillet. Add beef and brown quickly. Add onion, spinach, mushrooms, green onions, bamboo shoot and celery. Sprinkle with remaining 1/2 teaspoon monosodium glutamate. Cook 3 minutes. Combine bouillon, soy sauce, sugar and sherry. Add to beef mixture. Cover and cook 10 minutes. Serve at once with hot cooked rice. Makes 4 servings.

Shrimp Fried Rice

1/4	cup butter, margarine or oil
2	cups cooked shrimp, halved
2	teaspoons salt
1/2	teaspoon pepper
2	eggs, beaten lightly
5	cups cooked rice
3	tablespoons soy sauce
3	green onions, chopped

Prelude to Bigger Exodus

Remaining Jews Fleeing Romania

By WILLIAM H. STONEMAN
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

STONEMAN

VIENNA, Austria — Most of all of Romania's remaining Jews, numbering between 200,000 and 250,000, are now on their way out from behind the Iron Curtain or are preparing to leave.

One hundred thousand of them will probably leave this year and most of them must be assisted in reaching Israel and getting settled when they get there.

This gigantic exodus — the greatest movement from behind the curtain since the Hungarians broke loose in 1956 — is an almost certain preluse to an even greater flood of Jews toward freedom which will occur when Russia opens the floodgates and releases the three million Jews more or less who now live in the Soviet Union under threat of growing anti-semitism.

These appalling facts were among the first to greet the group of 14 prominent Chicagoans and their wives who arrived in Europe this weekend on a fact-finding expedition for the Combined Jewish Appeal — most of whose scheduled $10 million fund this year will be devoted to the relief and settlement of Jews in Israel.

The group from Chicago visited a 135-year-old synagogue here, the only one to survive the outrages of 1938 when the Germans burned all synagogues in Austria and Germany on the so-called "crystal night."

They were entertained by Yisrael Sahar, one of Israel's most distinguished citizens. Sahar now acts as minister to Austria, a key post because of Vienna's function as a funnel for most Jews en route from Iron Curtain countries to Israel and other countries where they are being settled.

Stage Idea Works Out

LONDON —(UPI)— Thanks to an American musical comedy, Londoners can now order theater tickets even in the dead of night.

A theatrical booking agency has installed a telephone answering service which allows the caller to make his request when the agency is not open. When staff members arrive at work in the morning, they just play back a tape recorder and process the orders.

Peter Cadbury, of the booking agency, said he got the idea from the telephone answering service featured in the musical, "Bells Are Ringing."

Cushions Are Easy to Make

By CAPPY DICK

Hobby Club

A cushion to place on the seat of a chair is a fun-project any boy or girl can accomplish by following today's directions.

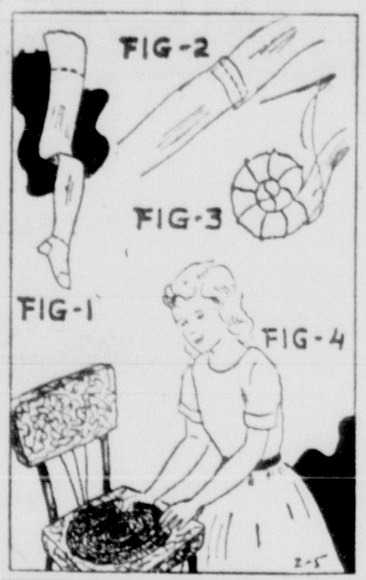
The cushion is made from wornout nylon stockings.

The whole leg of each stocking is used, with the foot and the top cut off (Figure 1). There will be no edges to fray except at the top and bottom of the leg tube and the top end is to be sewed to the bottom end of the next tube (Figure 2) until you have formed a continuous nylon string long enough to make the mat.

Because the stockings will be of soft brown and tan shades, use bright-colored cotton string to hold the mat together.

Start at the center of the mat, looping the stocking into a tight circle. Thread a needle with the bright string. Push the needle through the end of the stocking from the wrong side of the mat and up through the center of the little circle. Pull the string tightly down and around the stocking, then pass the needle up through the center again. Continue doing this until the first circle is wound tightly with string (Figure 3), the loops being about a quarter inch apart.

After forming the first circle, wrap the string around the next spiral of stocking, catching the string each time in the nearest loop of cord on the preceding spiral. Continue until the mat is large enough for the seat of a chair (Figure 4).



No Sale! He Lands in Jail

DENVER — (AP) — A youth interrupted Joe Gallegos as he sat in a tavern. He offered to sell Gallegos a jacket for $6.50 and a glass of beer.

"I'll take it," said Gallegos. "You wait here."

Gallegos called police who arrested the youth, Paul Gallegos, 18, no relation. Joe Gallegos said the jacket was his. It had been taken from his car in a nearby parking lot.

Spaniard Says He's 'Castro'

ZAMORA, Spain — (UPI) — A passenger who tried to get off a train without presenting his ticket told the conductor:

"I don't need a ticket, I'm Fidel Castro. Though where I come from everyone thinks I'm Napoleon."

Police returned the man to the nearby Ciempozuelos Mental Hospital where he is listed as patient Juan Diez.

Radio Free Europe Hitting Harder

By MILT FREUDENHEIM

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

NEW YORK — Western radio broadcasts to Communist eastern Europe are reaching more listeners and drawing angry replies, in the official press and radio of these countries.

More than a million additional radio receivers have been registered in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania in the last two years.

Radio Free Europe, which along with the British Broadcasing Corp. and Voice of American carries most of the West-to-East programs, reports a total of 8,593,464 radios now registered in the five countries.

Government officials are showing they feel the sting of the broadcasts ranging from heavy-handed Bulgarian attacks on "imperialist snake nests" to more sophisticated Polish replies.

Poland, which no longer censors foreign broadcasts (although the Soviets jam some from the outside), recently carried a special program on its radio homeland to reply to Radio Free Europe charges.

The American-financed station, broadcasting from West Germany and Portugal, apparently had hit the mark with charges about Polish policy on woodlands and timber.

Polish listeners sent 989 letters to Radio Free Europe in 1958, the broadcaster reported, including one from a boy who asked for "arguments I can use with my stepfather, who is a Communist."

Newspapers and radio stations directed 1,348 attacks against identified Western broadcasters last year.

Interviews with several hundred refugees from the five nations showed nearly all had listened to Western broadcasts in the home countries, many as often as twice a week or even daily.

The 8.5 million registered radio sets do not include wired types pre-tuned to receive only Communist stations. These are on the decline, and Czechoslovakia, for example, has ended a drive to distribute such radios.

RED BUTTONS, actor; born: Feb. 5, 1919, in New York City.

Red grew up on New York's Lower East Side and won an amateur contest at 12, singing "Sweet Jennie Lee." Christened Aaron Chwatt, Red got his nickname from carrot-colored hair and a bellboy uniform with 48 buttons. He answered an ad for a singing bellboy at Dinty Moore's tavern. Customers nicknamed him Red Buttons. He won an Oscar in '58 for best supporting role in Sayonara, and New York TV Academy's "Michael" for 1952-53.

Oil-Rich Iraq Eyes Each Tank

By GEORGE WELLER
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

The nation extracts 30 million tons of oil a year, but soldiers are posted at filling stations.

WELLER

As I drive up the approach ramp of a gas station in downtown Baghdad, a soldier with leveled gun stopped my car. He opened the door and said the Arab equivalent of "get out, please."

My interpreter was also ordered to step out. The soldier pointed to the exit ramp, and ordered us to remain there, at the curbstone.

The driver, alone in the empty car, was allowed to approach the pumps and be serviced.

"The new regime," explained a government guide, "wants to be sure that the filling station doesn't catch fire. Rather than enforce a 'no smoking' rule on a few, the army simply empties out all passengers."

Clucas Divorce Only the First Round

By Cholly Knickerbocker

CHOLLY'S NOTEBOOK: A divorce on grounds of "intolerable cruelty, habitual intemperance and misconduct" obtained by chemical exec Charles Clucas from Mrs. Phyllis Washington Clucas in Connecticut may sound pretty final! However, Mrs. Clucas, the former Baroness de Mohrenschildt, says it's only the beginning.

CHOLLY

Phyllis is fighting mad and says she has already consulted a new lawyer who has presented her side of the matter to Judge J. C. Fitzgerald in Fairfield County. She intends to reopen the case, contest the divorce and bring out further information — including juicy details (she says she has letters and other evidence) concerning Mr. Clucas' interest in a very-much-married New York lady socialite. If Phyllis has the evidence she claims, the case may be referred to a higher court . . . The Eric Loders gave a farewell party at El Morocco . . . Also polishing the parquet in Perona's Playpen was a social group invited by the Lauder Greenways in honor of the former ambassador to the Court of St. James's, Winthrop Aldrich and Mrs. Aldrich.

EUROPEAN hotel keepers are about ready to declare actress Eva Bartok persona non grata. Seems she has a bad habit of wiring ahead for lavish suites and then checking into different hotels on arrival. This creates an air of mystery and causes reporters to chase her avidly because they think she's hiding something.

Neuberger Member of Cancer Unit

PORTLAND, Ore. — (AP) — Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D., Ore.) has been named an honorary member of the board of directors of the Oregon division of the American Cancer Society.

Neuberger did not go to Washington, D.C., for the opening of the current session of Congress, but remained here to undergo radiation treatment. He underwent a surgical operation for cancer last August.

The senator said his treatments would end in a day, but his doctors prescribed a rest of one week to 10 days. After that, he said, he would return to Washington.

"Because of my own experience with cancer," said Neuberger in accepting the appointment, "I appreciate profoundly the research activities which the American Cancer Society helps to make possible . . ."

Revolt Film Makes Hit

BUDAPEST, Hungary — (UPI) — The first Hungarian film which deals with the 1956 revolution has become a major success with the local populace, the Hungarian press reported.

More than 45,000 persons viewed the movie during the first three days of its showing, Budapest newspapers said. Press reviews said the film, entitled "Yesterday," shows with great authenticity and objectivity the confusion created in the minds of many well-meaning people who were drifted along by the events of the revolution.

Ike's Popularity Remains High

Gallup Poll

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N.J. — During a month in which President Eisenhower has come under the fire of Republican as well as Democratic leaders, his popularity with voters has held firm.

One month ago, 57 voters in every 100 questioned by the Gallup Poll gave Eisenhower a vote of confidence for his performance in office. The most recent nationwide check on his popularity shows that figure unchanged.

If anything — because of a slight decrease in the percentage of voters who disapprove of the way the President is handling his job — Eisenhower is in a better position with the public than he was in early January.

Using methods that have proved highly successful in forecasting the outcome of the last five national elections, the Gallup Poll assigned its staff of opinion reporters to ask this question of voters:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way Eisenhower is handling his job as President?"

EISENHOWER POPULARITY

	Today	Jan.
Approve	57 Pct.	57 Pct.
Disapprove	27	32
No opinion	16	11

During a period when some sharp intraparty criticism of Eisenhower came out of the Des Moines, Iowa, National Committee meeting, the President maintained the overwhelming support of rank - and - file voters in his own party.

Eisenhower today receives a vote of confidence from 85 Republican voters in every 100; is criticized by only eight in every 100.

With only two years remaining for the President to fill his second, and last, term in office, discussion has centered recently on just which groups in the electorate are strongest for Eisenhower and which are most against him.

* * *

TO THIS end, the Gallup Poll has prepared an analysis of just how Eisenhower ranks in popularity with various groups in the population.

One of the interesting highlights of the analysis is the extent to which the President's popularity is greater among women than it is among men.

The complete analysis follows:

EISENHOWER POPULARITY

Next: Janitor's Job?

'Successful' Alcoholics Get Word

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A Cincinnati psychiatrist has an answer for business-executive alcoholics who say "How can I be an alcoholic when I'm so successful?"

"Maybe he's earning a lot of money, and maybe he's fourth vice president of his company," said Dr. Robert J. Kalthoff.

"But if he wasn't an alcoholic, he might now be the president—and in 10 years, if he keeps on drinking, he'll be lucky if he's the janitor!"

Kalthoff made the comments in addressing the 10th annual national meeting of the Guild of Catholic Psychiatrists.

He said skid-row derelicts constitute only 10 per cent of all alcoholics. And he indicated that a high percentage of the rest come from the ranks of "the professions, businessmen, the clergy and scientists."

He distinguished between the alcoholic and the drunkard, saying the former drinks through compulsion, whereas the drunkard may go on a jag but feels no compulsion to repeat it.

Don't Let Freakish Incident Fool You

Mr. March shows the wisdom of combatting emotionalism with calmness and the simple facts. But note this preacher's dilemma. Dr. Travis was a saintly parson if there ever was one. But in today's case his friends thought he told a fib.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

JAMES H. MARCH is the genial editor of The News-Tribune at Beaver Falls, Pa. On a recent Sunday he visited my Bible class at the Chicago Temple and we had a chat afterwards.

He introduced me to a vivacious woman buyer from one of the leading department stores back in his city.

"She was hesitant about coming out to Chicago," he added, with a smile, "because of the gangster reputation which Chicago has developed. But I told her it was perfectly safe and a splendid city. Moreover, I agreed to chaperone her, so she finally decided to make the trip."

Isn't it surprising what a few headlines will do toward building up a reputation?

I'M SCARED!!
A-446

FOR EXAMPLE, I was located at Smith College for two years back in the era of Al Capone. There I met a middle-aged couple who had a relative in Iowa. The latter had been begging this couple to drive out by auto and visit her.

They had planned to do so on several occasions, but always lost their nerve each time, for they figured they'd be driving through Chicago and they feared the gangsters! At last, this man purchased a couple of revolvers and was trying to screw up his courage to make the trip!

Yet I had lived in Chicago and taught night classes down in the Loop for years without ever having seen even a petty crime committed. But to this day I suppose millions of people are afraid they'll meet gangsters on the street if they ever visit Chicago.

However, I must admit there might be an exception to the rule, for the clergyman who performed my wedding ceremony was the late Dr. Claude Travis.

He was pastor of Englewood Methodist Church for many years. And he had some close friends whom he had often invited to come to Chicago for a visit. They always declined, feeling the horrible gangsters they had imagined roamed our Chicago streets.

But Dr. Travis told them he had traveled over those streets by day and night for 10 years without ever witnessing the slightest form of crime. So they reluctantly decided to accept his invitation. They attended his church that Sunday morning.

* * *

"AFTER the service," added Dr. Travis, "my wife and I decided to take them out for dinner.

"As we were driving down the street to a restaurant, all of a sudden a black sedan swerved around us. Immediately the bullets began to whistle over our heads, so I curbed the car and we ducked as a running machinegun battle developed between the fleeing auto and another black sedan that was in pursuit.

"Actually, we hadn't been on the street three minutes when this fusillade occurred.

"It was all over in a few seconds. Then I apologized profusely and tried to convince my guests that this was the first time I had ever been in such a dangerous spot.

"But I am afraid they thought I was telling a fib," he added with a grin, "for they couldn't get out of town fast enough and they never came back."

But isolated acts of violence may occur in all large cities. Just don't let one freakish example delude you.

Moon Seen Free of Rust

CHICAGO — (UPI) — Science has done it again.

For what comfort it may be to tidy space cadets and pioneer housewives, a metallurgist group here has announced that on the moon, metal won't rust, silver never tarnishes and bronze can't turn green.

A space-age "rust index" shows that on earth, up to 15 years of moisture, wind, corrosive gases, sunlight and salt water will corrode a steel panel the size of a license plate. And presumably anything else rustable.

Rust ratio, they say, is 0.0 for the moon, which lacks wind, moisture and free oxygen.

NOW more than ever before doesn't everyone you know read the . . .
Herald.

U.S. Must Awaken to Its Debt to the Indians

By ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

My Day

MRS. FDR

HYDE PARK — You must be beginning to think that all the Indians in the U.S. are having a difficult time — and I think you will be right! Ever since I first publicized an appeal from an Indian I have received many more. Today I have two more communications.

The first of these is from the Taos Indians of Taos, New Mexico, begging that the Bureau of Public Roads be urged to change the route for a road that is being planned to go through the Taos Indians' "sacred lands." They oppose this road because they feel "it would destroy the unique beauty of this historic area."

The other was sent me by someone who in 1955 read a statement by an Indian chief named Dan Katchongva. The writer had clipped this statement from the Arizona Daily Sun of Flagstaff, and saved it. It is a very moving plea and one that I think deserves republication today. So, I will give it to you in full, for the people of the U.S. must awaken to their obligations, through their government, to the American Indians. Chief Dan Katchongva wrote:

"This land is ours and has been from the beginning. We came here first. We hold this land under instructions from our Great Spirit. All of the matters concerning land and the animals were worked out long before the white man came to us.

* * *

"THE WHITE MAN has come upon us long after we, the Hopi, and other Indians in this area have worked out for ourselves how to live. Our land was well established where each tribe would live. The Hopi people, after many generations of migration, came to this area because it was pointed out to us by higher powers. The white man came and after becoming strong because of our help started to take all the land, homes and other property away from us. We have suffered untold hardships as a result. We are still suffering.

"Every time we work up to a point where we feel that we have everything we need, then a new policy or program comes from Washington, and immediately we are forced to go on that plan without our consent, prior knowledge, or consultation.

"The white man seems to have forgotten his religion, his obligations to the Indians and his promises, but continues to try to force us to his ways.

"Sometimes we are put in his jail, his prisons, and have come to this time now without sheep, horses to work our farms, our very own land. These lands have been taken from us by the Navajo, with the help of the U.S. government.

* * *

"TODAY WE FIND ourselves confined to a small area. Today I am without houses because Indian bureau officials have confiscated them because I wanted to take care of them in the way the Hopi did for generations before the white man came.

"Many of our people are sheepless because they refused to follow Indian bureau policies. As a leader of my people, I have never been consulted about any of this, nor have I given my consent to these policies.

"I have always objected to anyone coming upon our land to take our natural resources. We have long known that the wealthiest part of this great land is here beneath us. But we know, too, that these resources must not be used for purposes of war nor to destroy other people. These things are to be used only for peaceful purposes and then only after the land matter of the Hopi has been settled.

"Our way of life is good and well planned out for us by the Great Spirit and we have been warned never to depart nor deviate from it. Our land is not selfish. If we take care of it by the way we live and by prayer, by performing our ceremonies and by adhering to the instructions of our forefathers, then we may enter the everlasting life and not destroy ourselves."

Bandit Trapped By False Teeth

BUFFALO, N.Y. — (UPI) — Mrs. Narcissus Bonds, 39, told police she was pretty sure they'd collared the right man for holding up the bar where she works, except that the suspect's mouth looked different.

Her doubt was wiped out, however, when a detective searched the man and found a set of false teeth in his pocket.

Heart of Rochester, N.Y., Being 'Reborn'

Downtown Shopping Center to Fight Suburbs

By SYLVIA PORTER
Financial Analyst

SYLVIA

ROCHESTER, N. Y. — The first "shopping center" in history is to be created within a city's central business district — meaning a suburban-type retailing operation in the heart of downtown — will start going up here next month.

In the last 12 months I've traveled through many U.S. cities, seen and heard what local officials and merchants the land over are planning to do to revive their downtown areas and fight the competition of the suburbs. And in an increasing number of cities—including my hometown of New York—active rebuilding is going on.

But nothing I've seen or heard compares in ambitious planning—and most significantly, in private financing of the redevelopment — with what is taking place in downtown Rochester. For instance.

1—Under the leadership of the heads of two of the city's major department stores—McCurdy and B. Forman — seven acres of expensive downtown property are being cleared and prepared for the building of a unique shopping mall, a variety of stores and restaurants, an 18-story office building, a bus terminal and of course, the department stores.

The Forman and McCurdy brothers began quietly buying up the property in the area years ago. Two years ago they hired the famous architectural firm of Victor Gruen Associates to design their "Midtown Plaza," late last September they announced their plans, early in March the building will begin with completion expected in late 1961.

2—Simultaneously, the city is building an underground garage in the plaza, capable of holding 1,930 cars at a single time. It is constructing new streets, relocating sewers and water lines. Since 1950 it has been building a new arterial highway system which permits easy access by car or bus to downtown. Also in the downtown area, it has already built a huge civic auditorium, and is now putting up another large civic center.

3—A few days ago the Hotel Corp. of America disclosed it is coming into downtown to build a new 500-room hotel, the first new hotel in Rochester's business district in more than 30 years.

4—And finally, slums on streets bordering the new area are slated to be torn down and converted into apartments for higher income families who will want to live near the rejuvenated downtown.

"It's a literal rebirth of our city," said Maurice and Fred Forman when I interviewed them on their project. And when I asked how they expected to recoup their tremendous investment (with the McCurdys, they're putting in about $20 million), both emphasized:

"We think we'll have it back within five years. The population increase alone will do it for us." And they admitted, "We figured we had to do something drastic anyway, for at the rate the suburbs have been drawing shoppers away from downtown, we'd be drowning in red ink in a few years."

"The city's contribution is vital, but the unique angle about Midtown Plaza is that it is basically an urban renewal project by private enterprise and without government subsidy," added Robert P. Aex, Rochester's city manager.

Aex estimates the underground garage will be "self-liquidating" with parking fees covering operating expenses and such. He forecasts that extra real estate taxes resulting from the rebuilt downtown will help meet other costs to the city.

And Aex remarked, "The key to the success of this project is the multiple use of the expensive downtown land. On one site will be the underground garage; on top of it, the shopping mall; on top of the mall, office space. Three uses of the same land! That's what will make this project feasible and economically sound."

From coast to coast, the decentralization of shopping which has accompanied the surge to the suburbs is posing a giant challenge to downtown stores and our cities.

But Rochester is doing more than worrying about it. It is boldly redrawing its commercial face, and its businessmen are betting millions of their own money that they can recapture the customers from the suburbs. It's an exciting venture in rebuilding of a city, backed by men convinced that the new beauty will bring them mighty profits.

Jesus Only Being Who Didn't Sin

GRAHAM

QUESTION: Please explain the verse that says that Christ was made perfect through suffering. Was He not perfect before that?

ANSWER: That verse, found in Hebrews 2:10, does not teach that Jesus was imperfect in the moral sense. He was the sinless Son of God, and the only being ever to walk on the earth of whom it could be said that there was no sin in Him. The Bible, in this place, teaches that the sufferings of Christ were essential to His saving work on our behalf. Without suffering, He would never have been the Saviour, for we are not saved by His life and teachings . . . we are saved by His death.

My Answer

The word "perfect" has confused many people. In the Bible sense, it means maturity or completion. It does not mean quite what our present day definition of the word means. That is why we can believe that Jesus was morally without any fault from the beginning, otherwise He would have needed salvation. But in this case, the Sinless One became sin for us, that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him.

Teens Start Another Fad: Hula Haircut

BOSTON — (UPI) — If you thought the hula hoop craze was on the way out, better ask your barber.

Members of the teen-age set are putting the hoop on their heads in the form of circular haircuts — bangs in front and medium-length hair on the back and sides.

So explained James E. Guilford Jr., a Boston barber and public relations committeeman for the Associated Master Barbers and Beauticians.

Guilford said the new cut was introduced at a convention of barbers and beauticians in Minneapolis.

Pope's Call for Parley Finds—

Protestants More United Than Ever

Pope John
. . . unity the theme

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Pope John XXIII's proposal for a meeting seeking unity between Roman Catholicism and other Christian groups finds Protestantism around the world more closely knit than at any other time since the Reformation, church leaders report.

Unity through mergers and various cooperative ventures has swept Protestantism not only in the U.S. but also in countries where missionary movements have made the greatest headway.

On a global scale, there are the World Council of Churches and the World Missionary Council, which are planning to merge, and the Commission of Churches on International Affairs, a liaison group between churches and the U.N.

On a national scale in the U.S., there are the National Council of Churches and such organizations as the National Conference of Christians and Jews. Canada has a United Church made up of several Protestant bodies. So do India and Japan.

Then there are the church mergers that have been taking place in the U.S. over the last few years.

A new United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. was formed last May with the combining of forces of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. and the United Presbyterian Church of North America.

The Congregational Christian Churches and the Evangelical and Reformed Church have united into the United Church of Christ. Four large Lutheran groups are planning to merge into one large church, and three other Lutheran groups hope to form another merger.

Exploratory merger talks are under way between the Methodists and the Protestant Episcopal Church in the U.S., and between the American Unitarian Association and the Universalist Church of America.

The largest merger of all was completed in 1939, with the combining of three large Methodist bodies into the 9,500,000 - member Methodist Church.

The National Council of Churches, formed in 1950 to bring various cooperative church ventures under one roof, represents 33 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox groups with more than 38,600,000 members in 144,000 local congregations.

The World Council of Churches, founded in Amsterdam in 1948, represents 171 member churches in 50 countries with 170,000,000 members.

The World Missionary Council, with which it hopes to merge, has seen missionaries of various sects drop old rivalries to band together in countries around the world to make cooperative efforts to establish Christianity.

What does all this add up to? It means that Christianity has become potentially a faith for all mankind, according to Dr. Henry Pitney Van Dusen, president of Union Theological Seminary in New York.

Dr. Van Dusen, one of the world's foremost Protestant leaders, says that the life of Christian churches around the world in the last 150 years has been marked by expansion aiming at a world religion and by consolidations aiming at coordination and unification of all branches of Christian effort.

"In our day," he said, "Christianity has become a world religion, for the first time in the 19 centuries of its history."

Don't Expect Miracles Overnight

Emotional Injuries Are Slow to Heal

By ANN LANDERS

ANN

DEAR ANN: My older sister passed away three months ago and we took her 13-year-old daughter into our home. We have two happy, well-adjusted boys, 10 and six, and frankly, we are not experienced in handling a problem child.

She is quarrelsome, dishonest and lazy. Some days I must pull her bodily out of bed to get her to go to school. She doesn't care how she looks, and if I didn't insist that she bathe daily she wouldn't bother.

Our sons were excited at the prospect of having "an older sister," but she ignores them. She cries frequently for no apparent reason, and when I try to talk to her she stares into space as if she doesn't hear.

Her father was an alcoholic who wouldn't work and her mother ran around with an odd assortment of men. Although the home was never actually broken up, it was a wretched place for a child to live.

I thought this change would be wonderful and that she'd appreciate our love and kindness, but it hasn't worked out that way. Please tell us what we are doing wrong. We need help. — AUNT AND UNCLE

Dear Aunt and Uncle: You can't expect a child who has spent the first 13 years of her life in the environment you describe to suddenly be a loving, sunny, cherub. Children who grow up in an atmosphere of hostility, infidelity and drunkenness suffer deep emotional scars which cannot be erased overnight.

This girl has been denied security and the love of responsible parents. She needs affection and understanding. She also may need pyschiatric help. Ask your doctor about the facilities available for disturbed children. You could save this girl from winding up in a mental or penal institution. The rewards for your patience and understanding will be enormous. Good luck.

* * *

DEAR ANN: I had to write to you, after reading the letter from Z. Z. Z. who complained about watching her husband get dressed for dates. I not only have to watch mine get dressed, I must pack his suitcase because his current girl friend lives 200 miles away.

Every other weekend he takes off, and during the week he runs up the long-distance telephone bill. On top of that he hasn't given me a dime in two months and I've had to borrow money from my brother to pay bills.

I suppose the advice you gave Z. Z. Z. would apply to me, too, but I love the bum too much to "throw him out." I've gone through this same thing before and time has always brought him to his senses.

I say a wife can do more by being understanding and sticking by her man, than tossing him out. Sure, it's hard, but it's worth it in the long run. After all, Ann, marriage is supposed to be for better or worse. — ONE WHO KNOWS

Dear One: I suspect your marriage is going to get worse before it gets better. But if this formula works for you — and you can stand it — more power to you.

* * *

DEAR ANN: My husband got into trouble with the law and is now paying his debt to society.

My two children and I went to live with my parents. They barely make ends meet for themselves. I want to go to work to pay our share of the expenses, but my husband forbids it. He says women belong home with their kids. He writes I should be "more saving" and manage on my father's check. I feel like a sponger and hate living off my folks like this. My husband is short-tempered and nervous. What shall I do? —FLORENCE

Dear Florence: It ill-becomes your husband to tell you where you ought to be, considering where he is. Get yourself a job and let him know that you must do what in your judgment is the decent and respectable thing.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Miami Herald enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Lightning Hits Cricket Players

PRETORIA, South Africa — (AP) — All 15 men on a cricket field were knocked down by lightning. Three had to be carried off but no one was seriously injured.

Ronnie Holloway, captain of the Pelican Club, was running up to bowl when the lightning struck. He said, "I felt as though I had been hit with a sledgehammer and that my hair was being pulled out."

Then he saw that the batsmen, umpires and the rest of the fielders were either lying on their backs or getting to their feet.

Oppose Festival in Vienna

Austrian Youths Protest Red Plans

By DAVID M. NICHOL
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

BONN, Germany — Austrian youth organizations are protesting Communist plans to stage a "World Youth Festival" in the Austrian capital from July 26 to Aug. 7.

NICHOL

The protests are not new, and it had been hoped in Vienna that the festival would be moved to Communist-controlled Prague. The last such festival was held two years ago in Moscow.

But recently placards appeared in Vienna's streets announcing the event. Twelve associated Austrian youth groups immediately put out counter-posters saying none of their members would participate.

The 12 include Catholic, Protestant and socialist youth groups, and the Boy Scouts.

Youth leaders point out their association charter requires members to oppose with all their powers any totalitarian, militaristic and nationalistic tendencies of a fascist or communist variety.

First Time Anyone's Been So Lucky

Flier Shot From B58 Over Alaska and Is Unhurt

FAIRBANKS, Alaska — (AP) — A young Air Force captain shot from a B58 supersonic bomber in an ejection seat 14,000 feet over Alaska — and came through it without a scratch.

The Air Force told about it and said it was the first time anyone in Alaska had been ejected from such a plane without injury.

Capt. Perry E. Amidon, 31, of Villa Rica, Ga., went through the experience while flying as a member of three-man test crew in the B58 Hustler 40 miles south of here.

The Air Force said the new bomber developed "abnormal gyrations" and the pilot, Maj. Kenneth K. Lewis, Denver, Colo., ordered the others to abandon ship.

Amidon hit his ejection button and went hurtling through the sub-zero air. But before Maj. James P. Zwayer, of Toledo, Ohio, the bombardier-navigator and other crewmen, could leave the plane it resumed normal flight and was brought in to a safe landing at Eielson Air Force Base near here.

A helicopter picked up Amidon less than an hour later after spotting his brilliant orange parachute on the snow. He is a project engineer for cold weather test work being performed on the 1,400-mile-an-hour bomber.

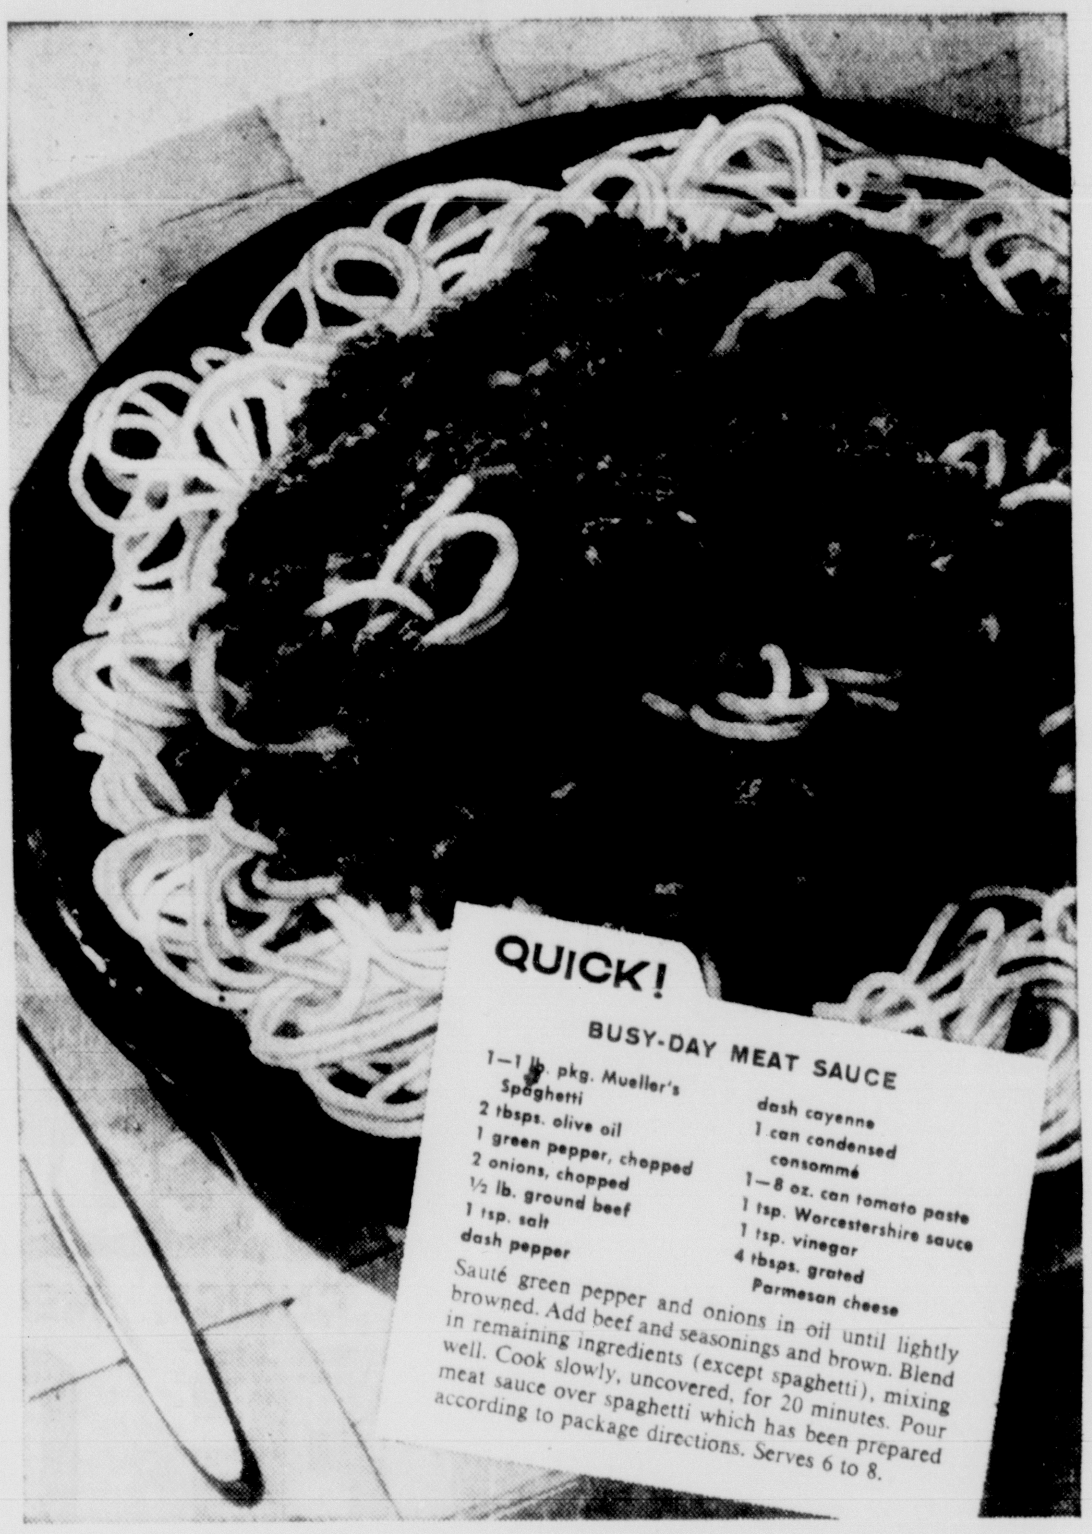
Nobody makes spaghetti like Mueller's

It's more delectable...so digestible



QUICK!

BUSY-DAY MEAT SAUCE

1—1 lb. pkg. Mueller's Spaghetti
2 tbsps. olive oil
1 green pepper, chopped
2 onions, chopped
½ lb. ground beef
1 tsp. salt
dash pepper
dash cayenne
1 can condensed consommé
1—8 oz. can tomato paste
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. vinegar
4 tbsps. grated Parmesan cheese

Sauté green pepper and onions in oil until lightly browned. Add beef and seasonings and brown. Blend in remaining ingredients (except spaghetti), mixing well. Cook slowly, uncovered, for 20 minutes. Pour meat sauce over spaghetti which has been prepared according to package directions. Serves 6 to 8.

Nobody makes spaghetti like Mueller's. What makes Mueller's so much tastier ...so light and digestible? It's the blend!

Not just one wheat—but two! Not just Semolina but Semolina plus easy-to-digest Farina. Result...the most delectable spaghetti you ever tasted. And so digestible! Vitamin-enriched. High in protein, too!

And you don't have to spend hours cooking sauce. Tomorrow...or any busy day...serve Mueller's Spaghetti with Busy-Day Meat Sauce and take a bow!

Even Lincoln Got Mixed Up in Hunk of Dade Land

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

OFFBEAT
with Mike Morgan
MIAMI

Turn to page 459 of Deed Book 140 at the Dade County Courthouse and you'll find the only known instance where Abraham Lincoln had anything to do with a hunk of Dade County property.

You'll find his name there as President of the U.S. validating a land patent sold to Theodore Bissell in 1855 and confirmed officially in 1862.

Don't go rushing to the courthouse looking for Honest Abe's signature — it's only a typewritten copy of the land patent, or deed, which is on file in Washington, D.C.

In June, 1855, Theodore Bissell of Duval County went to the general land office in Tampa and bought 40 acres of public land.

This is 40 acres bounded by NW 17th St., NW 22nd Ave., NW 14th St. and NW 24th Ave. The Miami River cuts diagonally across the tract.

Two years later, 1857, Bissell apparently regretted his hasty venture in South Florida land speculations.

Couldn't see any future in that tangle of barely settled wilderness. So he turned around and resold the property to George W. Ferguson. Let it go for the $50 it cost him.

Ferguson made even less on the deal—he had to sell the land for taxes later.

Chunks of the acreage were sold during the years. Meanwhile, years later it became necessary to clear the title of the land.

Seems as if there were some uncertainty about Bissell and if he ever had legal title to the 40 acres.

A request to the Washington land office brought a copy of the certificate of patent which had been granted Bissell.

Not too oddly, considering the government operated in those days as it does now, the land office in Washington never got around to issuing the patent until 1862.

Despite the fact a right ripe ruckus was ensuing at the time between the Confederacy and the Union, this did not deter the federal government from giving legal recognition to the original purchaser, presumably a Reb.

"In testimony whereof, I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States of America, have caused these letters to be made patent, and the seal of the General Land Office to be hereunto affixed.

"Given at the City of Washington, 15th day of May in the year of our Lord 1862, and of the Independence of the United States the 86th."

Signed: Abraham Lincoln.

For reasons known only to those concerned, the certificate of patent was never officially recorded here until 1915.

But by that time you couldn't get that 40 acres of land for 50 bucks.

Today it would take maybe a million or two.

Israelis Use Atoms in Heart Cases

NEW YORK — (AP) — Radioactive atoms and a Geiger counter are providing quicker and surer diagnosis of heart disease, Israeli doctors said here.

The new method reportedly is more effective than current ones, including electro-cardiograms.

Now, Israeli medics say, they can tell promptly whether a patient has heart trouble and, if so, where the damage is and which artery feeding the heart is clogged.

American physicians expressed interest in the new technique, but are awaiting more detail.

The Israeli method was announced by Dr. Jack Karpas, deputy director-general of the Hadassah Medical Organization in Israel, at Hadassah's midwinter conference here. Hadassah is an American women's Zionist organization.

Dr. Karpas said that while in many cases it takes from 24 to 48 hours to interpret an electrocardiogram heart check, Israeli researchers have found it possible to locate a clot (thrombosis) in a few hours by using radioactive iodine and a Geiger counter.

CROSBY

THE THREE STOOGES, who had been in a little bit of an eclipse, are back in business and flourishing after a single exposure on Steve Allen's show and I couldn't be happier about it.

Moe Howard was cornered and asked how he felt about the state of comedy in general and his in particular.

"I have always found, over the years," said Howard, "that youngsters were always a large part of the audience. They were about 12 years old in the days when we started. Well these youngsters never forgot us and now they're 35 or 36-year-old youngsters. So we have them in all age brackets.

"I don't know if a youngster knows what we base our format on but I do know he loves the result.

"We base it, of course, on the upsetting of dignity. There are endless ways to upset dignity. We hit a man with a high hat and tails in the face with a pie, or we turn social lions into bums.

"We subtly, the three of us, always go into an area of life which we don't understand. If we're going to go into society, the picture opens on us as garbage collectors. I think we appeal to all age brackets, and all class brackets. We do stupid things but they're excusable because we don't know any better."

* * *

MOE IS THE LITTLE mean stooge and I asked him if the reception of his act had changed over the years. He beamed: "Now, little three-year-old girls throw their arms around my neck and say 'I love you' and this is something new for me. The kids used to hiss me or throw things at me.

"I even remember when my son used to scare my niece by showing her a picture of me in costume. But now people sympathize more and more with the misunderstood guy.

"Kids watch the Popeye films constantly. They can watch one Popeye film 10 and 12 times without ever getting tired. They don't mind if he gets hit over the head with a mallet because they know he'll always get himself back into shape.

"But, underneath their adoration, they know that Popeye isn't real. He's make-believe. When they see us, they know we're real and they also know that nothing is going to happen to us.

"We're not as sadistic as Westerns, which to my mind are as violent as gangster movies. Kids don't mind seeing somebody get it over the head so long as they know that person will get right up. In Westerns, kids are likely not to understand or not to like it when somebody doesn't get up.

"The last picture we made was finished in December of '57 at Columbia where we've been under exclusive contract for 24 years. In fact, we've made about 200 films for them.

Seventy-eight of these have been released to television after first having made their money in theaters. Our early pictures ran about 18 minutes but as the costs rose they cut them down two minutes."

* * *

HE POINTS OUT that people want to laugh so badly that even in the depression people would spend their last two bits going to the movies or theater. "The trouble with comedy on television, of course, is over-exposure.

In the old days, when a studio had a comedian, they pampered him.

If comedy is overdone or if it goes on too long, the public gets a chance to think about it too much. That's one of the reasons we never contracted to do a feature.

We didn't think we could hold it up. But on television, a comedian goes on every week. Jack Benny is a little smarter than the rest. He only goes on twice a month. And I'M getting a little tired of him.

"You have to remember that an entertainer must use the same technique as a salesman uses. Never give the buyer time to think about it too long or you've got resistance. You've got to keep chirping away."

He brooded a moment over the death of burlesque and stock and all the training grounds for comedy.

Then he said: "I've enjoyed working on television. But the more I watch television, the less respect I have for the general TV audience.

"I don't understand how they can watch so many Westerns, for instance. They are the same, over and over again. In a Western — I don't care what kind of stories they use — there just better be a horse in there somewhere."

NAACP Rebuttal Arranged by NBC

NEW YORK — (AP) — The National Broadcasting Co. has scheduled a special television program on segregation Sunday in the wake of protests of a Chet Huntley editorial on the subject.

NBC announced it had scheduled the program for 6:30-7 p.m. to present "different points of view on the segregation issue."

The network's action followed a demand by the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People for equal time to answer Huntley, who suggested that militant Negro leadership pull out of the struggle for integration.

An NBC spokesman said NAACP officials and others would be invited to give their views on the program.

Henry Lee Moon, director of public relations for the NAACP, said the association has not yet decided whether to accept the invitation if others are to appear. He added:

"We feel we should have the opportunity to take over the full program. The other point of view already has been given."

Huntley gave the editorial during "The Second Agony of Atlanta," a TV program dealing with the problem of school integration in Georgia. Many Georgia citizens expressed their views on the Sunday night telecast.

Huntley said in part:

"The NAACP may have outlived itself because those white southerners who must prevail, if anyone will, consider it an unacceptable symbol. Nor is it fair that militant Negro leadership must be abandoned while militant white leadership can continue.

Chet Huntley
. . . he started it

"But just as the Negroes have the most to gain, it is they who must make the unfairest sacrifice to achieve it. I also suggest that if militant Negro leadership is removed, militant white leadership will in time atrophy and disappear. I hope I am right. I am not sure . . ."

NBC reported receiving 225 phone calls protesting the editorial and 25 favoring it 20 minutes after the end of the program.

One NAACP official said Huntley had virtually called for the "liquidation" of the association.

Best Bet

Tanguy undergoes trials and torments which are almost unbelievable — separation from his mother, a Nazi concentration camp, a brutal Spanish orphanage, an unfeeling father. This one should keep your eyes brimming with tears and make you realize how lucky we are to be here. The leading role is filled by 14-year-old Robert Crawford. Other major roles are played by Maximilian Schell, Maria's brother, as Tanguy's concentration camp friend; ex-ballerina Liliane Montevecchi, as his mother and George Dolenz, as his father.

7 — BERKELEY SQUARE —

Best Bet

This is a 30-year old romantic drama, taken originally from one of Henry James' "ghostly" tales. It tells of a modern day architect who inherits an old house in London, falls in love with the past because he longs to escape from modern problems, and his imagination transports him back in time. There he finds love — and problems that are just as knotty. John Kerr takes the lead, a part which most people associate with the late Leslie Howard. Edna Best, Jeannie Carson and a delightful young English actress, Janet Munro, have the other largest roles . . . color.

10 — ROUGH RIDERS — The riders stumble upon a plot to assassinate President Andrew Johnson and at great peril attempt to foil the plotters.

11:10

11:20

7 — JACK PAAR — Hans Conried and Marc Connelly will join the panel. Also on hand are Robert D'hery, author, producer and star of the French revue "La Plume de Ma Tante," Ilka Chase and singer Betty Johnson.

11:25

4 — MOVIE — "Boomerang," (1947), Dana Andrews, Jane Wyatt, Lee J. Cobb. A drama revolving around an actual unsolved murder which took place in Bridgeport, Conn. in 1924 and a fair-minded district attorney who believes a murder suspect innocent and uses his office to free him.

Exotic Foods Go Over

By AMY VANDERBILT

AMY

I AM amazed more and more by the fantastic array of strange new foods being carried by our grocery stores and supermarkets. Consider these things I found offered in our local supermarket the other day:

A large "bargain" table of fresh snails done up in plastic bags. Puzzled shoppers were wondering how to prepare them. (Your library has a big shelf of cookbooks, several of which should have this information. If you can't find it, write me and I'll tell you.)

Here is the rest of my list. These things I found on the hors d'oeuvres shelves: grasshoppers, bumblebees, chocolate-covered ants, silkworms, zara insects (from Mexico), roasted caterpillars, fried worms, rattlesnake meat from Florida.

Even some of the smallest neighborhood grocers have shelves featuring Chinese foods and the ingredients for Chinese dishes. Chinese cabbage is a very common vegetable in markets all over the country.

I also found squid featured at the supermarket the other day.

America's mobility is, of course, responsible in part for the appearance of what used to be strictly national foods in stores catering to the whole community. These great Italian pastas, manicotti and lasagna can appear as often on the American dinner table as truly American baked beans.

Etiquette

Hostesses no longer feel constrained to give an all-Italian dinner, or an all-French dinner, somewhat self-consciously. They mix their dishes — perhaps Swedish herring, Italian spaghetti with meat sauce and cheese, German meatballs, French pastry, Irish coffee — just as Americans are all intermarried in our society and come from all kinds of backgrounds.

We are growing much more adventurous in the foods that we serve. I think we would not have arrived at this state had not our men, in particular, begun to see the world. No food seems "strange" if one eats it and enjoys it.

* * *

"DEAR Miss Vanderbilt: We plan to take another couple as our guests to a play. During intermission, coffee is served in the lobby. Should my husband, as host, escort our lady guest to the coffee, and should I accompany our male guest? Also, how should we ride to the play. Shall I sit in the back seat of the car with our lady guest or in the front seat with my husband? What seating arrangement would be considered correct at the play? — M. M., Denver, Colo."

Your husband is your "date" and your male guest is that of your female guest. You ride with your husband in the car.

* * *

"DEAR Miss Vanderbilt: I intend to purchase some imported china soon. Would it be improper to use the new, very lovely, stainless steel with it, or does it require silver or silverplate? — J. R., Sunnyvale, Calif."

No, it is not improper, but silver or a good silverplate might look more appropriate. Stainless steel usually looks better with pottery.

Fire Can't Dim Female Vanity

ASHBY DE LA ZOUCH, England — (UPI) — Firemen had to go in and get pretty young housewife Flora Colder when she refused to leave her burning apartment.

"I needed more time to powder my nose," she explained later.

Child Tells Story of Air Crash Fatal To 65

'I Was Cold; My Arms Felt Frozen'

NEW YORK—(AP)—Little Robert Sullivan, 8, was sitting in the seat of the big airliner next to his mommy. Nearby were his father and two sisters.

They had been on a happy excursion to visit relatives in Chicago, as they often did, and were almost back home again.

Then came the nightmare. From a hospital bed later, little Robert told about it in halting phrases as he emerged from the shock of a terrible series of events.

"I was sitting in the seat next to mommy," he said.

"I don't know what happened but all of a sudden I began to slide and we went under the seat.

"Then I was on something in the water.

"Mommy was holding me.

"Then in the water we couldn't stay up.

"I tried to hold my breath. I was cold. My arms felt frozen."

Little Robert could speak no further. But somehow he knew of the tragedy that had befallen him. His murmurs to attendants made it all too plain that he knew his parents and sisters were dead.

Robert and his mother were rescued from the icy waters and rushed to the hospital. His mother died in the hospital.

His father, Joseph, and sisters, Patricia, 13, and Joan, 5, were listed among those missing as searchers continued to scour the waters of the East River for bodies.

. . . I Gave up Twice

Seymour Kemach, 36, a Brooklyn salesman and former resident of Coral Gables, was a passenger aboard the ill-fated American Airlines Electra that crashed in New York Tuesday night.

Kemach managed the Three Sisters store in Hollywood and later the Three Sisters shop on Miracle Mile between 1946 and 1951.

He was sitting in the plane's lounge joking with the stewardesses when the plane slammed into the East River. This is his story.

By SEYMOUR KEMACH
As Told to United Press International

God was good to me. It's the only way I could figure it out.

I wasn't sitting in my seat. I was sitting in the plane's lounge with another guy and two stewardesses. We were talking and joking. I was strapped into my seat.

Then we went down and I thought I was going to die.

How did I get out of the plane? I don't know, but I helped pull out two hostesses and a little boy.

That water was cold. I thought I'd never see my wife

Runway Lacked Safety Devices

Strip Had No Lights, CAB Says

NEW YORK — (UPI) — An American Airlines prop-jet Electra which plunged into the East River killing 65 persons was trying to land on a runway lacking adequate instrument devices and without runway approach lights, it was revealed Wednesday night.

The new two-million-dollar Lockheed airliner, equipped with every safety factor, crashed shortly before Monday midnight in fog and drizzle less than 30 seconds short of a LaGuardia runway on a nonstop flight from Chicago.

There were 73 aboard. Nine survivors were fished from the icy water with boathooks by a tugboat crew. One of the survivors, a woman, died later.

Joseph Fluet, chief regional investigator for the Civil Aeronautics Board, revealed that the runway had instrument equipment advising the pilot on his direction but not whether he was coming in too high or low over the water for a landing.

Capt. Albert H. Dewitt, of Decatur, Mich., the 59-year-old pilot with 30 years experience and one of the first to qualify on jet-prop planes, was killed. American had inagurated the Electra service only 12 days ago.

Investigators of the new Federal Aviation Agency revealed that the runway toward which Dewitt was headed was not equipped with instruments to inform the pilot whether his glide path approach was too high or too low.

There was a ceiling of 400 feet and visibility of two miles as the Electra approached Runway 22, known as the "black course." It had an instrument landing system which automatically radioes the plane if it is coming in the proper direction.

But, investigators said, that runway does not have the second beam advising the plane its altitude and distance from the runway. LaGuardia is equipped with radar. It was not known whether Dewitt asked the control tower to advise whether his approach was all right on the radar scopes.

A DC-3 had landed on the same runway just a few minutes before. The Electra made its last radio contact at 11:54 p.m. (Miami time) when it received landing permission. It crashed at 11:57 p.m. less than a mile from the field, traveling at 135 miles an hour.

The crash also could have involved pilot error. The approach to Runway 22 necessitates a long overwater glide. Technical reports show pilots making over-water approaches at night or in poor weather often suffer loss of depth perception, leading them to believe they are higher than they actually are.

The sleek four-engine liner smashed into the East River with a blast of noise that a tugboat captain said "sounded like dynamite." There was no flash of light nor any fire in

Day and Place Are Weirdly Similar as Tragedies Strike Two Years Apart

Producer Of 'Kukla' On Airliner

CHICAGO — (AP) — Miss Beulah Zachary, television pioneer who produced the show, "Kukla, Fran and Ollie," for 10 years, was bound for New York Tuesday night in a renewed effort to bring the show to live audiences.

She was listed Wednesday among the missing and presumed dead in the crash of an American Airlines plane.

Miss Zachary, who advanced from the role of studio hand to producer-director within three years after joining Station WBKB in Chicago in 1944, was personal manager and adviser to Burr Tillstrom, creater of the show.

Kukla and Ollie were a pair of puppet people. Their antics with Fran Allison delighted oldsters as well as the young before the show was dropped by the American Broadcasting Co. in 1957.

Tillstrom was the voice and life to Kukla, Ollie and several other "Kuklapolitans."

Northeast Pilot Recalls '57 Crash

By GENE MILLER
Herald Staff Writer

Two years and three days ago a Northeast Airlines plane crashed into New York's East River, killing 20 persons.

The pilot was a Miami man, Capt. Alva R. Marsh, 6020 SW 133rd St. He escaped unhurt. Months later the Civil Aeronautics Board ruled he was to blame.

Wednesday, Marsh remembered.

"It's a terrible thing," said Marsh. "It is horrible. I know.

"When you have been so close to it, you know. I'm sorry. I just don't want to talk about it. I don't want to comment on it."

Marsh, 50, now working in Northeast's operations office in New York City, was reached by telephone. He said he learned about the crash Wednesday morning.

"I wasn't working Tuesday night," he said.

Marsh's family still lives here. He considers Miami his home. He flew as a military and commercial pilot 26 years.

The CAB ruled March 11, 1958, that he "did not demonstrate the skill and care required of an airline pilot."

He hasn't flown regularly since.

Marsh personally pulled 20 to 25 passengers through a hole in the left side of the fuselage after the crash two years ago. He was the last living survivor to leave the wreckage.

"I just couldn't get her up," he said only hours after the crash. "Her power just draned out. But none of the instruments showed it. She just wouldn't go up."

Ike's Plane Runs Into Storm

VALDOSTA, Ga. — (UPI) — A heavy rain and thunderstorm pummelled President Eisenhower's plane, bringing the chief executive to a South Georgia vacation retreat Wednesday, forcing it to fly to an alternate field for a landing by instruments and radar. It landed safely at 4:18 p.m. (Miami time) at Valdosta.

A line squall from a Gulf of Mexico storm system raked the Valdosta-Moultrie area just as the presidential plane Columbine arrived for a scheduled landing at Spence Air Base, Moultrie, then flew on to Valdosta. The landing was delayed more than an hour because of the bad weather.

Russians Back Off on Search, Let Trucks Go

HELMSTEDT, Germany, — (UPI)— The Russians backed down during cold-war maneuvering Wednesday night and released an American truck convoy held within a stone's throw of the West German frontier since Monday.

The five GIs manning the four trucks quickly gunned the vehicles past the border checkpoints into the West to end 56 cold hours of detention in East Germany.

They were not allowed to talk to waiting newsmen.

Soviet border guards freed the trucks finally after a meeting between State Department official Findlay Burns and Col, H. F. Markushin, of the Russian army. Burns said the Soviets had dropped their original demand to inspect the trucks' cargoes, but he did not elaborate.

Russian troopers carrying machineguns stopped the trucks Monday afternoon within 50 yards of the U. S. Army's border station here. The troopers insisted the open vehicles had to be searched.

Cpl. Richard C. Masiero, of West Stockbridge, Mass., who was in charge of the convoy during a 110-mile trip through East Germany from West Berlin to the frontier, replied that the trucks contained only jeeps. He refused to allow a search.

The border incident triggered a flurry of cold-war maneuvering highlighted Wednesday by Burns' frontier conference and a State Department protest to Moscow which demanded the release of the trucks and men.

American officials regarded the Russian action as an attempt to embarrass the West by a token cut-off of the land route to West Berlin within shouting distance of the West's heavily - guarded frontier.

Burns, who is deputy political adviser to the U. S. Mission in Berlin, conferred with the Soviets for two-and-a-half hours in their wooden checkpoint only 150 yards down the road at Marienborn. He returned to the Western side of the border and announced he had reached agreement for release of the trucks and men.

A few moments after Burns crossed the border, the lights of the trucks came on and their engines roared into action. The vehicles moved through the Soviet barrier, which had been raised for them, and continued uninterrupted past the Western checkpoint into West Germany.

Those in the trucks besides Masiero were Drivers Pfc. Benjamin G. Peoples, 20, of Theodore, Ala.; Specialist Robert E. Love, 20, of Plain City, Ohio; Specialist Elwood F. Johnson, 29, of Brooklyn and Specialist James E. Cook, 22, of Hardeeville, S.C.

U.S., Britain Agree On Europe Parley

LONDON—(UPI)—The U. S. and Britain agreed in principle here Wednesday night to meet with Russia in a four-power conference of foreign ministers this spring on Berlin, the overall German issue and European security, diplomatic sources reported.

The sources said the Anglo-American accord emerged in the first round of talks here between U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

But the U.S. and Britain were determined to resist any Soviet attempt to dictate the agenda of such a conference or limit it to the Berlin crisis, the diplomatic sources said.

Interama Finds A Home in Miami

After a seven-year search, the proposed Inter-American Cultural and Trade Center found a home Wednesday.

By a 4 to 1 vote, the Miami City Commission agreed to transfer the 1,675-acre Graves Tract at the head of Biscayne Bay to the Interama Authority as a site for the long-sought project.

Purpose of the center—expected to cost about 30 million dollars when completed—is to promote cultural and business relations between Miami and Latin American countries.

Included in the transfer Wednesday were safeguards calling for the appointment of three commissioners as authority members; support by the State Legislature and Gov. LeRoy Collins, and assurance that the property will be returned to the city if the project is not successful.

Commissioner James High cast the lone negative vote on the grounds he wanted more time to study the proposal.

Last December the Metro Commission got Interama off the ground by appropriating a half million dollars for administrative expenses for two years.

"No single act by an official body in Dade County could be more far-reaching for the future economic and cultural well-being of the area."

Pawley estimated the financing arrangements will take several months to work out. The Interama Authority plans to borrow the necessary money through commercial channels.

"At last all of te principal obstacles to the project are removed," Pawley commented.

The Graves Tract in North Dade extends southward from Ocean Boulevard (NE 163rd St.) between U.S. 1 and Biscayne Bay.

Burst Blood Vessel in Eye

Bob Hope Can't Be Here But Big Show Goes on

A burst blood vessel in his left eye Wednesday knocked Bob Hope out a trip to Miami to be master of ceremonies tonight at the Variety Club's annual "Show of Shows."

"This is the first time in 25 years that I have had to renege on a promise to do a benefit," the veteran funnyman told officials here in a telephone call from Hollywood.

HOPE

He said his doctors told him that the plane trip to Miami might cost him the sight in his left eye. He was putting compresses on the eye Wednesday.

But even without Hope — who predicted the show will still draw a "packed house"— Jack Benny and dozens of big-name film, stage and television stars are here for the program. See story on Page 5C.

Ike's Parting Shot At Demo Spenders: 'What of Taxes?'

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower threw the gage of battle to Congress Wednesday, before flying to Georgia to cope with the quail.

Eisenhower took the unusual step of offering hostile comment on legislation not yet presented to him for his signature by the "spenders" of the Democratic 86th Congress.

The President's attitude made it clear that he intends to slug it out with the Democrats as the defender of an already shrunken dollar.

Eisenhower's vigorous and unsolicited criticism of two pending congressional proposals, offered at his press conference, was almost like a promotion ad for the television appearances the President plans to make this winter in his fight to hold the line against federal spending and inflation.

The President hoped a week ago that somebody at his press conference would ask his views about the airport construction bill, a 575-million-dollar tid-bit now in preparation by the Democratic majority.

But nobody raised the question last week and Eisenhower didn't wait Wednesday. He opened his seance with the reporters with a blast not only at the airport construction bill, but at the housing bill now going through the legislative machinery.

"If we are going to ask for these new expenditures," he said, "why doesn't each one of these bills include a measure for increasing taxes?

"That would be the straightforward, honest way to see whether the U.S. really wants this kind of thing." The President declined to say whether he would use his veto power in this fight with the "spenders," but there is no doubt that he intends to veto at least the airport construction bill as it is now shaping up.

The housing bill now before Congress contemplates spending $1,300,000,000 more than the President has recommended.

The airport construction bill, which the President regards as classic of pork-barrel legislation, would spend $375,000,000 more than the White House, the Budget Bureau, and the Federal Aviation Agency regard as prudent.

And Eisenhower made it very clear that he thinks that members of Congress are fakers when they come up with big spending measures and make no provision for taxes to meet the costs.

"I don't believe we should have higher taxes, and I do not believe the U.S. wants higher taxes," the President said.

Air Crash Killing 65 Is Probed

The tug H. Thomas Teti, towing two barges, was only a little more than 200 yards away. It cut loose the barges, opened full speed and rushed toward a fuselage and wing picked up in its spotlight.

The crew of eight lined the rail and pulled the living from the icy water with boathooks. Among them were Mrs. Lorraine Sullivan, 40, and her son, Robert, eight. The boy lived. Mrs. Sullivan died five hours later. The father, Joseph, and two daughters, Patricia, 13, and Joan, five, also perished. They were from Hempstead, N.Y.

Among the others killed were Beulah Zachary, Chicago TV producer of the Kukla, Fran and Ollie show.

Three of the five-member crew survived. Co-pilot Frank Hlavacek, 33, Wilmette, Ill., is in critical condition as is Joan Zeller, 21, Riverside, N. Y., a stewardess who began flying six months ago because "it is so thrilling." Warren E. Cook, 36, flight engineer from Aurora, Ill., is in poor condition.

Seymour Kemach, 36, a salesman from Brooklyn, pulled the Sullivan boy and the two stewardesses from the wreckage and suffered only a broken leg himself. Mae Markides, Rochester, N.Y., the other stewardess, died.

Also killed was Richard Winn of Norwalk, Conn., an American Airline executive appointed Feb. 1 to head the airline's jet research, development and planning.

Capt. Samuel Nickerson, 57, Rockland, Mass., captain of the tug Teti, said he didn't know at first what had happened when he heard the tremendous blast.

"We turned on our search light and the beam picked up wreckage floating in mud and water about 700 feet off our bow," he said.

Co-Capt. Everett Phelps, 48, Arlington, Vt., said the crew fished out the living with boathooks. They didn't bother with the dead, he said.

"Three people were perched on the fuselage," Phelps continued. "We hauled them aboard. As we did so, a hand poked through a door in the wreckage. The man inside called for help.

"Crewmen yanked on the door with hooks but couldn't get it open. Then the fuselage section pulled away from the hooks. The man's hand disappeared."

The Teti, operating out of New Haven, Conn., had not been affected by the current New York tugboat strike. Phelps said that if more boats had been around, more people could have been saved but they couldn't survive in the icy water.

Coast Guard boats, police launches, other tugs and helicopters converged quickly on the scene but the tug was the only one to rescue survivors.

Bodies of the dead were carried to a makeshift morgue near the airport where they were put in leather bags. Police said some bodies were being swept by the swift current out into the waters of Long Island Sound under the Whitestone bridge.

A Continent Apart

2 Boeing 707s Have Mishaps, Land Safely

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Two Boeing 707 jet passenger planes landed safely at airports a continent apart despite mishaps resulting from "malfunctions" in flight. There were no injuries in either case.

A Pan American World Airways 707 en route from Paris to New York dropped swiftly from a 30,000 foot altitude to 6,000 feet over the North Atlantic when the autopilot that keeps the plane level suddenly went on the blink.

Another 707 operated by American Airlines reported apparent trouble in the hydraulic system while en route from New York to Los Angeles.

In both cases the crew quickly got matters under control and landed the plane without trouble.

The Pan American plane ran into its trouble 500 miles east of Gander, Nfld., its next scheduled stop. The plane was carrying 114 passengers, including actor-dancer Gene Kelly, and a crew of 10.

Harry Clark of New York, pilot of the American Airlines jet en route to Los Angeles with 112 persons aboard alerted International Airport at Los Angeles that he might have to make an emergency landing.

Weather Plane Down; 12 Aboard

NEW YORK —(UPI)— An Air Force plane with 12 men aboard was believed to have crashed in flames midway between New York and Bermuda Wednesday while on a weather reconnaissance flight.

An Air Force spokesman in Washington said a WB-50 converted bomber had been missing about 7:40 a.m. in the area where a Japanese ship reported seeing a plane "fall down with fire."

The Coast Guard here said it last had word from the plane at 7:35 a.m. At 8:46 a.m., the Coast Guard said, the Japanese freighter Kochu Maru radioed it had seen the plane fall an hour earlier, but had searched the area and found nothing.

The Coast Guard dispatched two search planes from Bermuda and one from Brooklyn. The Navy sent out a plane from Bermuda.

The Coast Guard also ordered the cutter Mackinac to the scene from Bermuda, but said the vessel probably would not reach the area until early Thursday.

The Air Force said the missing WB-50, out of Bermuda, had had enough fuel on board to stay in the air until midnight.

The Kochu Maru said it had to abandon the search because its cargo was shifting. The vessel reported very high seas, winds 36 to 46 miles an hour and visbility one-half to one mile.

Child Tells Story Of Death in River After Plane Crash

again. You don't know. I came close to giving up.

I swam in the water to a tugboat. I swear to God I gave up twice. You just don't know how lucky I was. Now I know I'll live to be 60.

I'm in good shape, only my ankle. But oh my back, my leg, my head. And I'm still freezing. That water—it was cold!

. . . Bodies All Around

NEW YORK—(AP)—A tugboat skipper Wednesday gave a graphic eyewitness account of the American Airliner's crackup near his vessel in the East River, and of frantic efforts to rescue passengers.

The skipper, Everett Phelps, 48, said he would never be able to forget some of the sights and sounds. Phelps told this story:

"We were heading down the East River towing two empty barges from Seabrook, Conn. We heard a terrific crash. I was at the helm.

"The noise seemed to come from about 800 feet away. We turned on a searchlight and saw a plane cracking up in all directions.

"We immediately cut loose the barges, and I and some of the crew members jumped into the water. It was a shallow place, and we waded through mud.

"I pulled three persons out. There seemed to be bodies all around, and there were continual screams for help.

"We got eight persons aboard, using boat hooks on most of them.

The captain paused, then went on:

"When we got to the scene the plane was in small bits. The tail section, which seemed intact, was sticking out of the water. The rest was in pieces.

"We managed to snag a large part of the fuselage, with boat hooks, on which were perched three persons.

"As we hauled them aboard I saw a hand poke through a door in the wreckage. It looked like the pilot's door, and I heard a man cry for help.

"We yanked at he door with boat hooks and tried to open it.

"Just as the wreckage began to pull away I saw the hand disappear and heard a man cry, 'Stop!'

"I'll never forget it. I think it was the pilot. I had to let it go."

A disturbance moving across the north central states spread snow over the upper Mississippi Valley and cold north winds behind the system carried snow from the Dakotas into Nebraska while temperatures were again below zero along the North Dakota, Minnesota border at noon Wednesday.

Cooler weather in the Pacific Northwest and a trend to colder from the northern and central Rockies into New England will include overnight temperatures as low as 20 to 30 below zero in parts of Minnesota.

Except for a few showers in Washington State and snow flurries in the northern mountains of California, dry weather should prevail over most of the Pacific states and plateau regions while snow or flurries will be scattered from the Rockies into portions of the western plains.

Rains over the southeast should give way to partly cloudy skies on Thursday but with a few showers lingering in Southern Florida.

A pattern of snow from Missouri into New England with flurries southward into the mountains of North Carolina during the night is expected to spread one to three inches of new snow across portions of the southern Great Lakes diminishing to flurries

Atlas Flight Success

CAPE CANAVERAL—(UPI)—An intercontinental Atlas, capable of boosting itself all the way to the moon, followed orders early Wednesday on a routine flight that ended a key development series.

After the burly missile blasted off at 3:01 a.m., the Air Force said the flight was "another in the Atlas research and development series." Defense officials in Washington later announced the Atlas flew its intended range of "less than ICBM distance" in a successful test.

Informed sources said the range was about 4,300 miles, and the Atlas was the last in the "B" development series. In this phase the weapon was tested as a complete missile—with all three of its engines and its separable nose cone—over ranges approaching ICBM distance.

One "B" series Atlas, fired Nov. 28, made an all-the-way hope of 6,325 miles. But two other attempts to send the missile full range were unsuccessful.

The secrecy-cloaked firing of the Atlas satellite Dec. 18 has led to speculation in this missile-conscious area that the Air Force may try to shoot an entire Atlas—not just a small probe payload—to the moon.

Officials here have said they know of no such plans for the Convair-made Atlas, but United Press International learned the 100-ton Atlas is capable of such a feat.

In an official Air Force publication (the U.S. Air Force Report on the Ballistic Missile), missile men disclosed that the Atlas "reaches a thrust cutoff velocity near the escape velocity."

It was learned that the Atlas, designed to hurl a 5,000-pound hydrogen warhead across oceans, could reach the escape speed of 25,200 miles an hour if it carried no payload in its nose cone.

Missile men conceded that there would be great propaganda value in such an achievement. But they said it was unlikely the Air Force would try to reach the moon with an Atlas without including some useful scientific payload such as the Thor-Able moon rockets carried last year.

Although the Atlas is scheduled to be operational and in the hands of troops by June 30, plans call for continued testing of the missile through 1962. The new test series will be aimed at simplifying the Atlas and making it a more reliable weapon.

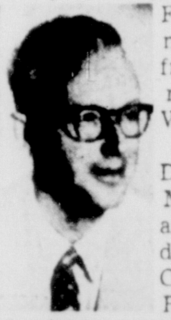
Meanwhile, a few hundred yards northwest of the Atlas launching stands, the Air Force began preparing for another effort to launch the first Titan ICBM. The Titan, considered potentially more powerful than the Atlas, fizzled again on its second launching try Tuesday but the trouble was believed to be minor.

However, there was no indication when the next attempt to fire the Titan would be made.

Today's Atlas, the 20th fired since testing began in June, 1957, blazed into a starry, cloudless sky in another spectacular launching. Just before its "sustainer" engine burned out three and a half minutes after blastoff.

Russians 'Confident,' Says Writer

BABSON PARK — Russian women "shovel snow, dig ditches and work on construction projects just like men," a Florida newsman just back from the USSR reported here Wednesday.



McDERMOTT

John B. McDermott, of The Miami Herald, also told students at Webber College that the Russians have built up confidence in their economic potential to a point where they feel they can outstrip the United States.

"The whole country is revved up with an enthusiam that the Russians are a people of destiny, a people who in the next 12 years will develop a living standard superior to ours," McDermott reported.

He predicted this will not happen—but he warned that the gains which the USSR makes under the momentum of the new Seven Year plan "will prove considerable and [illegible] astonishing."

Want More Judges

3 'Relief' Courts Now Bogged Down

TALLAHASSEE—(AP)—State District Courts of Appeal, created to relieve an overburdened State Supreme Court, now are so bogged down in cases themselves they must have relief, a joint legislative appropriations subcommittee was told Wednesday.

The sub-committee learned the Legislature will be asked to add three judges to the South Florida District Court and two judges to the Central Florida Court.

NURSE Agnes E. M. Anderson of Orlando was recently elected president of the American Nurses' Foundation. Former executive secretary of the Florida Nurses' Association, Miss Anderson is a graduate of the Jersey City Medical Center School of Nursing and has a B.S. degree from Seton Hall University, Newark.

The sub-committee, apparently seeking a way to avoid adding judges to the court at Miami, registered surprise at the announcement of Judge William Allen that the Lakeland court wants two judges.

Committee members conceded case loads of the Miami and Lakeland courts were extreme. However, House Appropriations Chairman W. C. Herrell of Dade County and others sought to bring out that other judges could be assigned to temporary duty.

All the district judges vetoed this suggestion, except as an emergency measure.

Judge Wallace Sturgis of the North Florida district, which has the lightest case load, said a judge moved from his regular post to temporary duty actually won't be of much help.

Judge Mallory Horton of the third district said, "You can't bring in a judge for a week and alleviate a case load."

Judge Allen said 300 cases a year are all a court can handle efficiently. But he said the court at Lakeland handles 450 and the court at Miami 600.

Herrell remarked, "the Legislature approved the district courts because we were told the Supreme Court was so overloaded it could not give the people proper service and was forced to write a lot of sloppy opinions. If the district courts now are even more overburdened, it appears we must be getting more sloppy opinions than we had under the Supreme Court."

Sikes Asks 1st Settler Recognition

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Congressional recognition of the 400th anniversary this year of the first permanent colonization by Europeans in what is now the U.S. was requested Wednesday by Rep. Robert R. L. Sikes (D., Fla.).

Sikes, saying he spoke for the entire Florida congressional delegation, asked a House judiciary subcommittee to approve his bill granting formal congressional acknowledgement of the quadricentennial anniversary.

Celebrations will be held at a number of Florida cities between May 1959 and 1965. Pensacola plans a celebration beginning in May this year which will lead up to a re-enactment of the landing of a Spanish group in 1559. The St. Augustine celebration in 1965 will close the seven-year program.

Sikes said the Florida Quadricentennial Commission will not ask for federal financial assistance.

Found With Dead Uncle

Clung to Boat for 14 Hours

INVERNESS — Young Jimmy Fillmon was too weak to move and his uncle was dead when the boy was found clinging to an overturned boat in the Gulf of Mexico, his rescuer said Wednesday.

The 16-year-old Homasassa youth spent 14 hours holding to the capsized craft in choppy seas before a state conservation agent, Marion Oliver of Crystal River, came upon him and the body of Jimmy's uncle, Harry H. Fillmon, 51.

The elder Fillmon, a professional fisherman who moved to Homasassa from Largo nine months ago, died from exhaustion and exposure.

Oliver said Jimmy "was too weak to move. I had to drag him off the overturned boat and into the one I was using."

The youth who is recovering in a hospital, said he went crabbing with his uncle in the gulf about 70 miles north of St. Petersburg Monday. A wave filled the boat with water shortly after noon.

Jimmy related he and Fillmon worked for eight hours in a futile attempt to bail out the craft. It capsized and overturned about 8 p.m.

Fillmon died about two hours later, the boy said. Jimmy tied the body to the hull of the boat to keep it from slipping into the water.

Oliver, who helps in Gulf searches in the area, went out Tuesday looking for the missing boat.

"I spotted what appeared to be a rock several miles out in the Gulf," Oliver said. "It was foggy and choppy and I went to take a closer look.

"The boy managed to raise one arm and wave. Then I knew it was an overturned boat."

State Seeks New Law To Cut Welfare Costs

Rose Asked More Jobs, Aide Says

By JOHN BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins' chief administrative assistant said Wednesday Tallahassee printer, Charles Rosenberg, who gets the bulk of the state's printing, had complained to him that he "wasn't getting enough business" from agencies under the governor.

William Durden said Rosenberg called on him about six months ago and the conversation came to a close after Durden told Rosenberg he would have to deal directly with individual department heads.

"He didn't say or do anything improper," Durden said, explaining that Rosenberg just quoted figures showing percentages of printing business he was getting from several agencies.

Durden said Rosenberg has not contacted him on the matter since but Walter Frank, sales manager for Rose Printing Co. of which Rosenberg is president, brought up the subject in "casual" conversation four or five times."

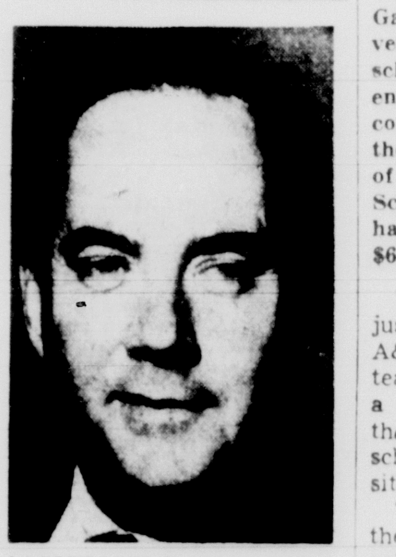
Durden said "several printers have contacted the office but only to ask to be placed on the invitation to bid list. We have made it a policy to refer their names to the department heads with the suggestion they be added to the list."

Gov. Collins had previously said one printer had complained he wasn't getting enough business under his administration from the governor's "little cabinet" agencies but he didn't identify him.

State Rep. John E. Mathews Jr. of Jacksonville has said he is going to call for a legislative investigation of state printing practices to eliminate waste and see that all printers get a "fair shake."

Gov. Collins endorsed Mathews' proposal and the legislator's call for a broad central purchasing system to include printing.

Collins also called for complete reports from each of the agencies directly under his supervision on all printing jobs let in 1958.



ASSISTANT U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of Florida is Jacksonville Lawyer E. Coleman Madsen. U.S. Attorney James Guilmartin, who announced the appointment to the new post Tuesday, said Madsen will have his headquarters in Miami. He'll supervise Tampa, Miami and Jacksonville offices.

Takes Aim On Fraud Practices

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — The Legislative Council's public welfare committee said Wednesday it will recommend legislation to the next session to curb illegitimacy in an effort to hold down rising public welfare costs.

Chairman Tom Adams of Orange Park said the problem of aid to dependent illegitimate children had been attacked in the past by trying to limit the number of illegitimate children a woman could have and still receive payments.

He suggested a better approach would be to outlaw common law marriages, or in some other way define a proper home, then cut off support to children not living in one.

"There isn't a man on this committee that wants to see a child go hungry," he said, "but at the same time we don't want to subsidize loose morals."

The committee met with representatives of the State Welfare Board, the Welfare Department and the Legislature's interim welfare committee, to work out ways to hold down rising costs of the welfare program in Florida.

It is also seeking ways to stop fraudulent applications for state aid, and a uniform prosecution law to enable legal action to be taken against persons receiving illegal support.

Welfare Board Chairman J. Hal Stalling of Tampa said he did not think a law limiting the number of illegitimate children to one or two to a family would curb illegal births.

He said a plan is presently in use in Mississippi which refuses support for children who are not living in a proper home.

However, Adams said the state would still be left with the problem of taking care of children refused aid because they were not living in a proper home. He said the Legislature would have to find some way to provide for them.

However, he said the law would eventually solve the problem of women giving birth to illegitimate children just to receive state money.

Rep. E. C. Rowell of Sumter County suggested a public education program to tell the people that state welfare is a charity, not a pension system to which they are automatically entitled.

He said if more people realized it was a charity program, they would stay off the welfare rolls. At the same time, he said, applicants for state aid should be required to make their applications under oath.

The committee agreed to recommend a bill requiring all applications to be made under oath, and recommened creation of a uniform prosecution bill which would set down rules for action against fraudulent applications.

Stallings told the committee the department is drawing up a manual for local boards, setting official policy on carrying prosecution cases from start to finish.

Legislators 'Willing to Pay Price' to Keep Segregation

TALLAHASSEE —(UPI)— Key members of House and Senate appropriations committees said Wednesday they are not interested in saving money at the expense of racial segregation.

Only one of a dozen legislators here for biennial budget hearings had a favorable word for Gov. LeRoy Collins' suggestion that the Legislature consider closing expensive graduate schools at A&M University for Negroes.

Rep. Ralph Turlington of Gainesville, seat of the University of Florida whose law school was integrated with enrollment of one Negro on court orders last fall, said there is "merit" to the idea of abolishing the Negro Law School, which in past times has cost the state as high as $60,000 per student.

Turlington said there is no justification for closing the A&M graduate school in teacher education which has a large enrollment and costs the state no more than similar schools at the white universities.

"It might be sound to close the law school, though," he said.

His senate colleague, J. Emory Cross of Gainesville, disagreed, as did Sen. Wilson Carraway of Tallahassee, where A&M and Florida State are located.

"Florida knew when it established the graduate schools at A&M that it would be expensive and we were willing to pay the price for segregation," Cross said. "I am still willing to pay it."

Carraway, Senate appropriations chairman, said closing the A&M graduate schools would "just be hastening integration at our other universities and I could not go along with that."

His views were shared by Sens. Randolph Hodges, Cedar Key, S. D. Clarke, Monticello, and Doyle Carlton, Wauchula. Carlton, usually a Collins' supporter, said he would never vote to "encourage" intergration.

Rep. W. C. Herrell of Miami Springs, House spending chairman, withheld comment until detailed cost figures are available. But he said he will base his decision on "dollars and cents."

Turlington said no matter what is done about the A&M Law School, there probably will always be an average of three or four Negroes in the law school at Gainesville in the future.

School Plan Is Favored

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— The Ervin-Bailey parent-option tuition plan for bolstering Florida's stand against public school integration appears to be drawing favor from a majority of the Legislature.

However, several of the no surrender segregationists view it with open skepticism. And one, Sen. J. Emory Cross of Gainesville, labels it a "sham" which will give the people a false sense of security.

A sizable contingent of legislators was in the capital Wednesday. Most of them support, in varying degrees, the plan.

Sen. S. D. Clarke of Monticello, dean of the Senate and regarded by his colleagues as their number one constitutional expert, said the plan to permit parents to withdraw their children from an integrated public school and provide a state tuition grant to help finance private education "looks all right."

Toronto Official Demurs

State Still Pressing For Return of Canadian

TALLAHASSEE—(AP)—R. O. Culver, director of Florida's division of corrections, said Wednesday the state will not drop its efforts to extradite a Canadian fugitive, 20-year-old Kenneth William Brymer of Toronto.

In Toronto, however, Ontario Reforms Minister George Wardrope indicated that extradition proceedings probably will not be pressed.

Wardrope told the Ontario Legislature that one of his deputies asked Florida authorities to suspend proceedings unless the youth gets in trouble again in the southern state.

Wardrope said the request was "well received" in Florida.

Two months after his Florida escape he was sentenced to a two-year term in Kingston (Ont.) Penetentiary for breaking and entering. His term ends in May.

Brymer was sentenced June 2, 1955, in Citrus County for breaking into a cafe-filling station, making himself a meal and leaving with $160 and some guns. He escaped from a Florida road camp March 25, 1957, and went to Toronto, his home town.

Florida authorities have been trying since June 1957 to have Brymer returned. A fugitive warrant issued for him then was rejected by Canadian authorities.

Migrant Housing Bill Introduced

Herald Service

WASHINGTON — A bill, introduced by Rep. Paul G. Rogers (D., Fla.), that would provide improved housing for migrant laborers, was aired Monday before the House Sub-committee on Housing of the Committee on Banking and Currency.

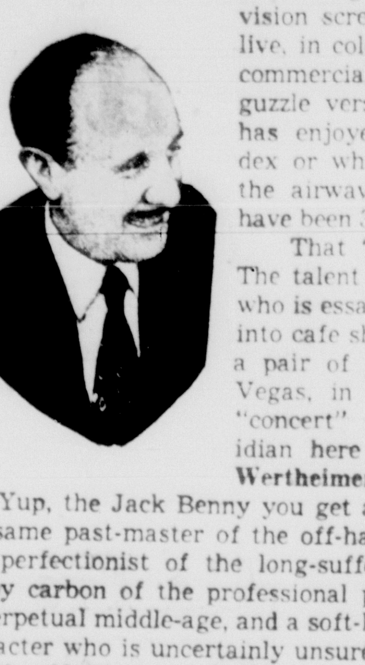
Rogers testified, "only when we can provide decent housing can we hope to clean up deplorable conditions existing in the labor camps and farms where migrant labor is housed."

Roger's bill, which grew out of the worse than usual conditions created by last winter's freeze, calls for federal insurance on loans by investors for construction of migrant labor housing.

The bill was introduced during the last Congress, but failed to get favorable consideration by the House during the last days of the session. A new bill was therefore necessary.

Nightlife with George Bourke

Benny's Nightclub Invasion Frolics to a Sweeping Victory



TWICE NIGHTLY — at something around 9:30 and later near oneish in a repeat for the late coast — Ben Novack's enlarged La Ronde Room of the Fontainebleau Hotel is converted these evenings into a 500-inch television screen on which is shown, live, in color and in 3-D a sort of commercial-free, pay - as - you-guzzle version of a talent which has enjoyed high Hooper, Trendex or what-have-you ratings on the airwaves for what seems to have been 39 years.

That "39" should be a clue. The talent is that of Jack Benny, who is essaying his first excursion into cafe show business, excepting a pair of previous dates in Las Vegas, in modern times and a "concert" at the old Floridian here in the 20's for Mert Wertheimer.

Yup, the Jack Benny you get at the Fontainebleau is the same past-master of the off-hand delivery, the identical perfectionist of the long-suffering petulant pose, a happy carbon of the professional protestant of the state of perpetual middle-age, and a soft-key echo of the familiar character who is uncertainly unsure of himself and covers it with self-effacing boastfulness.

* * *

Gisele MacKenzie a Charmer

THESE MATTERS are not the usual fare for cafes.

The habitual pub-crawler might complain that Mr. Benny doesn't have "an act," even with some business with Gisele MacKenzie, who sings, looks and plays the violin with memorable charm, and with Chiquita and Johnson, a pair of exciting dancers. That well might be—by night club standards—but if Mr. Benny doesn't have "an act" then somebody had a charm ray gun concealed somewhere in the wings and was wafting waves of winning stuff audience-wise at the show we caught.

Mr. Benny doesn't overwhelm or shock you in the manner that the Ritz Brothers or Louis Prima and Keely Smith might but when you look at your watch and find he has been on stage something like 40 minutes and it didn't seem like 10 you know you have been watching a personality with class and show savvy at work.

He relies almost completely on techniques and routines already proven audience-proof. He chatters topically and about show business. He fiddles in solo and in duet with Miss MacKenzie and allows an intrusion of the dance team to bring his famous expression of resigned tolerance to his face. And, in his only departure into un-television lines, he makes a mildly daring comparison of the bags under Phil Harris' eyes to the anatomy of a female.

In her solo spot Miss MacKenzie is as clean and refreshing as one of her native Canadian summer breezes. In gimmick-free voice she enchants with a repertory which ranges from a French folk song to a medley of Broadway hit tunes of the Rodgers and Hammerstein variety. You won't learn any new dirty or boorish jokes from Benny and MacKenzie but you won't be bored either.

'Viva Cuba' Rushed to Theaters

WARNER BROTHERS is rushing prints of Carl Dudley's "Viva, Cuba!" out to the theaters to take advantage of the headlines . . . Did you know that the National Suit and Coat Recovery Board is meeting at the EmPRESS Hotel? Wonder if their theme song is "Look for the Silver Lining."

Jack Benny

Bennett Cerf

Jerry Brooks

Add intriguing names: Dawn Greenhalgg, a member of the Canadian Players who will present "As You Like It" at Barry College Auditorium on Feb. 21. Actually she's Mrs. Ted Follows, wife of the troupe's co-star . . . Jimmy Grippo, hypnotist and card manipulator, mesmerizing a steak at Charcoal Hut in Surfside . . . Now there's swank King Arthur's Court in Miami Springs Villas, and there's King Arthur Drive-In on Coral Way. They are not related.

A Los Angeles periodical states: "The foul Florida weather has already put 'Operation Petticoat' behind schedule." Ouch, fellers, my sunburn hurts when we laugh! . . . Wonder if Bennett Cerf has a copy of Milton Berle's new book, "Earthquake" with him at the Fontainebleau? That was the Walter "Lake Tarleton" Jacobs first-nighting with Gabriel Heatter at the Jack Benny opening . . . Jerry Brooks of Luau and the Havana Capri Casino, will be home from Heart Institute today . . .

Marjory Douglas Poem Recited

A lyric poem by Coconut Grove's Marjory Stoneman Douglas "Martin Tabert of North Dakota," was performed in Elmo Russ's setting in a New Art's League concert in New York City last week.

The occasion was a recital of songs by Russ, baritone-pianist, in Steinway Hall.

Former Gables Resident Tells Ordeal

He Gave Up But 'God Was Good'

—Associated Press Wirephoto

Seymour Kemach Swam to Tug

. . . 'now I know I'll live to be 60'

Seymour Kemach, 36, a Brooklyn salesman and former resident of Coral Gables, was a passegner aboard the ill-fated American Airlines Electra that crashed in New York Tuesday night.

Kemach managed the Three Sisters Store in Hollywood and later the Three Sisters shop on Miracle Mile between 1946 and 1951.

He was sitting in the plane's lounge joking with the stewardesses when the plane slammed into the East River. This is the story he told

By SEYMOUR KEMACH
As Told to United Press International

God was good to me. It's the only way I could figure it out.

I wasn't sitting in my seat. I was sitting in the plane's lounge with another guy and two stewardesses. We were talking and joking. I was strapped into my seat.

Then we went down and I thought I was going to die.

How did I get out of the plane? I don't know, but I helped pull out two hostesses and a little boy.

That water was cold. I thought I'd never see my wife again. You don't know. I came close to giving up.

I swam in the water to a tugboat. I swear to God I gave up twice. You just don't know how lucky I was. Now I know I'll live to be 60.

I'm in good shape, only my ankle. But oh my back, my leg, my head. And I'm still freezing. That water—it was cold!

NEW YORK—(AP)—Little Robert Sullivan, 8, was sitting in the seat of the big airliner next to his mommy. Nearby were his father and two sisters.

They had been on a happy excursion to visit relatives in Chicago, as they often did, and were almost back home again.

Then came the nightmare. From a hospital bed later, little Robert told about it in halting phrases as he emerged from the shock of a terrible series of events.

"I was sitting in the seat next to mommy," he said.

"I don't know what happened but all of a sudden I began to slide and we went under the seat.

"Then I was on something in the water.

"Mommy was holding me.

"Then in the water we couldn't stay up.

"I tried to hold my breath. I was cold. My arms felt frozen."

Little Robert could speak no further. But somehow he knew of the tragedy that had befallen him.

Robert and his mother were rescued from the icy waters and rushed to the hospital. His mother died in the hospital.

His father, Joseph, and sisters, Patricia, 13, and Joan, 5, were listed among those missing as searchers continued to scour the waters of the East River for bodies.

Drop Inspection Demand

Reds Back Down, Let Trucks Pass

HELMSTEDT, Germany — (UPI) — The Russians backed down during cold-war maneuvering Wednesday night and released an American truck convoy held within a stone's throw of the West German frontier since Monday.

The five GIs manning the four trucks quickly gunned the vehicles past the border checkpoints into the West to end 56 cold hours of detention in East Germany.

They were not allowed to talk to waiting newsmen.

Soviet border guards freed the trucks finally after a meeting between State Department official Findlay Burns and Col. H. F. Markushin, of the Russian army. Burns said the Soviets had dropped their original demand to inspect the trucks' cargoes, but he did not elaborate.

Russian troopers carrying machineguns stopped the trucks Monday afternoon within 50 yards of the U. S. Army's border station here. The troopers insisted the open vehicles had to be searched.

Cpl. Richard C. Masiero, of West Stockbridge, Mass., who was in charge of the convoy during a 110-mile trip through East Germany from West Berlin to the frontier, replied that the trucks contained only jeeps. He refused to allow a search.

The border incident triggered a flurry of cold-war maneuvering highlighted Wednesday by Burns' frontier conference and a State Department protest to Moscow which demanded the release of the trucks and men.

American officials regarded the Russian action as an attempt to embarrass the West by a token cut-off of the land route to West Berlin within shouting distance of the West's heavily - guarded frontier.

Those in the trucks besides Masiero were Drivers Pfc. Benjamin G. Peoples, 20, of Theodore, Ala.; Specialist Robert E. Love, 20, of Plain City, Ohio; Specialist Elwood F. Johnson, 29, of Brooklyn and Specialist James E. Cook, 22, of Hardeeville, S.C.

Kennan Sees Reds Playing Close to War

WASHINGTON — (AP) — George F. Kennan, former ambassador to Moscow, voiced belief Wednesday Soviet leaders are prepared to play close to the edge of war to gain their objectives in Berlin.

"I do not think the Soviet leaders want war over Berlin," he told the Senate foreign relations disarmament subcommittee.

But, he said, in current efforts to force Western troop withdrawals and a free Berlin, Soviet leaders are prepared, for reasons not fully apparent, "to play particularly close to the edge.

KENNAN

"They have committed themselves extensively," Kennan continued, "and it would not be wise for the Western governments to take the matter too lightly."

Kennan also told the committee:

"I do not believe the Soviet leaders want another war, or would be likely to inaugurate one by surprise attack just because they felt they had a temporary advantage in long-range striking power."

Kennan called for a package proposal of concessions to Russia in a major Western effort to get the Red Army out of Central Europe.

"But I don't recommend that we do anything unilaterally," he said.

He told the committee he believes the Kremlin's chief concern in Central Europe is to separate German armed power from that of America.

He said a Germany that was neutralized, but allowed to maintain sufficient armed forces for its own defense, could have a democratically elected government safe against Communist political threat.

U.S., Britain Agree On Europe Parley

LONDON—(UPI)—The U. S. and Britain agreed in principle here Wednesday night to meet with Russia in a four-power conference of foreign ministers this spring on Berlin, the over-all German issue and European security, diplomatic sources reported.

The sources said the Anglo-American accord emerged in the first round of talks here between U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

But the U.S. and Britain were determined to resist any Soviet attempt to dictate the agenda of such a conference or limit it to the Berlin crisis, the diplomatic sources said.

Bob Hope Can't Be Here But Big Show Goes on

HOPE

"This is the first time in 25 years that I have had to renege on a promise to do a benefit," the veteran funnyman told officials here in a telephone call from Hollywood.

He said his doctors told him that the pressure from the high altitude plane trip to Miami might cost him the sight in his left eye. He was putting compresses on the eye Wednesday.

But even without Hope — who predicted the show will still draw a "packed house"— Jack Benny and dozens of big-name film, stage and television stars are here for the program. See story on Page 5C.

McElroy Warns Red China

Says U.S. Will Use Atom Arms

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A plain warning to the Chinese Communists that the U.S. would use atomic weapons in any future Korea-style war was sounded Wednesday by Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy.

McElroy said it would be "against our national interest if any inference were given the Chinese Communists that we would fight the Chinese Communists without general war weapons."

The House Armed Services Committee, before which McElroy was testifying, got into the subject by pressing the secretary for assurances that the U.S. is remaining prepared to fight limited, as well as general, wars.

McElroy said conventional forces suitable for limited conflicts are being maintained, but he went on to say that a conflict on the scale of the Korean one would not be considered today as a limited war.

Reminded that U.S. forces in Korea operated under orders not to use nuclear weapons, McElroy said:

"It was limited as to weapons, but I think there is some doubt as to whether it would be so limited today."

McElroy said earlier that by the end of the year the gap between the U.S. and Russia in intercontinental missiles would be only one or two weapons. He emphasized he was talking about missiles that could hit their targets.

The committee pressed him for an estimate of what Russia could do with its stock of shorter-range missiles.

McElroy replied such missiles would enable the Soviets "to bring quite a few of the advanced European NATO bases under missile attack."

He said this would be true especially if the Russians were willing to risk establishing missile bases in such satellites as East Germany, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. But, he said, U.S. officials are "inclined to doubt that they would do so."

Under questioning, McElroy conceded the possibility the Soviets might over the next few years produce enough intercontinental missiles to put them ahead of the U.S.

"If the Russians use their capability to produce, they will have more ICBM weapons on launching pads than we do," McElroy said. He said, however, the U.S. does not know whether the Soviets will use their full production capacity.

Telephone Crews Get A Workout

By TOM MORGAN
Naples Bureau Chief

NAPLES — Cranes and derricks are doing a yeoman job of isolating portions of Collier County and keeping crews of the Inter-County Telephone Co. working around the clock.

Tuesday afternoon a crane, being used by the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad to rip up rails on its abandoned Everglades branch ripped up more than rails.

The machine's boom knocked down a pole and snapped all circuits, including 200 long distance circuits between Fort Myers and Miami. Calls were routed through West Palm Beach. All lines to Everglades were cut.

Manager Carl Holbrook of the telephone company said line repair crews worked until after 2 a.m. Wednesday restoring service.

A few hours later the repair crews wearily crawled from their beds in response to an urgent summons. A dragline, working along the Tamiami Trail, had taken too enthusiastic a bite and included 400 telephone circuits in its mouthful.

The lines, which served the East Naples and other unincorporated sections, were back in service at midnight Wednesday.

Muttering about draglines and cranes, the repair crews wearily went back to bed.

Ailing Lewis 'About Same'

WASHINGTON —(AP)— John L. Lewis' condition at Georgetown University Hospital was reported "about the same" Wednesday.

"He is not well, but we are reasonably satisfied with his condition," said Dr. John B. Minor.

Minor said Lewis, 78-year-old president of the United Mine Workers, is being treated both for pneumonia and for cardiac changes which he sustained to "a mild degree."

CAB Says Strip Had No Lights; Only 8 Survive

NEW YORK — (UPI) — An American Airlines prop-jet Electra which plunged into the East River killing 65 persons was trying to land on a runway lacking adequate instrument devices and without runway approach lights, it was revealed Wednesday night.

The new two-million-dollar Lockheed airliner, equipped with every safety factor, crashed shortly before Monday midnight in fog and drizzle less than 30 seconds short of a LaGuardia runway on a nonstop flight from Chicago.

There were 73 aboard. Nine survivors were fished from the icy water with boathooks by a tugboat crew. One of the survivors, a woman, died later.

Joseph Fluet, chief regional investigator for the Civil Aeronautics Board, revealed that the runway had instrument equipment advising the pilot on his direction but not whether he was coming in too high or low over the water for a landing.

Fluet said the Electra was being "tracked on radar" and all the airport-to-air facilities of LaGuardia were working effectively.

"The aircraft was being tracked on the radarscope, and the plane was being vectored, that is being brought into position for its final approach, in a normal instrument landing system procedure," Fluet said.

Fluet declined to say why Runway 22 did not have the glide slope feature. He said that was not within his province. It was understood LaGuardia had been planning to install the device on the runway very shortly.

Capt. Albert H. Dewitt, of Decatur, Mich., the 59-year-old pilot with 30 years experience and one of the first to qualify on jet-prop planes, was killed. American had inagurated the Electra service only 12 days ago.

Investigators of the new Federal Aviation Agency revealed that the runway toward which Dewitt was headed was not equipped with instruments to inform the pilot whether his glide path approach was too high or too low.

There was a ceiling of 400 feet and visibility of two miles as the Electra approached Runway 22, known as the "back course." It had an instrument landing system which automatically radios the plane if it is coming in the proper direction.

But, investigators said, that runway does not have the second beam advising the plane of its altitude and distance from the runway. LaGuardia is equipped with radar. It was not known whether Dewitt asked the control tower to advise whether his approach was all right on the radar scopes.

A DC3 had landed on the same runway just a few minutes before. The Electra made its last radio contact at 11:54 p.m. when it received landing permission. It crashed at 11:57 p.m. less than a mile from the field, traveling at 135 miles an hour.

Lack of automatic guidance on his glide path descent plus the chance of human failure of visual depth perception in coming down over water were possible explanation of the disaster. The CAB made it clear,

Producer Of 'Kukla' On Airliner

CHICAGO — (AP) — Miss Beulah Zachary, television pioneer who produced the show, "Kukia, Fran and Ollie," for 10 years, was bound for New York Tuesday night in a renewed effort to bring the show to live audiences.

She was listed Wednesday among the missing and presumed dead in the crash of an American Airlines plane.

Miss Zachary, who advanced from the role of studio hand to producer-director within three years after joining Station WBKB in Chicago in 1944, was personal manager and adviser to Burr Tillstrom, creater of the show.

Kukla and Ollie were a pair of puppet people. Their antics with Fran Allison delighted oldsters as well as the young before the show was dropped by the American Broadcasting Co. in 1957.

Tillstrom was the voice and life to Kukla, Ollie and several other "Kuklapolitans."

GOP Hits 'Budget Busters'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Senate Wednesday turned down a Republican substitute aimed at cutting a $2,925,000,000 Democratic housing bill back to levels favored by President Eisenhower.

Before it adjourned overnight, however, the Senate agreed by voice vote to cut in half a 300-million-dollar provision for direct home loans to veterans. Democratic backers of the bill agreed to the change, which had the effect of cutting the total authorization to $2,775,000,000.

The senate also beat down, 50-37, a Republican move to knock out of the bill provision for 51,000 low-rent, public housing units.

Only a little earlier, the House voted 310-89 for a 300-million-dollar GI home loan bill over protests from Republicans that "budget busters are on the move."

Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana led the House protest, trying to help Eisenhower in his fight against any move that might upset the 77-billion-dollar budget he has submitted.

The substitute the Senate turned down was offered by Sen. Homer Capehart (R., Ind.), who posed the question: "Do we or do we not wish a balanced budget?"

The Senate rejected Capehart's proposal 58-32.

Capehart estimated the spending in the Democratic bill would exceed President Eisenhower's budget estimates by 240 million dollars in the year beginning next July 1.

The Democratic bill compares with $1,800,000,000 in Capehart's substitute, which was revised slightly upward when the Indiana Republican offered it Wednesday.

The big issue, however, centered around proposed spending in the fiscal year starting next July 1. All the programs extend over several years.

Eisenhower said at his news conference Wednesday, in comment on the Democratic bill:

"This means that right off in the very first bill the budget is to be unbalanced."

The house bill would raise interest rates on home loans guranteed by the Veterans Administration from 4¾ per cent to 5¼ per cent. The idea is to encourage the granting of these loans by private institutions.

Ike's Plane Runs Into Storm

VALDOSTA, Ga. — (UPI) — A heavy rain and thunderstorm pummelled President Eisenhower's plane bringing the chief executive to a South Georgia vacation retreat Wednesday, forcing it to fly to an alternate field for a landing by instruments and radar. It landed safely at 4:18 p.m. at Valdosta.

A line squall from a Gulf of Mexico storm system raked the Valdosta-Moultrie area just as the presidential plane Columbine arrived for a scheduled landing at Spence Air Base, Moultrie, then flew on to Valdosta. The landing was delayed more than an hour because of the bad weather.

however, that it had reached no conclusion as to the cause of the crash.

"As of 6 p.m. tonight, the Civil Aeronautics Board Investigation of the American Airlines Electra accident near LaGuardia Field had revealed no facts indicating the cause of the crash," Edward E. Flattery, CAB information officer said.

Meanwhile, in Washington the House Commerce Committee announced it would look into the crash. Chairman Oren Harris (D., Ark.) called on the new Federal Aviation Agency to report on the accident at a closed committee session Friday.

The sleek four-engine liner smashed into the East River with a blast of noise that a tugboat captain said "sounded like dynamite." There was no flash of light nor any fire in the crash of the kerosene-fueled turbo-jet.

The tug H. Thomas Teti, towing two barges, was only a little more than 200 yards away. It cut loose the barges, opened full speed and rushed toward a fuselage and wing picked up in its spotlight.

The crew of eight lined the rail and pulled the living from the icy water with boathooks. Among them were Mrs. Lorraine Sullivan, 40, and her son, Robert, eight. The boy lived. Mrs. Sullivan died five hours later. The father, Joseph, and two daughters, Patricia, 13, and Joan, five, also perished. They were from Hempstead, N.Y.

Among the others killed was Beulah Zachary, Chicago TV producer of the Kukla, Fran and Ollie show.

Three of the five-member crew survived. Co-pilot Frank Hlavacek, 33, Wilmette, Ill., is in critical condition as is Joan Zeller, 21, Riverside, N. Y., a stewardess who began flying six months ago because "it is so thrilling." Warren E. Cook, 36, flight engineer from Aurora, Ill., is in poor condition.

Seymour Kemach, 36, a salesman from Brooklyn, pulled the Sullivan boy and the two stewardesses from the wreckage and suffered only a broken leg himself. Mae Markides, Rochester, N.Y., the other stewardess, died.

Also killed was Richard Winn of Norwalk, Conn., an American Airline executive appointed Feb. 1 to head the airline's jet research, development and planning.

Capt. Samuel Nickerson, 57, Rockland, Mass., captain of the tug Teti, said he didn't know at first what had happened when he heard the tremendous blast.

"We turned on our search light and the beam picked up wreckage floating in mud and water about 700 feet off our bow," he said.

Co-Capt. Everett Phelps, 48, Arlington, Vt., said the crew fished out the living with boathooks. They didn't bother with the dead, he said.

"Three people were perched on the fuselage," Phelps continued. "We hauled them aboard. As we did so, a hand poked through a door in the wreckage. The man inside called for help.

"Crewmen yanked on the door with hooks but couldn't get it open. Then the fuselage section pulled away from the hooks. The man's hand disappeared."

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower threw the gage of battle to Congress Wednesday, before flying to Georgia to cope with the quail.

Eisenhower took the unusual step of offering hostile comment on legislation not yet presented to him for his signature by the "spenders" of the Democratic 86th Congress.

The President's attitude made it clear that he intends to slug it out with the Democrats as the defender of an already shrunken dollar.

Eisenhower's vigorous and unsolicited criticism of two pending congressional proposals, offered at his press conference, was almost like a promotion ad for the television appearances the President plans to make this winter in his fight to hold the line against federal spending and inflation.

The President hoped a week ago that somebody at his press conference would ask his views about the airport construction bill, a 575-million-dollar tid-bit now in preparation by the Democratic majority.

But nobody raised the question last week and Eisenhower didn't wait Wednesday. He opened his seance with the reporters with a blast not only at the airport construction bill, but at the housing bill now going through the legislative machinery.

"If we are going to ask for these new expenditures," he said, "why doesn't each one of these bills include a measure for increasing taxes?

"That would be the straightforward, honest way to see whether the U.S. really wants this kind of thing." The President declined to say whether he would use his veto power in this fight with the "spenders," but there is no doubt that he intends to veto at least the airport construction bill as it is now shaping up.

The housing bill now before Congress contemplates spending $1,300,000,000 more than the President has recommended.

The airport construction bill, which the President regards as classic of pork-barrel legislation, would spend $375,000,000 more than the White House, the Budget Bureau, and the Federal Aviation Agency regard as prudent.

And Eisenhower made it very clear that he thinks that members of Congress are fakers when they come up with big spending measures and make no provision for taxes to meet the costs.

"I don't believe we should have higher taxes, and I do not believe the U.S. wants higher taxes," the President said.

NE Pilot Recalls '57 Crash

Two years and three days ago a Northeast Airlines plane crashed into New York's East River, killing 20 persons.

The pilot was a Miami man, Capt. Alva R. Marsh, 6020 SW 133rd St. He escaped unhurt. Months later the Civil Aeronautics Board ruled he was to blame.

Wednesday, Marsh remembered.

"It's a terrible thing," said Marsh. "It is horrible. I know.

"When you have been so close to it, you know. I'm sorry. I just don't want to talk about it. I don't want to comment on it."

That was his second crash in the same place. In January, 1952, he was at the controls of a twin-engine Convair which went down in the East River. All aboard survived.

Marsh, 50, now working in Northeast's operations office in New York City, was reached by telephone. He said he learned about the crash Wednesday morning.

"I wasn't working Tuesday night," he said.

Marsh's family still lives here. He considers Miami his home. He flew as a military and commercial pilot 26 years.

The CAB ruled March 11, 1958, that he "did not demonstrate the skill and care required of an airline pilot."

He hasn't flown regularly since.

Marsh personally pulled 20 to 25 passengers through a hole in the left side of the fuselage after the crash two years ago. He was the last survivor to leave the wreckage.

"I just couldn't get her up," he said only hours after the crash. "Her power just drained out. But none of the instruments showed it. She just wouldn't go up."

Atlas Flight Success; Is Moon Next?

CAPE CANAVERAL —(UPI)— An intercontinental Atlas, capable of boosting itself all the way to the moon, followed orders early Wednesday on a routine flight that ended a key development series.

After the burly missile blasted off at 3:01 a.m., the Air Force said the flight was "another in the Atlas research and development series." Defense officials in Washington later announced the Atlas flew its intended range of "less than ICBM distance," in a successful test.

Informed sources said the range was about 4,300 miles, and the Atlas was the last in the "B" development series. In this phase the weapon was tested as a complete missile—with all three of its engines and its separable nose cone—over ranges approaching ICBM distance.

One "B" series Atlas, fired Nov. 28, made an all-the-way hop of 6,325 miles. But two other attempts to send the missile full range were unsuccessful.

The secrecy-cloaked firing of the Atlas satellite Dec. 18 has led to speculation in this missile-conscious area that the Air Force may try to shoot an entire Atlas—not just a small probe payload—to the moon.

Officials here have said they know of no such plans for the Convair-made Atlas, but United Press International learned the 100-ton Atlas is capable of such a feat.

In an official Air Force publication (the U.S. Air Force Report on the Ballistic Missile), missile men disclosed that the Atlas "reaches a thrust cutoff velocity near the escape velocity."

It was learned that the Atlas, designed to hurl a 5,000-pound hydrogen warhead across oceans, could reach the escape speed of 25,200 miles an hour if it carried no payload in its nose cone.

Missile men conceded that there would be great propaganda value in such an achievement. But they said it was unlikely the Air Force would try to reach the moon with an Atlas without including some useful scientific payload such as the Thor-Able moon rockets carried last year.

Although the Atlas is scheduled to be operational and in the hands of troops by June 30, plans call for continued testing of the missile through 1962. The new test series will be aimed at simplifying the Atlas and making it a more reliable weapon.

Meanwhile, a few hundred yards northwest of the Atlas launching stands, the Air Force began preparing for another effort to launch the first Titan ICBM. The Titan, considered potentially more powerful than the Atlas, fizzled again on its second launching try Tuesday but the trouble was believed to be minor.

However, there was no indication when the next attempt to fire the Titan would be made.

Today's Atlas, the 20th fired since testing began in June, 1957, blazed into a starry, cloudless sky in another spectacular launching. Just before its "sustainer" engine burned out three and a half minutes after blastoff.

Brevard's Problem:

How to Assure 'A Fair Shake' For Taxpayers

Second in a Series

By BILL BUNGE
Melbourne Bureau Chief

MELBOURNE — What assurance does Brevard County's growing population have of getting fair representation at the Titusville courthouse.

There appears to be no guarantee, because 1950 census figures are way off in pinpointing population centers. Therefore, there is no rule to follow.

BUNGE

Fair representation depends mostly on the people taxpayers elect to public office.

County commission spokesmen say "fair representation is attained only because commissioners work together and cooperate between commission districts. When any section needs help, everybody pitches in."

Another official, Commission Chairman Max K. Rodes, said there was a reapportionment of commissioners shortly after population shifts were spotlighted by the 1950 census.

* * *

HE SAID THERE probably are different population centers since the missile boom started, and he expects the 1960 federal nose count to turn up some surprises.

"If the new census reveals important population changes," the chairman said, "we'll have to reapportion again. Anyway, we plan to study the census results carefully."

Since population totals now are pure guesses, the county officials can only use property valuations to point up areas in this 72-mile-long county that need the most attention.

As of now, Eau Gallie is in first place under the property valuation yardstick; Melbourne area, second; Merritt Island-Cocoa Beach area, third; Cocoa area, fourth, and Titusville area, fifth.

A construction spurt in the Cocoa Beach section, however, may nose Melbourne out of second place. While this area boomed, Melbourne's pace was slowed by lack of adequate sewer facilities.

But when the federal census count for Brevard is recorded, "we might be caught short," declared State Rep. James H. Pruitt.

* * *

HE POINTED OUT that the coming count of residents "probably will put us in a higher classification and make our population acts, under which the county government operates, outdated."

Rep. Pruitt reminded that all legislative acts were written to govern a Brevard population of 23,000, the total established in 1950. Estimates now run as high as 114,500 residents.

These acts, governing the number and pay of public officials, such as judges, will have to be replaced. Pruitt and State Sen. Douglas Stenstrom estimate that Brevard will need 40 to 50 new acts to bring the county law book up to date.

The problem centers around when can this be done. The census report will come some time in 1960, but the Legislature will not meet again until 1961.

The Tallahassee delegates already have alerted county commissioners about the difficulty, and both groups have started doing some long-range planning to eliminate hardships.

* * *

PRUITT BELIEVES this will be a statewide problem because many counties have made record population gains. "Maybe the governor can call a special session of the Legislature," he said.

Each county jumping into a higher population class will have to write new special acts. A single general bill will not cover the situation, Pruitt added.

Merrill Schelegel Dies in Hospital

JENSEN BEACH — Merrill Edward Schelegel, 67, a winter resident of Ocean Breeze Park for the past five years, died Tuesday at Martin Memorial Hospital, Stuart.

Mr. Schelegel was a native of Thompsonville, Pa.

Survivors include his wife Mary, two sons Marvin W. and Gerald, two daughters, Mrs. Richard Cramer, and Mrs. Mable Sherwon all of Pennsylvania.

THE SIXTH annual Fort Lauderdale Boat and Sport Show opens today and Ginger Dunning, contestant in the "Miss Dreamboat" contest, is telling the world about it. Doors of War Memorial Auditorium open at 2 p.m.

Master Zoning Plan OKd

INDIALANTIC — City council passed all three readings of a controversial master zoning program at a meeting, following a public hearing, that lasted until the small hours of Wednesday morning.

Interested residents packed council chambers to discuss the ordinance with councilmen for the last time before it was routed into Indialantic law books. A majority of the residents present protested various sections of the new code.

Town officials reported that building—especially construction of duplex housing—took a decided jump after residents read the zoning ordinance during a December educational meeting held by council.

"And there hadn't been any interest in duplexes for months before the educational meeting," one official commented. A few people who had not been able to get construction jobs started before the zoning law was adopted made formal protests.

Controversy also centered around the amount of land set aside for commercial development. Some complained that Indialantic is allocating more land for business—for its size—than Miami Beach.

Officials expect that legal action might follow the passage of the new zone code, a combination of programs designed by Russell and Axon, Daytona Beach plan engineers, and city council.

County Line Meeting Set

SEBASTIAN — Because of the interest being shown in a meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. today to discuss a change in the Indian River-Brevard County lines it will be in the Sebastian School Auditorium instead of the city hall.

Miss Elois Faa, executive secretary of the Sebastian River area Chamber of Commerce which is arranging the meeting, announced Tuesday afternoon that the meeting place had been changed.

She said that Rep. L. B. Vocelle had learned that there will be a larger attendance than expected.

Improving Electric Service Studied

Herald Service

VERO BEACH — How to expand and improve electric service in Vero Beach still is the big question confronting the City Council.

A report by Black and Veatch, Kansas City consulting engineers, on the expansion of the municipal electric system was formally accepted by the council Tuesday night.

The report had been given the council Jan. 9 at an informal meeting with Riley D. Woodson of Black and Veatch.

Since then it has been studied by the councilmen and the Vero Beach Long-range Planning and Advisory Committee which includes several nationally-prominent engineers.

The written opinion of the advisory committee was incorporated in the minutes Tuesday night. It said that the Black and Veatch report conforms closely with the one the committee completed in May, 1958 but it is limited in scope.

The committee still recommended as it did last May that before expanding the present municipal system that it investigate joining with Fort Pierce in a system to serve both cities.

County to Seek Legislature's OK

By THELMA FROSCHER
Herald Correspondent

VERO BEACH — The County Commission has decided to ask the legislature for authority to spend county funds to advertise Indian River County.

The commission also will ask the Legislature for the authority to determine how the funds should be spent.

The commission learned only recently that it does not now have the authority to spend funds for advertising or to donate them to the various organizations to which it has been contributing for many years.

The chambers of commerce, Red Cross and library are awaiting action of the legislature on annual appropriations from the county board.

State auditors advised that county advertising funds should be spent only for advertising that will reach outside the county, Mrs. Katherine Morrison, commission clerk, reported.

She said that if an individual taxpayer contributes to an organization and the county also donates taxpayers' money it amounts to a double contribution.

Another legislative act to be requested would make it unlawful to dispose of refuse anywhere except in designated dumps.

Along the same line, it was decided to ask the legislature for authority to join with municipalities in such services as garbage collection and disposal and fire protection.

County Engineer Ed Schmucker was asked to submit detailed plans at the March 3 meeting for combining county and Vero Beach garbage disposal if the city approves.

State aid funds may be obtained if a budget is submitted by April 1.

Board OKs Contract

STUART — A contract for architectural and engineering services on Stuart's new million dollar hospital was signed this week by officers of Martin Memorial Hospital Board and Philip O. Munson of Chicago, of the Schmidt, Garden and Erikson firm.

The Chicago firm has supervised the construction of some 1,800 hospitals in the United States at a total building cost of four hundred million dollars.

Pryor and Armstrong, Stuart architects, who are assisting the hospital board in preliminary plans, will act in a supervisory capacity with the Chicago firm as the building plans progress.

Brevard Plans $400,000 Battle Against Mosquitoes

MELBOURNE — Brevard County's mosquito control distract has plotted one of its greatest battles against this bothersome little pest, which will be fought during the 1958-59 fiscal year to the tune of $400,000.

This total covers both countywide spraying and permanent control measures.

The State Board of Health has approved 18 permanent mosquito control projects set up by Jack Salmela of Eau Gallie, district director, in cooperation with the county commission.

Both state and county funds are used to finance permanent control.

Park Sought

VERO BEACH — The creation of a roadside park on the east side of U.S. 1 just south of the Sebastian River bridge by the State Road Department is being requested by the Indian River County Commission.

The commissioners also voted to ask that a boat-launching ramp be built on the west side of the highway.

The park was recommended in a letter to commissioner Donald MacDonald from Mrs. Frank Baisden, president of the Roseland Garden Club.

$22,500 Boost

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — The missile test center at Cape Canaveral has caused a $22,500 increase in the Brevard County sheriff's budget.

Sheriff J. A. Lloyd said the huge population growth caused by activity at Cape Canaveral is taxing his facilities.

The increase was authorized by the cabinet board of county office budget appeals which has been in existence for some time but has never had to meet before.

Lloyd said he needs money for branch offices in Cocoa and Melbourne, a new jail and to hire additional personnel. His budget was upped to $265,750.

Criticizes Fund

TALLAHASSEE —(UPI)— Sen. Randolph Hodges of Cedar Key said Wednesday he may ask the legislature to eliminate the special $75,000 "Promotion of Florida" fund.

"It creates more problems than it solves," Durden told a joint appropriations sub-committee headed by Hodges, "because every organization thinks they should get some of it."

The fund is used mostly to underwrite expenses of conventions in Florida. Some of it went to pay the costs of spending the Cocoa High School band to the Rose Bowl.

He Claims Amnesia

Secretary Says She Saw Missing Man in Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. — (UPI) — A Florida businessman who had been missing three months before turning up here Jan. 23 was on a bus from Los Angeles that same day, a local secretary told police Wednesday.

James E. Harrison, 32, of Indian River City, Fla., claimed he suffered amnesia during a period in which one man confessed to murdering him and another was held as a suspect.

But Det. Lt. Herbert Neal said Mrs. Judith Schenid said Harrison did not appear in a daze when she talked with him on a bus en route to Phoenix a few hours before he was picked up by local police.

Neal said Mrs. Schenid, employed by a legal firm, volunteered the information after a newspaper appeal by police. She identified the husky manufacturer from a photograph, a ring he wore and a white streak in his hair.

"Now we are looking for others who can tell us what Harrison did while he was in Phoenix," Neal said.

Harrison, who had been missing since leaving home for an alleged business appointment Oct. 7, carried only a magazine on the bus and appeared to know where he was going, Mrs. Schenid said.

The former Taylorville, Ill., resident said he regained his memory on a Phoenix street, apparently a few hours after Mrs. Schenid claimed she saw him on the bus.

Meantime, in Taylorsville, Harrison said "I certainly don't" remember any bus ride from Los Angeles to Phoenix. He said he was "getting some rest" at his father's home, but planned to return to Miami later.

Harrison also said there was nothing unusual about his wedding ring which could have been used to link him with the man Mrs. Schenid saw on the bus. He said it was just an ordinary white and yellow gold band.

He said he did have a reddish blond spot in his hair.

Meeting Scheduled Today

Port Canaveral Said 'Stymied'

By DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

COCOA — Port Canaveral commissioners today will ask the State Road Department to build a causeway across the Banana River with Air Force and SRD funds.

At a special conference with J. Rolfe David, central Florida member of the state road board, they will ask for the road "because the port is being stymied by a lack of roads."

The proposed causeway would connect the port with State Rt. 3 on Merritt Island.

Commissioners will also ask the SRD to use an estimated 1.8 million dollars earmarked for state Rd. A1A improvements for the causeway and the four-laning of State Rd. 401. The request included one to designate the proposed causeway as A1A.

Port Manager George King, who set up today's meeting, explained Thursday that the proposed causeway would cross the river on fill which the port owns.

The fill has been designated as part of the route for a proposed Cocoa-Port Canaveral toll causeway, but the port board will ask the Banana River causeway be a freeway, he said.

King also said the causeway proposal is connected with a property owners' campaign for four-laning state Rd. 401 between the existing Cocoa-Cocoa Beach causeway and Cape Canaveral.

Cocoa Beach landowners are donating four-lane right of way for the two-lane road in the hope that the SRD will use the Air Force and SRD funds for its improvement and build the Banana River causeway.

Davis said Thursday that he had already heard of the 401-causeway proposal, but doesn't yet fully understand it.

"I don't know if we can work it out," he said. "I've agreed to meet with them (the Port Commissioners) to see what we can do."

State Rd. 401—for which property owners have already donated about 40 per cent of the needed four-lane right of way—is the only road to the south gate of Cape Canaveral.

It leads from the Cocoa-Cocoa Beach causeway to the Cape, a distance of about 4 miles of which 2.5 miles is abutted by private property and the remainder by public land at the port.

Although Cape workers can travel through the Cape, 401 is a deadend road for the port and for most highway traffic.

As a result, State Rd. A1A now turns west onto the Cocoa-Cocoa Beach causeway and then goes north on State Rd 3 on Merritt Island.

The Port Authority proposal would cut the Cocoa-Cocoa Beach causeway out of the A1A system, but the proposed Banana River would connect with State Rd. 3 at the Canaveral barge canal on Merritt Island.

Nightlife with George Bourke

Benny's Nightclub Invasion Frolics to a Sweeping Victory

TWICE NIGHTLY — at something around 9:30 and later near oneish in a repeat for the late coast — Ben Novack's enlarged La Ronde Room of the Fontainebleau Hotel is converted these evenings into a 500-inch television screen on which is shown, live, in color and in 3-D a sort of commercial-free, pay-as-you-guzzle version of a talent which has enjoyed high Hooper, Trendex or what-have-you ratings on the airwaves for what seems to have been 39 years.

That "39" should be a clue. The talent is that of Jack Benny, who is essaying his first excursion into cafe show business, excepting a pair of previous dates in Las Vegas, in modern times and a "concert" at the old Floridian here in the 20's for Mert Wertheimer.

Yup, the Jack Benny you get at the Fontainebleau is the same past-master of the off-hand delivery, the identical perfectionist of the long-suffering petulant pose, a happy carbon of the professional protestant of the state of perpetual middle-age, and a soft-key echo of the familiar character who is uncertainly unsure of himself and covers it with self-effacing boastfulness.

* * *

Gisele MacKenzie a Charmer

THESE MATTERS are not the usual fare for cafes.

The habitual pub-crawler might complain that Mr. Benny doesn't have "an act," even with some business with Gisele MacKenzie, who sings, looks and plays the violin with memorable charm, and with Chiquita and Johnson, a pair of exciting dancers. That well might be—by night club standards—but if Mr. Benny doesn't have "an act" then somebody had a charm ray gun concealed somewhere in the wings and was wafting waves of winning stuff audience-wise at the show we caught.

Mr. Benny doesn't overwhelm or shock you in the manner that the Ritz Brothers or Louis Prima and Keely Smith might but when you look at your watch and find he has been on stage something like 40 minutes and it didn't seem like 10 you know you have been watching a personality with class and show savvy at work.

He relies almost completely on techniques and routines already proven audience-proof. He chatters topically and about show business. He fiddles in solo and in duet with Miss MacKenzie and allows an intrusion of the dance team to bring his famous expression of resigned tolerance to his face. And, in his only departure into un-television lines, he makes a mildly daring comparison of the bags under Phil Harris' eyes to the anatomy of a female.

In her solo spot Miss MacKenzie is as clean and refreshing as one of her native Canadian summer breezes. In gimmick-free voice she enchants with a repertory which ranges from a French folk song to a medley of Broadway hit tunes of the Rodgers and Hammerstein variety. You won't learn any new dirty or boorish jokes from Benny and MacKenzie but you won't be bored either.

Is TV Gobel the Real Gobel?

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer

Celebrity Parade

Crew cut comedian George Gobel ("Hello, Neighbors, this is your old friend, Lonesome George") is a man with whom his audience can identify themselves. On the television screen he's the little man coping with the complexities of life.

How did he come to portray this type of character? In his L-shaped Deauville Hotel suite overlooking the ocean, the five-foot-five-inch Gobel explained: "We-e-ell, it just turned out that I happen to be a little guy amazed at the complexities of life.

"I figured that the kind of problems people have are the kind of problems I have."

So the comedian goes through his routines of never quite dominating any situation. He bounces half awkwardly across the stage. He delivers monologues in unfinished sentences, ending with a blunt and underplayed O. Henry - type punch line. He goes through a maze of finding his way through a bewilderingly large supermarket; trying to settle an insurance claim for lost hubcaps.

Alice Gobel

"It's exaggerated, of course," he said, "and it's satire. But I think people have a tendency to identify themselves with it . . . we get many letters from people telling of parallel experiences."

If you know the TV Gobel, you know the real one. His expression off TV may be more serious — but he was tired after an afternoon of golf; nothing comes before his beloved golf while he's here for today's Cavalcade of Stars. And his way of speaking is less halting. But that's all.

To interview him is like calling on an old friend. He's pleasant, he's amusing, he's comfortable to be around.

He sat on the hotel's brocade chair as though it were his easy chair back home in Encino, Calif.—one leg tucked under him, smoking and talking quietly, occasionally breaking into part of a routine to explain a situation.

He's a rarity in the field of comedians — an introvert. He still gets stage fright before every performance. And "during the first year or so, seriously, I used to come home and say to Alice, 'Gee, honey, we've got to save money. I'm not going to last in this business.'"

* * *

Will Rogers Is Out Now

ALTHOUGH HE CALLS himself "a comic," he's a humorist. In the Gobel vernacular, you can't hardly get them kind no more.

The Will Rogers type of humorist wouldn't go today, he says. Too much the humorist can't use. "You'd be surprised at the reaction we get. But some people don't realize it's satire."

(Earlier this week, famed comedian Jack Benny took the opposite view. "If Will Rogers were alive today he'd be sensational," Benny said. "Think of the material he'd have to work with.")

Gobel explained: "First, you have to figure out what your show's going to be, write it out and then sit down and go through it and say, 'This will offend someone,' and 'That will offend someone.'" He shook his head.

"It's amazing that people will object to something on TV that they wouldn't in a nightclub act.

"In a club you can make jokes about somebody at ring side, about his turkey business, if you know that's what he's in, and in the club he's a big man. It's okay.

"But if you make some kind of reference about the turkey business on TV and he's sitting in his living room watching, all of a sudden he takes offense."

* * *

The Nickname That Stuck

IT WAS IN a nightclub that Gobel got his nickname of "Lonesome George."

"I did a skit about a late-late disc jockey and you know they don't have ordinary names like George Gobel. They have to be Tumbleweed Gobel or something. So I took the name Lonesome George."

It stuck. And it's significant in many respects—not of the well-known man, of course. There are the autograph seekers, the fans. But of the deeper man?

Comedian George Gobel Is in Miami
..'sometimes I feel lonesome'

"Sure. Sometimes I feel lonesome. You know, I can never just walk right into a crowd. I stand around a bit."

Even as a boy he stood around a bit, observing the customers in his father's grocery store in Chicago. He's still observing. It's what his shows are made of—that, and the fact that "I have an affinity for spooks. If there's one spook in the whole hotel, this clown will be crossing my path just as I walk through the lobby. They always find me."

* * *

'She'll Never Make Five'

In real life she's a lovely dark-haired woman with a one-dimple smile who has none of the domineering ways Gobel jokes attribute to her. She was his childhood sweetheart. Stories have it that George met her by tripping her as she collected homework papers.

"We-e-ell, that's a lie," he said, bristling. "Actually, I knocked the tray out of her hands in the cafeteria. She's been trying to get even with me ever since. And anyone who would be vindictive enough to marry a person for a thing like that . . ." It was one of the quick flashes into the Gobel-type humor.

It came again as he talked proudly of their children, Gregg, 13; Georgia, eight; and Leslie, nearly five.

"That Leslie," he says and shook his head. "She'll never make five. She's a little flaky. She walks around the place like she paid for the whole thing. Locking herself in bird cages . . ."

The cage, Mrs. Gobel explained, was part of the former owners' home. There are no birds in it. Her husband added, "We also have a stable with four stalls. Our 3 cats live there."

* * *

George Wants Show Perfect

WHAT'S AHEAD? Possibly a half-hour weekly show, nothing definite yet. But Gobel would like to have an arrangement "like Jack Benny," part filmed, part live. For he yearns to be able to perfect his material before using it.

"It shakes you up having material you just got a few days ago and you're so busy just learning it, you can't perfect it."

So, the-e-ere you are, Neighbors. You'd really like itty, bitty Lonesome George.

Is It Epilepsy?

By DR. J. G. MOLNER

Is there any way for a person to find out if he is subject to epileptic seizures?—L.B.

I've omitted some of the details of your case, but the answer in any case of doubt is that an electro-encephalogram (brain wave test) will show the patterns which accompany epileptic seizures whether of the grand mal or petit mal type.

History of the pattern of the attacks is also helpful.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible. Always write to him in care of The Miami Herald.

'Our Kids Just Ignore Neighbors'

Column with a Heart

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

After reading Peace Loving's letter, I felt I had to write. Our neighborhood had a similar problem. But instead of one person doing the job alone, the neighborhood as a whole group took matters in hand.

We all realize that children fight and tease, and we have agreed that fighting our children's battles is petty. So, if we see that our child cannot get along with another, we keep that child away from the other children until he or she thinks they can play and act like children should.

If problems arise which need ironing out, we go to each other as friends and try to solve it together.

However, there are two parents who insist their children can do no wrong. But we tell our kids to ignore them when they start their antics. And much to the rebellious neighbors' chagrin, it works beautifully!

Ignore your neighbor, Peace Loving, and perhaps this will bring her around.

DEEP RED ROSE

Your good neighbor policy is excellent. Other neighborhoods should adopt it!

'Our Home Is a Paradise'

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

Moonbeams' letter has prompted me to write about our marriage.

Despite the fact that my husband has been out of work on several occasions, we have been extremely happy. He is a good worker and never drinks.

There are always compliments coming from each of us. It's like Moonbeams says, "Marriage is a full time job and you have to put your heart and soul into it, like any worthwhile job."

I could write a book on my wonderful husband and our happy home, which is a paradise.

EADIE

Apparently you picked, not only the right man but the right last name, too. Thank you for writing.

* * *

'I'd Hate To Be In Tess' Shoes'

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

The letter from Tess sounded like my husband. We were married at 18 and 19, which I know now was too young, although I believed I was ready for marriage.

For 13 years we got along wonderful. I even got along with his mother. I let her show me and tell me things even though I didn't always do them.

Life has not been easy. For many years he never held a job longer than 18 months, until he got his present job which he has held for 10 years. Since then there have been affairs with many women.

I have not been able to talk any problems over with him because he gets mad right away. So I have to solve everything the best way I can. My motto now is "Do the best I can the best way I know how in the best way it is possible to do."

The children always go to school and Sunday school.

I am glad to see so many share my views for women like Tess. I would not like to be in her shoes when she meets her Maker. It is my belief that women like her will pay dearly some day.

All I ask out of life now is to see my children grow up educated and happy. It seems as if that is all I have.

TROUBLED: One point you overlooked in your letter, the age of the boy with the car!

Looking 17 or 18 is a lot different from being it.

Don't be too anxious to add two or three years to your age, cause it won't be long before you'll be wishing you could subtract them.

You're lucky to have parents who care enough about you to drive you and your date to the movies. Buses? Well, they're better than walking.

As for the two phone calls, let's hope that the boy you like calls first the next time so he'll get the 15-minute talk, and the second boy will be reduced to the 10-minute session.

Twenty-five minutes on the phone, all at once, is a lot of conversation, particularly on a party line.

Eleanor Hart.

Column With a Heart welcomes disucssion of your problems and your replies to the problems of others. Write to Eleanor Hart, The Miami Herald, Miami, Fla.

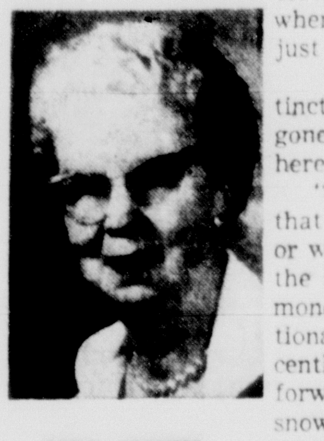
PERSONALLY SPEAKING

Southern Writer Hartnett T. Kane To Address UDC

By HELEN VAN HOY SMITH
Herald Staff Writer

THE PALM BEACHES—Good news is that Hartnett T. Kane, distinguished southern writer of southern subjects, is coming to the Palm Beaches in March.

He will speak, without fee, to members of Thomas Benton Ellis Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy and their invited guests. Just where this talk will take place and just when will be announced later.



MRS. SMITH

Since Hartnett T. Kane is distinctly a literary lion, it's a foregone conclusion that he'll be lionized here.

"Snow, snow, beautiful snow that falls from heaven here below," or words to that effect, but never in the Palm Beaches. When the Raymond C. Tylanders attended a national lumber dealers' convention recently in Chicago they were looking forward to seeing some "beautiful snow." But on those days the weather man just wouldn't cooperate, and Betty Tylander was so disappointed.

To the rescue came conventioneer Sam Slaughter. He hailed from New Richmond, Wis., where there was plenty of snow. If the Floridians wanted snow, snow they would get, by hook or by crook.

In due time on their return to West Palm Beach the Tylanders received a huge parcel by air freight. It couldn't be, but it was — a nail keg of snow. The white, cold, stuff was tamped down hard in a big metal container inside the keg. It came through perfectly. — On Wisconsin!

So neighbors were treated to the sight of a snowball fight in the Tylander yard at 3401 Washington Rd., between Kathy Tylander, 13 and her brother, Gene, 8. It was a battle royal and their father took movies of it as proof that it does snow in Florida.

In Chicago the Tylanders exchanged greetings with many prominent lumbermen of the state, including J. H. Van Hoy and Mrs. V., of Sanford, who frequently visit the Palm Beaches.

She'll Entertain at Bridge

She held open house the other night for Dr. and Mrs. R. E. Vale, visiting here from the north. Dr. Vale was former interim pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. More than 250 attended.

Typical Palm Beach weather — golden dripping sunshine and all that — prevailed the other day when Mabel (Mrs. Ray Mars) Simpson gave a 3-table bridge luncheon at the Villas in Palm Beach.

Dr. and Mrs. Simpson, are regular "winterists" here from Evanston, Ill., and three of the guests at the party were members of her bridge club in Evanson, also refugees from the cold.

They chatted about the difference between the patio where before-luncheon cocktails were served under the palms and the brr-brrr weather "back home."

Formerly part of the Everglades Club, each maisonette at the Villas has individual charm, and the one in which Mabel held her party was one of the prettiest.

The Raymond E. Kratzers gave a dinner party Saturday night at their Moor Drive home for Louis De Jean of Asheville, N.C., author and lecturer. Guests included their house guest, Mrs. John Paul Jones of Boscarver, N. H.

Traditional Greek Wedding Held

THE AMOS E. JACKSONS, 1233 N. Ocean Way, Palm Beach, have returned from Tallahassee where they attended the wedding of their son, Michael Eberett Jackson, and Mary Lou Tsovas, daughter of Mrs. George Fotianos and of George Tsovas of that city.

The beautiful traditional Greek ceremony was used for the 5 p.m. wedding at St. John's Episcopal Church, Rev. John Berries of the Greek Orthodox Church, Jacksonville, officiated.

The church was in bridal array with white flowers, palms, and candlelight.

The bride's uncle, Michael Matsotsos, gave her in marriage. She was gowned in chantilly lace and tulle. The back peplum of alternate rows of pleated tulle and lace ended in a chapel train.

A seed pearl coronet held her illusion veil. Her flowers were a cascade of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Maid of honor, Edith Berkowitz was in filmy blue chiffon. She carried an old fashioned nosegay.

Eva James was the koumbara. In Greek services, Mrs. Jackson explained, if the bridegroom is not a Greek, he does not have a best man. Instead the bride chooses one of her friends — the koumbara.

Bridesmaids wore pink waltz length dresses and carried nosegays. They were Catherine Stevens of Jacksonville; Linda Cormely, Tallahassee; Patricia Stevens, Tampa; Aspasia Monconis, Apalachicola; Judith Pounds, Winter Haven, and Barbara Martin, Miami.

Junior maids were Helen Monconis, Apalachicola; Connie Stevens, Jacksonville, and Linda Driggers of Lockhart. Flower girls were Ellen Turk of Lake Gem and Maria Monconis.

Ushers were Robert Thurmond, Tampa; Walter Mickler, Lee; Marshall Gentry, Pensacola; John Petrandis, John Patrick Marshall, Robert Marshall, Tallahassee; Chris Efthemidias, Athens, Greece; and Richard Howser, West Palm Beach.

The bride attends Florida State University in Tallahassee, and the bridegroom is a pre-law student there. After a wedding trip the young Jacksons will live at 607 East Park Ave., Tallahasee.

BPW Elects Elaine Roth

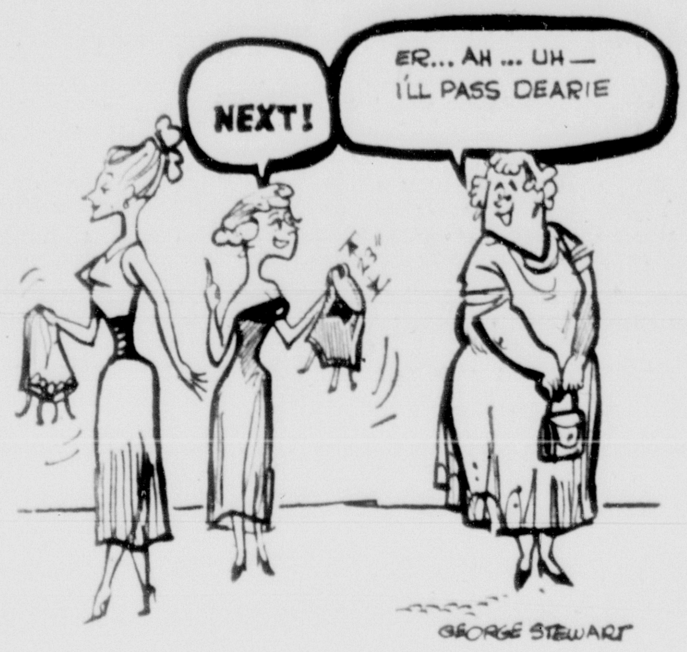
BELLE GLADE — Miss Elaine Roth, West Palm Beach, was recently elected District 8 director of the Business and Professional Women's Club. She succeeded Mrs. Alys Okie, of Pahokee.

Other district officers elected were Mrs. Polly Crowell, of Vero Beach, assistant director; Mrs. Nina Cherry, West Palm Beach, recording secretary; Miss Betty J. Stott, Martin County club, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Louise Roche, Riviera Beach, treasurer. Delegates to the state convention are Mrs. Eva Alkire, of Fort Pierce, and Mrs. Okie, of Pahokee. Alternate delegates are Mrs. Laura Jenkins, West Palm Beach, and Mrs. Rosa Nash, Belle Glade.

Corset, Of Course

Cleopatra Wore One

By HELEN VAN HOY SMITH
Herald Staff Writer



WEST PALM BEACH—An announcement of interest to women concerns the corset fashion show to be held at the Woman's Club Friday.

The show will highlight a luncheon meeting and card party sponsored by the club's Citizenship Committee. Clubmembers will model the garments. Mrs. W. A. Fetner will be commentator.

It is admitted that the corset is a subject close to every woman, and has been of paramount importance to her wardrobe for a long time. It is known that Cleopatra wore one.

Oldest corset in West Palm Beach is owned by Mrs. R. L. McLester, 3001 Clyde Rd., wife of the postmaster of West Palm Beach. The corset, circa 1778, belonged to an ancestor of hers and has been handed down to the oldest daughter in the family since that time.

Made of heavy linen, with stays backstitched in with linen thread, the corset is further bulwarked by a wooden stave down the front with an inscription you can still read clearly:

"Phear Robinson, God giv her Grace therein to look and understand that whenever she is cauled for she may have all her work done in this life and be redy to resin her breth willing and not with gref."

Mrs. McLester says that the corset was evidently for a waist measuring not more than 22 or 23 inches. It will go to her eldest daughter, Louise, now Mrs. Robert G. White of San Diego, Calif., who has just had a brand new daughter to inherit this interesting relic of a by-gone day when spelling was quaint and girls were named Faith, Chairity or Phear.

Catherine de Medici decreed 13 inches as a proper waist measure for a lady of high degree and introduced a corset that was a steel cage. The fashion was aped by Queen Elizabeth's court.

Matters got so serious that Henry IV of France issued an imperial order forbidding the use of these corsets. But you can't outwit a woman. They had steel stays sewn into their dresses.

Early in the 18th Century men went down to the sea in ships to spear the mighty leviathans of the deep, and whalebones were introduced in corsets.

But modern garments are as light and as firm, as flexible and as unyielding as a woman's will. That's the sort that will be modeled in the corset fashion show Friday.

'Accept Retarded Children'

WEST PALM BEACH — Importance of parents' accepting the mental retardation of a child was emphasized by Dr. Joanna Byers at the meeting of the Palm Beach County Association for Retarded Children held Tuesday night at the home of Dr. and Mrs. T. Norley, 211 30th St.

Poing out that a child's happiness is more important than personal pride which often causes rejection of these children, Dr. Byers said that love, duty, and understanding will bring into focus the importance of the child's individuality.

Now in private practice, Dr. Byers was formerly with the Guidance Center of Palm Beach County.

It was announced that the Sheltered Workshop for Retarded Children will soon be opened. Anyone interested in enrolling a child should write to the Association for Retarded Children, 211 30th St. Workshop is for children over 16 years old.

Legislators Ask New Welfare Law

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — The Legislative Council's public welfare committee said Wednesday it will recommend legislation to the next session to curb illegitimacy in an effort to hold down rising public welfare costs.

Chairman Tom Adams of Orange Park said the problem of aid to dependent illegitimate children had been attacked in the past by trying to limit the number of illegitimate children a woman could have and still receive payments.

He suggested a better approach would be to outlaw common law marriages, or in some other way define a proper home, then cut off support to children not living in one.

"There isn't a man on this committee that wants to see a child go hungry," he said, "but at the same time we don't want to subsidize loose morals."

The committee met with representatives of the State Welfare Board, the Welfare Department and the Legislature's interim welfare committee, to work out ways to hold down rising costs of the welfare program in Florida.

It is also seeking ways to stop fraudulent applications for state aid, and a uniform prosecution law to enable legal action to be taken against persons receiving illegal support.

Welfare Board Chairman J. Hal Stalling of Tampa said he did not think a law limiting the number of illegitimate children to one or two to a family would curb illegal births.

He said a plan is presently in use in Mississippi which refuses support for children who are not living in a proper home.

However, Adams said the state would still be left with the problem of taking care of children refused aid because they were not living in a proper home. He said the Legislature would have to find some way to provide for them.

However, he said the law would eventually solve the problem of women giving birth to illegitimate children just to receive state money.

Rep. E. C. Rowell of Sumter County suggested a public education program to tell the people that state welfare is a charity, not a pension system to which they are automatically entitled.

He said if more people realized it was a charity program, they would stay off the welfare rolls. At the same time, he said, applicants for state aid should be required to make their applications under oath.

The committee agreed to recommend a bill requiring all applications to be made under oath, and recommened creation of a uniform prosecution bill which would set down rules for action against fraudulent applications.

Stallings told the committee the department is drawing up a manual for local boards, setting official policy on carrying prosecution cases from start to finish.

Found with Dead Uncle

Weak, But Managed To Wave in Time

INVERNESS — Young Jimmy Fillmon was too weak to move and his uncle was dead when the boy was found clinging to an overturned boat in the Gulf of Mexico, his rescuer said Wednesday.

The 16-year-old Homasassa youth spent 14 hours holding on to the capsized craft in choppy seas before a state conservation agent, Marion Oliver of Crystal River, came upon him and the body of Jimmy's uncle, Harry H. Fillmon, 51.

The elder Fillmon, a professional fisherman who moved to Homasassa from Largo nine months ago, died from exhaustion and exposure.

Oliver said Jimmy "was too weak to move. I had to drag him off the overturned boat and into the one I was using."

The youth who is recovering in a hospital, said he went crabbing with his uncle in the gulf about 70 miles north of St. Petersburg Monday. A wave filled the boat with water shortly after noon.

Jimmy related he and Fillmon worked for eight hours in a futile attempt to bail out the craft. It capsized and overturned about 8 p.m.

Fillmon died about two hours later, the boy said. Jimmy tied the body to the hull of the boat to keep it from slipping into the water.

Oliver, who helps in Gulf searches in the area, went out Tuesday looking for the missing boat.

"I spotted what appeared to be a rock several miles out in the Gulf," Oliver said. "It was foggy and choppy and I went to take a closer look.

"The boy managed to raise one arm and wave. Then I knew it was an overturned boat."

Legislators 'Willing to Pay Price' to Keep Segregation

TALLAHASSEE —(UPI)— Key members of House and Senate appropriations committees said Wednesday they are not interested in saving money at the expense of racial segregation.

Only one of a dozen legislators here for biennial budget hearings had a favorable word for Gov. LeRoy Collins' suggestion that the Legislature consider closing expensive graduate schools at A&M University for Negroes.

Rep. Ralph Turlington of Gainesville, seat of the University of Florida whose law school was integrated with enrollment of one Negro on court orders last fall, said there is "merit" to the idea of abolishing the Negro Law School, which in past times has cost the state as high as $60,000 per student.

Turlington said there is no justification for closing the A&M graduate school in teacher education which has a large enrollment and costs the state no more than similar schools at the white universities.

"It might be sound to close the law school, though," he said.

His Senate colleague, J. Emory Cross of Gainesville, disagreed, as did Sen. Wilson Carraway of Tallahassee, where A&M and Florida State are located.

"Florida knew when it established the graduate schools at A&M that it would be expensive and we were willing to pay the price for segregation," Cross said. "I am still willing to pay it."

Carraway, Senate appropriations chairman, said closing the A&M graduate schools would "just be hastening integration at our other universities and I could not go along with that."

His views were shared by Sens. Randolph Hodges, Cedar Key, S. D. Clarke, Monticello, and Doyle Carlton, Wauchula. Carlton, usually a Collins' supporter, said he would never vote to "encourage" integration.

Rep. W. C. Herrell of Miami Springs, House spending chairman, withheld comment until detailed cost figures are available. But he said he will base his decision on "dollars and cents."

Turlington said no matter what is done about the A&M Law School, there probably will always be an average of three or four Negroes in the law school at Gainesville in the future.

School Plan Is Favored

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— The Ervin-Bailey parent-option tuition plan for bolstering Florida's stand against public school integration appears to be drawing favor from a majority of the Legislature.

However, several of the no surrender segregationists view it with open skepticism. And one, Sen. J. Emory Cross of Gainesville, labels it a "sham" which will give the people a false sense of security.

A sizable contingent of legislators was in the capital Wednesday. Most of them support, in varying degrees, the plan.

Sen. S. D. Clarke of Monticello, dean of the Senate and regarded by his colleagues as their number one constitutional expert, said the plan to permit parents to withdraw their children from an integrated public school and provide a state tuition grant to help finance private education "looks all right."

Rose Asked More Jobs, Aide Says

By JOHN BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins' chief administrative assistant said Wednesday Tallahassee printer, Charles Rosenberg, who gets the bulk of the state's printing, had complained to him that he "wasn't getting enough business" from agencies under the governor.

William Durden said Rosenberg called on him about six months ago and the conversation came to a close after Durden told Rosenberg he would have to deal directly with individual department heads.

"He didn't say or do anything improper," Durden said, explaining that Rosenberg just quoted figures showing percentages of printing business he was getting from several agencies.

Durden said Rosenberg has not contacted him on the matter since but Walter Frank, sales manager for Rose Printing Co. of which Rosenberg is president, brought up the subject in "casual conversation four or five times."

Durden said "several printers have contacted the office but only to ask to be placed on the invitation to bid list. We have made it a policy to refer their names to the department heads with the suggestion they be added to the list."

Gov. Collins had previously said one printer had complained he wasn't getting enough business under his administration from the governor's "little cabinet" agencies but he didn't identify him.

State Rep. John E. Mathews Jr. of Jacksonville has said he is going to call for a legislative investigation of state printing practices to eliminate waste and see that all printers get a "fair shake."

Gov. Collins endorsed Mathews' proposal and the legislator's call for a broad central purchasing system to include printing.

Collins also called for complete reports from each of the agencies directly under his supervision on all printing jobs let in 1958.

Migrant Housing Bill Introduced

Herald Service

WASHINGTON — A bill, introduced by Rep. Paul G. Rogers (D., Fla.), that would provide improved housing for migrant laborers, was aired Monday before the House Sub-committee on Housing of the Committee on Banking and Currency.

Rogers testified, "only when we can provide decent housing can we hope to clean up deplorable conditions existing in the labor camps and farms where migrant labor is housed."

Roger's bill, which grew out of the worse than usual conditions created by last winter's freeze, calls for federal insurance on loans by investors for construction of migrant labor housing.

The bill was introduced during the last Congress, but failed to get favorable consideration by the House during the last days of the session. A new bill was therefore necessary.

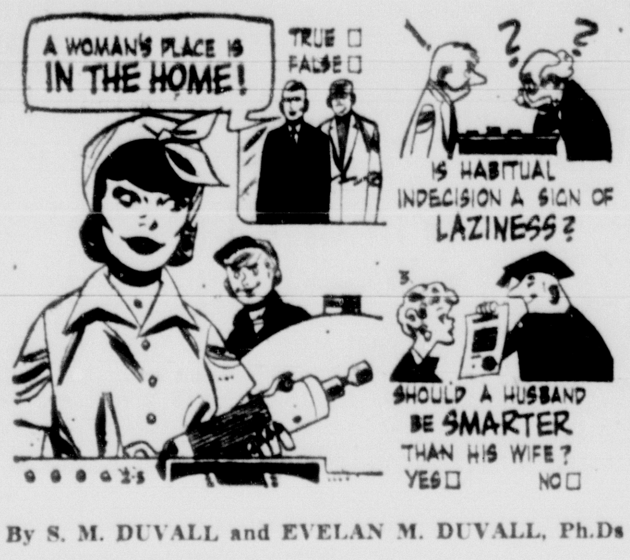
Woman's Place



A WOMAN'S PLACE IS IN THE HOME!
TRUE ☐
FALSE ☐
IS HABITUAL INDECISION A SIGN OF LAZINESS?
SHOULD A HUSBAND BE SMARTER THAN HIS WIFE?
YES ☐ NO ☐

By S. M. DUVALL and EVELAN M. DUVALL, Ph.Ds

MARRIED WOMEN certainly should take care of their families. But, studies by General Electric and at a Research Center of the University of Michigan show that working wives, on the whole, do as well as those who "stay home." There is some evidence to show also, that an active interest in worthy causes gives the children an example of good citizenship, and makes the wife a more interesting person to the husband.

2. No. The person who can't make up his mind may have to work far harder at it than the individual who makes decisions quickly. Chronic indecision is usually an indication of fear of failure. If the uncertain person makes up his mind the wrong way, things may turn out all wrong—the chance the indecisive one finds it unusually hard to take. The anxiety underlying chronic inability to make decisions can sometimes be relieved by psychotherapy.

3. Since this is socially expected, it is usually safer than the other way around. Certainly, too, men with special training, such as doctors or lawyers, can hardly expect competence equal to their own in their fields. Yet a wife should be intelligent and educated enough to meet her husband's friends and their wives on a fairly equal basis. Too great a difference is risky.

Seymour Kemach Swam to Tug
. . . 'now I know I'll live to be 60'

Former Gables Resident Tells Ordeal

He Gave Up But 'God Was Good'

Seymour Kemach, 36, a Brooklyn salesman and former resident of Coral Gables, was a passegner aboard the ill-fated American Airlines Electra that crashed in New York Tuesday night.

Kemach managed the Three Sisters Store in Hollywood and later the Three Sisters shop on Miracle Mile between 1946 and 1951.

He was sitting in the plane's lounge joking with the stewardesses when the plane slammed into the East River. This is the story he told

By SEYMOUR KEMACH
As Told to United Press International

God was good to me. It's the only way I could figure it out.

I wasn't sitting in my seat. I was sitting in the plane's lounge with another guy and two stewardesses. We were talking and joking. I was strapped into my seat.

Then we went down and I thought I was going to die.

How did I get out of the plane? I don't know, but I helped pull out two hostesses and a little boy.

That water was cold. I thought I'd never see my wife again. You don't know. I came close to giving up.

I swam in the water to a tugboat. I swear to God I gave up twice. You just don't know how lucky I was. Now I know I'll live to be 60.

I'm in good shape, only my ankle. But oh my back, my leg, my head. And I'm still freezing. That water—it was cold!

NEW YORK—(AP)—Little Robert Sullivan, 8, was sitting in the seat of the big airliner next to his mommy. Nearby were his father and two sisters.

They had been on a happy excursion to visit relatives in Chicago, as they often did, and were almost back home again.

Then came the nightmare. From a hospital bed later, little Robert told about it in halting phrases as he emerged from the shock of a terrible series of events.

"I was sitting in the seat next to mommy," he said.

"I don't know what happened but all of a sudden I began to slide and we went under the seat.

"Then I was on something in the water.

"Mommy was holding me.

"Then in the water we couldn't stay up.

"I tried to hold my breath. I was cold. My arms felt frozen."

Little Robert could speak no further. But somehow he knew of the tragedy that had befallen him.

Robert and his mother were rescued from the icy waters and rushed to the hospital. His mother died in the hospital.

His father, Joseph, and sisters, Patricia, 13, and Joan, 5, were listed among those missing as searchers continued to scour the waters of the East River for bodies.

Drop Inspection Demand

Reds Back Down, Let Trucks Pass

HELMSTEDT, Germany — (UPI) — The Russians backed down during cold-war maneuvering Wednesday night and released an American truck convoy held within a stone's throw of the West German frontier since Monday.

The five GIs manning the four trucks quickly gunned the vehicles past the border checkpoints into the West to end 56 cold hours of detention in East Germany.

They were not allowed to talk to waiting newsmen.

Soviet border guards freed the trucks finally after a meeting between State Department official Findlay Burns and Col. H. F. Markushin, of the Russian army. Burns said the Soviets had dropped their original demand to inspect the trucks' cargoes, but he did not elaborate.

Russian troopers carrying machineguns stopped the trucks Monday afternoon within 50 yards of the U. S. Army's border station here. The troopers insisted the open vehicles had to be searched.

Cpl. Richard C. Masiero, of West Stockbridge, Mass., who was in charge of the convoy during a 110-mile trip through East Germany from West Berlin to the frontier, replied that the trucks contained only jeeps. He refused to allow a search.

The border incident triggered a flurry of cold-war maneuvering highlighted Wednesday by Burns' frontier conference and a State Department protest to Moscow which demanded the release of the trucks and men.

American officials regarded the Russian action as an attempt to embarrass the West by a token cut-off of the land route to West Berlin within shouting distance of the West's heavily - guarded frontier.

Those in the trucks besides Masiero were Drivers Pfc. Benjamin G. Peoples, 20, of Theodore, Ala.; Specialist Robert E. Love, 20, of Plain City, Ohio; Specialist Elwood F. Johnson, 29, of Brooklyn and Specialist James E. Cook, 22, of Hardeeville, S.C.

Kennan Sees Reds Playing Close to War

WASHINGTON — (AP) — George F. Kennan, former ambassador to Moscow, voiced belief Wednesday Soviet leaders are prepared to play close to the edge of war to gain their objectives in Berlin.

"I do not think the Soviet leaders want war over Berlin," he told the Senate foreign relations disarmament subcommittee.

But, he said, in current efforts to force Western troop withdrawals and a free Berlin, Soviet leaders are prepared, for reasons not fully apparent, "to play particularly close to the edge.

KENNAN

"They have committed themselves extensively," Kennan continued, "and it would not be wise for the Western governments to take the matter too lightly."

Kennan also told the committee:

"I do not believe the Soviet leaders want another war, or would be likely to inaugurate one by surprise attack just because they felt they had a temporary advantage in long-range striking power."

Kennan called for a package proposal of concessions to Russia in a major Western effort to get the Red Army out of Central Europe.

"But I don't recommend that we do anything unilaterally," he said.

He told the committee he believes the Kremlin's chief concern in Central Europe is to separate German armed power from that of America.

He said a Germany that was neutralized, but allowed to maintain sufficient armed forces for its own defense, could have a democratically elected government safe against Communist political threat.

U.S., Britain Agree On Europe Parley

LONDON—(UPI)—The U. S. and Britain agreed in principle here Wednesday night to meet with Russia in a four-power conference of foreign ministers this spring on Berlin, the overall German issue and European security, diplomatic sources reported.

The sources said the Anglo-American accord emerged in the first round of talks here between U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

But the U.S. and Britain were determined to resist any Soviet attempt to dictate the agenda of such a conference or limit it to the Berlin crisis, the diplomatic sources said.

Bob Hope Can't Be Here But Big Show Goes on

A blood clot behind his left eye Wednesday knocked Bob Hope out of a trip to Miami to be master of ceremonies tonight at the Variety Club's annual "Show of Shows."

"This is the first time in 25 years that I have had to renege on a promise to do a benefit," the veteran funnyman told officials here in a telephone call from Hollywood.

HOPE

He said his doctors told him that the pressure from the high altitude plane trip to Miami might cost him the sight in his left eye. He was putting compresses on the eye Wednesday.

But even without Hope — who predicted the show will still draw a "packed house"— Jack Benny and dozens of big-name film, stage and television stars are here for the program. See story on Page 5C.

McElroy Warns Red China

Says U.S. Will Use Atom Arms

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A plain warning to the Chinese Communists that the U.S. would use atomic weapons in any future Korea-style war was sounded Wednesday by Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy.

McElroy said it would be "against our national interest if any inference were given the Chinese Communists that we would fight the Chinese Communists without general war weapons."

The House Armed Services Committee, before which McElroy was testifying, got into the subject by pressing the secretary for assurances that the U.S. is remaining prepared to fight limited, as well as general, wars.

McElroy said conventional forces suitable for limited conflicts are being maintained, but he went on to say that a conflict on the scale of the Korean one would not be considered today as a limited war.

Reminded that U.S. forces in Korea operated under orders not to use nuclear weapons, McElroy said:

"It was limited as to weapons, but I think there is some doubt as to whether it would be so limited today."

McElroy said earlier that by the end of the year the gap between the U.S. and Russia in intercontinental missiles would be only one or two weapons. He emphasized he was talking about missiles that could hit their targets.

The committee pressed him for an estimate of what Russia could do with its stock of shorter-range missiles.

McElroy replied such missiles would enable the Soviets "to bring quite a few of the advanced European NATO bases under missile attack."

He said this would be true especially if the Russians were willing to risk establishing missile bases in such satellites as East Germany, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. But, he said, U.S. officials are "inclined to doubt that they would do so."

Under questioning, McElroy conceded the possibility the Soviets might over the next few years produce enough intercontinental missiles to put them ahead of the U.S.

"If the Russians use their capability to produce, they will have more ICBM weapons on launching pads than we do," McElroy said. He said, however, the U.S. does not know whether the Soviets will use their full production capacity.

Telephone Crews Get A Workout

By TOM MORGAN
Naples Bureau Chief

NAPLES — Cranes and derricks are doing a yeoman job of isolating portions of Collier County and keeping crews of the Inter-County Telephone Co. working around the clock.

Tuesday afternoon a crane, being used by the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad to rip up rails on its abandoned Everglades branch ripped up more than rails.

The machine's boom knocked down a pole and snapped all circuits, including 200 long distance circuits between Fort Myers and Miami. Calls were routed through West Palm Beach. All lines to Everglades were cut.

Manager Carl Holbrook of the telephone company said line repair crews worked until after 2 a.m. Wednesday restoring service.

A few hours later the repair crews wearily crawled from their beds in response to an urgent summons. A dragline, working along the Tamiami Trail, had taken too enthusiastic a bite and included 400 telephone circuits in its mouthful.

The lines, which served the East Naples and other unincorporated sections, were back in service at midnight Wednesday.

Muttering about draglines and cranes, the repair crews wearily went back to bed.

Ailing Lewis 'About Same'

WASHINGTON —(AP)— John L. Lewis' condition at Georgetown University Hospital was reported "about the same" Wednesday.

"He is not well, but we are reasonably satisfied with his condition," said Dr. John B. Minor.

Minor said Lewis, 78-year-old president of the United Mine Workers, is being treated both for pneumonia and for cardiac changes which he sustained to "a mild degree."

Safety Items Lacking On Runway and 65 Die

CAB Says Strip Had No Lights; Only 8 Survive

NEW YORK — (UPI) — An American Airlines prop-jet Electra which plunged into the East River killing 65 persons was trying to land on a runway lacking adequate instrument devices and without runway approach lights, it was revealed Wednesday night.

The new two-million-dollar Lockheed airliner, equipped with every safety factor, crashed shortly before Monday midnight in fog and drizzle less than 30 seconds short of a LaGuardia runway on a nonstop flight from Chicago.

There were 73 aboard. Nine survivors were fished from the icy water with boathooks by a tugboat crew. One of the survivors, a woman, died later.

Joseph Fluet, chief regional investigator for the Civil Aeronautics Board, revealed that the runway had instrument equipment advising the pilot on his direction but not whether he was coming in too high or low over the water for a landing.

Fluet said the Electra was being "tracked on radar" and all the airport-to-air facilities of LaGuardia were working effectively.

"The aircraft was being tracked on the radarscope, and the plane was being vectored, that is being brought into position for its final approach, in a normal instrument landing system procedure," Fluet said.

Fluet declined to say why Runway 22 did not have the glide slope feature. He said that was not within his province. It was understood LaGuardia had been planning to install the device on the runway very shortly.

Capt. Albert H. Dewitt, of Decatur, Mich., the 59-year-old pilot with 30 years experience and one of the first to qualify on jet-prop planes, was killed. American had inagurated the Electra service only 12 days ago.

Investigators of the new Federal Aviation Agency revealed that the runway toward which Dewitt was headed was not equipped with instruments to inform the pilot whether his glide path approach was too high or too low.

There was a ceiling of 400 feet and visibility of two miles as the Electra approached Runway 22, known as the "back course." It had an instrument landing system which automatically radios the plane if it is coming in the proper direction.

But, investigators said, that runway does not have the second beam advising the plane of its altitude and distance from the runway. LaGuardia is equipped with radar. It was not known whether Dewitt asked the control tower to advise whether his approach was all right on the radar scopes.

A DC3 had landed on the same runway just a few minutes before. The Electra made its last radio contact at 11:54 p.m. when it received landing permission. It crashed at 11:57 p.m. less than a mile from the field, traveling at 135 miles an hour.

Lack of automatic guidance on his glide path descent plus the chance of human failure of visual depth perception in coming down over water were possible explanation of the disaster. The CAB made it clear,

Day and Place Are Weirdly Similar as Tragedies Strike Two Years Apart

Senate Spurns Bid to Cut Housing Bill to Ike's Level

GOP Hits 'Budget Busters'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Senate Wednesday turned down a Republican substitute aimed at cutting a $2,925,000,000 Democratic housing bill back to levels favored by President Eisenhower.

Before it adjourned overnight, however, the Senate agreed by voice vote to cut in half a 300-million-dollar provision for direct home loans to veterans. Democratic backers of the bill agreed to the change, which had the effect of cutting the total authorization to $2,775,000,000.

The senate also beat down, 50-37, a Republican move to knock out of the bill provision for 51,000 low-rent, public housing units.

Only a little earlier, the House voted 310-89 for a 300-million-dollar GI home loan bill over protests from Republicans that "budget busters are on the move."

Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana led the House protest, trying to help Eisenhower in his fight against any move that might upset the 77-billion-dollar budget he has submitted.

The substitute the Senate turned down was offered by Sen. Homer Capehart (R., Ind.), who posed the question: "Do we or do we not wish a balanced budget?"

The Senate rejected Capehart's proposal 58-32.

Capehart estimated the spending in the Democratic bill would exceed President Eisenhower's budget estimates by 240 million dollars in the year beginning next July 1.

The Democratic bill compares with $1,800,000,000 in Capehart's substitute, which was revised slightly upward when the Indiana Republican offered it Wednesday.

The big issue, however, centered around proposed spending in the fiscal year starting next July 1. All the programs extend over several years.

Eisenhower said at his news conference Wednesday, in comment on the Democratic bill: "This means that right off in the very first bill the budget is to be unbalanced."

The house bill would raise interest rates on home loans guranteed by the Veterans Administration from 4¾ per cent to 5¼ per cent. The idea is to encourage the granting of these loans by private institutions.

Producer Of 'Kukla' On Airliner

CHICAGO — (AP) — Miss Beulah Zachary, television pioneer who produced the show, "Kukla, Fran and Ollie," for 10 years, was bound for New York Tuesday night in a renewed effort to bring the show to live audiences.

She was listed Wednesday among the missing and presumed dead in the crash of an American Airlines plane.

Miss Zachary, who advanced from the role of studio hand to producer-director within three years after joining Station WBKB in Chicago in 1944, was personal manager and adviser to Burr Tillstrom, creater of the show.

Kukla and Ollie were a pair of puppet people. Their antics with Fran Allison delighted oldsters as well as the young before the show was dropped by the American Broadcasting Co. in 1957.

Tillstrom was the voice and life to Kukla, Ollie and several other "Kuklapolitans."

however, that it had reached no conclusion as to the cause of the crash.

"As of 6 p.m. tonight, the Civil Aeronautics Board Investigation of the American Airlines Electra accident near LaGuardia Field had revealed no facts indicating the cause of the crash," Edward E. Flattery, CAB information officer said.

Meanwhile, in Washington the House Commerce Committee announced it would look into the crash. Chairman Oren Harris (D., Ark.) called on the new Federal Aviation Agency to report on the accident at a closed committee session Friday.

The sleek four-engine liner smashed into the East River with a blast of noise that a tugboat captain said "sounded like dynamite." There was no flash of light nor any fire in the crash of the kerosene-fueled turbo-jet.

The tug H. Thomas Teti, towing two barges, was only a little more than 200 yards away. It cut loose the barges, opened full speed and rushed toward a fuselage and wing picked up in its spotlight.

The crew of eight lined the rail and pulled the living from the icy water with boathooks. Among them were Mrs. Lorraine Sullivan, 40, and her son, Robert, eight. The boy lived. Mrs. Sullivan died five hours later. The father, Joseph, and two daughters, Patricia, 13, and Joan, five, also perished. They were from Hempstead, N.Y.

Among the others killed was Beulah Zachary, Chicago TV producer of the Kukla, Fran and Ollie show.

Three of the five-member crew survived. Co-pilot Frank Hlavacek, 33, Wilmette, Ill., is in critical condition as is Joan Zeller, 21, Riverside, N. Y., a stewardess who began flying six months ago because "it is so thrilling." Warren E. Cook, 36, flight engineer from Aurora, Ill., is in poor condition.

Seymour Kemach, 36, a salesman from Brooklyn, pulled the Sullivan boy and the two stewardesses from the wreckage and suffered only a broken leg himself. Mae Markides, Rochester, N.Y., the other stewardess, died.

Also killed was Richard Winn of Norwalk, Conn., an American Airline executive appointed Feb. 1 to head the airline's jet research, development and planning.

Capt. Samuel Nickerson, 57, Rockland, Mass., captain of the tug Teti, said he didn't know at first what had happened when he heard the tremendous blast.

"We turned on our search light and the beam picked up wreckage floating in mud and water about 700 feet off our bow," he said.

Co-Capt. Everett Phelps, 48, Arlington, Vt., said the crew fished out the living with boathooks. They didn't bother with the dead, he said.

"Three people were perched on the fuselage," Phelps continued. "We hauled them aboard. As we did so, a hand poked through a door in the wreckage. The man inside called for help.

"Crewmen yanked on the door with hooks but couldn't get it open. Then the fuselage section pulled away from the hooks. The man's hand disappeared."

Ike's Plane Runs Into Storm

VALDOSTA, Ga. — (UPI) — A heavy rain and thunderstorm pummelled President Eisenhower's plane bringing the chief executive to a South Georgia vacation retreat Wednesday, forcing it to fly to an alternate field for a landing by instruments and radar. It landed safely at 4:18 p.m. at Valdosta.

A line squall from a Gulf of Mexico storm system raked the Valdosta-Moultrie area just as the presidential plane Columbine arrived for a scheduled landing at Spence Air Base, Moultrie, then flew on to Valdosta. The landing was delayed more than an hour because of the bad weather.

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower threw the gage of battle to Congress Wednesday, before flying to Georgia to cope with the quail.

Eisenhower took the unusual step of offering hostile comment on legislation not yet presented to him for his signature by the "spenders" of the Democratic 86th Congress.

The President's attitude made it clear that he intends to slug it out with the Democrats as the defender of an already shrunken dollar.

Eisenhower's vigorous and unsolicited criticism of two pending congressional proposals, offered at his press conference, was almost like a promotion ad for the television appearances the President plans to make this winter in his fight to hold the line against federal spending and inflation.

The President hoped a week ago that somebody at his press conference would ask his views about the airport construction bill, a 575-million-dollar tid-bit now in preparation by the Democratic majority.

But nobody raised the question last week and Eisenhower didn't wait Wednesday. He opened his seance with the reporters with a blast not only at the airport construction bill, but at the housing bill now going through the legislative machinery.

"If we are going to ask for these new expenditures," he said, "why doesn't each one of these bills include a measure for increasing taxes?

"That would be the straightforward, honest way to see whether the U.S. really wants this kind of thing." The President declined to say whether he would use his veto power in this fight with the "spenders," but there is no doubt that he intends to veto at least the airport construction bill as it is now shaping up.

The housing bill now before Congress contemplates spending $1,300,000,000 more than the President has recommended.

The airport construction bill, which the President regards as classic of pork-barrel legislation, would spend $375,000,000 more than the White House, the Budget Bureau, and the Federal Aviation Agency regard as prudent.

And Eisenhower made it very clear that he thinks that members of Congress are fakers when they come up with big spending measures and make no provision for taxes to meet the costs.

"I don't believe we should have higher taxes, and I do not believe the U.S. wants higher taxes," the President said.

NE Pilot Recalls '57 Crash

Two years and three days ago a Northeast Airlines plane crashed into New York's East River, killing 20 persons.

The pilot was a Miami man, Capt. Alva R. Marsh, 6020 SW 133rd St. He escaped unhurt. Months later the Civil Aeronautics Board ruled he was to blame.

Wednesday, Marsh remembered.

"It's a terrible thing," said Marsh. "It is horrible. I know.

"When you have been so close to it, you know. I'm sorry. I just don't want to talk about it. I don't want to comment on it."

That was his second crash in the same place. In January, 1952, he was at the controls of a twin-engine Convair which went down in the East River. All aboard survived.

Marsh, 50, now working in Northeast's operations office in New York City, was reached by telephone. He said he learned about the crash Wednesday morning.

"I wasn't working Tuesday night," he said.

Marsh's family still lives here. He considers Miami his home. He flew as a military and commercial pilot 26 years.

The CAB ruled March 11, 1958, that he "did not demonstrate the skill and care required of an airline pilot."

He hasn't flown regularly since.

Marsh personally pulled 20 to 25 passengers through a hole in the left side of the fuselage after the crash two years ago. He was the last survivor to leave the wreckage.

"I just couldn't get her up," he said only hours after the crash. "Her power just drained out. But none of the instruments showed it. She just wouldn't go up."

Iraq Orders Death for 3

DAMASCUS — (AP) — Iraq's military supreme court Wednesday sentenced three key figures of the ousted regime including former Interior Minister Said Quazzaz to be hanged.

The other two were ex-Baghdad Governor Abdul Jabbar Fehmi and ex-Security Chief Bahjat Attiyah.

All three were found guilty of multiple murder and physical torture of anti-government demonstrators and political detainees and of forging parliamentary elections under the regime of assassinated Premier Nuri Said and King Faisal.

Atlas Flight Success; Is Moon Next?

CAPE CANAVERAL —(UPI)— An intercontinental Atlas, capable of boosting itself all the way to the moon, followed orders early Wednesday on a routine flight that ended a key development series.

After the burly missile blasted off at 3:01 a.m., the Air Force said the flight was "another in the Atlas research and development series." Defense officials in Washington later announced the Atlas flew its intended range of "less than ICBM distance," in a successful test.

Informed sources said the range was about 4,300 miles, and the Atlas was the last in the "B" development series. In this phase the weapon was tested as a complete missile—with all three of its engines and its separable nose cone—over ranges approaching ICBM distance.

One "B" series Atlas, fired Nov. 28, made an all-the-way hop of 6,325 miles. But two other attempts to send the missile full range were unsuccessful.

The secrecy-cloaked firing of the Atlas satellite Dec. 18 has led to speculation in this missile-conscious area that the Air Force may try to shoot an entire Atlas—not just a small probe payload—to the moon.

Officials here have said they know of no such plans for the Convair-made Atlas, but United Press International learned the 100-ton Atlas is capable of such a feat.

In an official Air Force publication (the U.S. Air Force Report on the Ballistic Missile), missile men disclosed that the Atlas "reaches a thrust cutoff velocity near the escape velocity."

It was learned that the Atlas, designed to hurl a 5,000-pound hydrogen warhead across oceans, could reach the escape speed of 25,200 miles an hour if it carried no payload in its nose cone.

Missile men conceded that there would be great propaganda value in such an achievement. But they said it was unlikely the Air Force would try to reach the moon with an Atlas without including some useful scientific payload such as the Thor-Able moon rockets carried last year.

Although the Atlas is scheduled to be operational and in the hands of troops by June 30, plans call for continued testing of the missile through 1962. The new test series will be aimed at simplifying the Atlas and making it a more reliable weapon.

Meanwhile, a few hundred yards northwest of the Atlas launching stands, the Air Force began preparing for another effort to launch the first Titan ICBM. The Titan, considered potentially more powerful than the Atlas, fizzled again on its second launching try Tuesday but the trouble was believed to be minor.

However, there was no indication when the next attempt to fire the Titan would be made.

Today's Atlas, the 20th fired since testing began in June, 1957, blazed into a starry, cloudless sky in another spectacular launching. Just before its "sustainer" engine burned out three and a half minutes after blastoff.

Better Bus Deliveries Are Asked

Herald Bureau

IMMOKALEE — They can't get the right issue of The Miami Herald here and the Chamber of Commerce proposes to do something about it.

Tuesday night the chamber officially "went on record as deploring the fact we can't get The Miami Herald with the articles about Immokalee," said Stan Wrisley, chamber secretary.

Because of bus connections the first edition of The Herald must be sent to Immokalee.

Wrisley, also publisher of the Immokalee Bulletin, said lack of bus service prevents the delivery the group wants and "We're going after it hammer and tongs."

Saying the Tamiami Trail Tours has held a franchise for service into the area for 23 years, Wrisley added, "We want to know how they can sit tight on a franchise of 23 years. They have knocked out six different outfits that wanted to provide service from Immokalee to Fort Myers, Everglades, and now Naples."

The Collier County Commission also noted Tuesday in conversation that there had been complaints The Herald local edition can't be obtained in Immokalee and Marco.

The commissioners did not point out the cause.

Inactive Law Officers Still Must Report

Herald Bureau

EVERGLADES — Collier County's constables and justices of the peace will have to make financial reports for the past year even if they did no business.

If they don't, declared Commission Chairman Winford Janes this week "We'll have no alternative except to report them to the governor."

The county has three justices, Oley Hancock in Immokalee, Al Gerish in Everglades, and Tobey Carroll, Naples. Only Hancock serves and by special act he has trial jurisdiction to provide 'relief for the County Court case load.

There are no active county constables. Joe Hunter has resigned at Everglades to become a deputy sheriff in Monroe County.

Stormy Sharp never was active at Naples and Joe Brown at Immokalee was suspended by the governor.

He is waiting appeal of a conviction for receiving stolen goods.

Want More Judges

3 'Relief' Courts Now Bogged Down

TALLAHASSEE—(AP)—State District Courts of Appeal, created to relieve an overburdened State Supreme Court, now are so bogged down in cases themselves they must have relief, a joint legislative appropriations subcommittee was told Wednesday.

The sub-committee learned the Legislature will be asked to add three judges to the South Florida District Court and two judges to the Central Florida Court.

The sub-committee, apparently seeking a way to avoid adding judges to the court at Miami, registered surprise at the announcement of Judge William Allen that the Lakeland court wants two judges.

Committee members conceded case loads of the Miami and Lakeland courts were extreme. However, House Appropriations Chairman W. C. Herrell of Dade County and others sought to bring out that other judges could be assigned to temporary duty.

All the district judges vetoed this suggestion, except as an emergency measure.

Judge Wallace Sturgis of the North Florida district, which has the lightest case load, said a judge moved from his regular post to temporary duty actually won't be of much help.

Judge Mallory Horton of the third district said, "You can't bring in a judge for a week and alleviate a case load."

Judge Allen said 300 cases a year are all a court can handle efficiently. But he said the court at Lakeland handles 450 and the court at Miami 600.

Herrell remarked, "the Legislature approved the district courts because we were told the Supreme Court was so overloaded it could not give the people proper service and was forced to write a lot of sloppy opinions. If the district courts now are even more overburdened, it appears we must be getting more sloppy opinions than we had under the Supreme Court."

400 Acres Is Surplus For State

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — Establishing the boundary of the Everglades National Park has left the state with some 400 acres of Everglades swamps that it's not quite sure what to do with.

The tract, near the Collier County seat of Everglades, was part of a bigger tract the Collier family turned over to the state several years ago. The land was held in trust to be given to the federal government if needed to round out park boundaries.

Now the boundaries have been drawn, taking in most of the Collier land, but leaving 400 acres on the outside.

The state has the deeds, but can't do anything with the land except give it to federal authorities for the park.

So the cabinet directed heirs of the Collier family be asked if they won't take the 400 acres back.

Asphalt Unit Has Election

A. P. Bolton of Lakeland was elected president of the Asphalt Paving Association of Florida at the annual meeting, held at Miami Beach this week. John G. Dickerson was reappointed executive director.

Other new officers elected Tuesday were Roy Warren of Tampa, and B. N. Gilmore of Miami, vice presidents; Shaw Pearsall of Ocala, treasurer, and Charles Cobb of Jacksonville, secretary.

Alexander Breats of Jacksonville and E. B. Comodare of Fort Lauderdale were named directors.

Oratorical Contest Set

KEY WEST—Monroe County high schools have been invited to participate in the annual American Legion oratorical contest Feb. 17 at the Legion home on Stock Island.

Contestants must present a prepared oration based on the U.S. Constitution or one of its amendments. They will be judged on presence, poise, personality, accuracy, effectiveness and oratorical powers.

Medals will be awarded for first and second place winners in this county-level runoff. Successful contestants may go on to the National finals to compete for scholarships.

The Sites Might Be Bit Damp

Herald Bureau

EVERGLADES — Some sites offered as new Collier County seat locations may have built-in drainage problems.

The County Commission has been offered four tracts of about 20 acres each, approximately five miles east of the Naples-America Airport. Two of the tracts were offered by Gabriel Luff of the Stewart Real Estate and Development Co.

Earlier in the same meeting a letter from Luff, asking help in solving the problem of "water flowing across" the same area, was read.

Luff suggested extending the Naples-Immokalee Road south to the Tamiami Trail at Belle Meade, or Henderson Creek, to handle the water, which he said formerly only covered one corner of the section.

Chairman Winford Janes pointed out the proposed extension is already in the secondary road system for future construction, but Dick Goodlette noted "It's got a very low priority."

Luff several months ago offered the commission rights-of-way in the eastern part of the county, but the board refused to accept these because it had no plans for roads in the area.

County Line Meeting Set

SEBASTIAN — Because of the interest being shown in a meeting scheduled for 7:30 p.m. today to discuss a change in the Indian River-Brevard County lines it will be in the Sebastian School Auditorium instead of the city hall.

Miss Elois Faa, executive secretary of the Sebastian River area Chamber of Commerce which is arranging the meeting, announced Tuesday afternoon that the meeting place had been changed.

She said that Rep. L. B. Vocelle had learned that there will be a larger attendance than expected.

They Won't Miss Naples

NAPLES—Southbound tourists will soon get more help in finding their way to Naples.

Three new directional signs are being put up at intersections where visitors might be diverted.

The Naples Chamber of Commerce highway committee, headed by Casey Ingram, reports the signs will be at La Belle in Hendry County, Immokalee in Collier, and Palmdale in Glades.

Engineer Study Of Storm Threat Of Lakes Asked

Property Owner Protests Plans

By TOM MORGAN
Naples Bureau Chief

NAPLES — An engineer's study and report of possible storm dangers, or damage, that may result from digging a lake behind the public beach will be obtained by the Naples City Council.

The decision to have the study made was reached after Carl O. Huffman, the owner of adjoining property, told the council he would seek to hold the city responsible if damage resulted to his property.

Councilmen Archie Turner and Arnie Haynes argued that, since tidal waters lie behind Hoffman's property, it would be difficult to prove where damage started, should it occur.

"If a storm forced water over the beach," said Turner, "the people behind it will already be under water."

Dr. Francis Ford and Attorney Kirby Smith argued the city should make the survey because it has been put on notice of a possible suit.

"I respect the judgment of Mr. Turner in this matter and his experience," said Dr. Ford, "but I wouldn't want to see the city sued for $200,000 or $300,000."

Dr. Ford said, at the start of the discussion, he wished to "rescind" his previous support for digging of the lake.

"I hate to see us spend all the money on engineering," said Turner, "and wind up with nothing to do the actual work."

Bob Wilson, engineer suggested he might get advice from Dr. Pér Brun at the Coastal Engineering Laboratories.

"But I don't think you'll get me, or any other engineer, to go far enough out on a limb to say this will or won't create trouble."

The lake project has already caused a lot of council headaches when it was disclosed there was some question whether leasing a dragline for the work was authorized by council.

A contract with E. & I., Inc., finally was confirmed because the firm's dragline was on the job.

The machine was later taken off the work, and then returned, after completing a job in the nearby Moorings sub-division.

The beach park was formed by combining ends of streets, vacated to form Coquina Sands sub-division. The city has never had money for necessary fill in the swampy section.

The work has now been made possible under the Naples Plan, by a donation from Lester Norris.

Many similar lakes have been dug on private property without protests, although all require council approval.

THE SIXTH annual Fort Lauderdale Boat and Sport Show opens today and Ginger Dunning, contestant in the "Miss Dreamboat" contest, is telling the world about it. Doors of War Memorial Auditorium open at 2 p.m.

State Firm In Request For Return

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — R. O. Culver, director of Florida's division of corrections, said Wednesday the state will not drop its efforts to extradite a Canadian fugitive, 20-year-old Kenneth William Brymer of Toronto.

In Toronto, however, Ontario Reforms Minister George Wardrope indicated that extradition proceedings probably will not be pressed.

Wardrope told the Ontario Legislature that one of his deputies asked Florida authorities to suspend proceedings unless the youth gets in trouble again in the southern state.

Wardrope said the request was "well received" in Florida.

Two months after his Florida escape he was sentenced to a two-year term in Kingston (Ont.) Penetentiary for breaking and entering. His term ends in May.

Brymer was sentenced June 2, 1955, in Citrus County for breaking into a cafe-filling station, making himself a meal and leaving with $160 and some guns. He escaped from a Florida road camp March 25, 1957, and went to Toronto, his home town.

Florida authorities have been trying since June 1957 to have Brymer returned. A fugitive warrant issued for him then was rejected by Canadian authorities.

Reactor License Is Slated

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The Atomic Energy Commission said Monday it plans to license the University of Florida to operate a low-power reactor.

Unless a request for a hearing is filed within 15 days, AEC said it will issue a license, expiring Dec. 23, 1967.

This would be the first reactor in operation in Florida. A construction permit for the university's reactor, a variation of the Argonaut reactor, was issued in December, 1957.

The reactor will be on the university campus at Gainesville.

Grid Team Is Planned; Suits Given

IMMOKALEE — Plans for a high school football team here next season are being made and four uniforms have already been pledged towards a total of 25.

Stan Wrisley, secretary of the Immokalee Chamber of Commerce, said his group has pledged two suits, the Woman's Club and the Lions one each, at a cost of $100 per suit.

Suits for a high school band were similarly obtained from donations in the past. Wrisley said work on a fall football schedule has already started.

Immokalee Bidding For 'Frontier Town'

Herald Bureau

IMMOKALEE — If Roy Rogers wants to build a "frontier town" tourist attraction in Florida this community wants to get into the act.

From the heart of the Collier County cattle country, the Immokalee Chamber of Commerce has written Rogers a 10-point letter emphasizing reasons he should consider locating near here. The letter incloses one of the Lions Club license tags claiming Immokalee is "the last frontier."

The letter points out Immokalee is on "the proposed Ft. Lauderdale highway now being considered by the county" and that a Seminole Indian Reservation is nearby at Pole Crossing. It also notes the nearness of the Audubon Society bird sanctuary at Corkscrew Swamp.

Rogers has been said to be planning a multi-million dollar attraction in Florida to which he will bring "45 carloads of old trains, stage coaches and other materials."

The Naples Chamber of Commerce is also seeking to have Rogers locate there.

Ton of Coal? That's Right

The weather was a pleasant 80 degrees or so when Tamiami Freightways brought the "bituminous chunk grate coal" and unloaded in on agent Jimmy DeVogt for delivery to Bill Becker's Mangrove Shop, which handles a lot of fireside fixtures.

"I never expected to order coal in Florida," said Becker, "but we sell the grates and people wanted it."

The coal came from Alabama.

Car A Loss, Three Unhurt

NAPLES — An automobile was a total loss Wednesday after it went off S. Gordon Dr. and hit a palm tree.

The driver, Miss Marian Frances Coon, told Patrolman Bob Alexander she was going about 20 miles an hour and was lighting a cigarette. She said she looked down to replace the lighter and the car hit the tree. She was slightly injured.

The palm tree, the accident report noted, "was not damaged.

Judge Disqualifies in Suits

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST—Circuit Judge Aquilino Lopez Jr. Wednesday disqualified himself from hearing the improvement bond validation proceedings and a related lawsuit, seeking to establish validity of a petition for repeal of the utility tax.

The cases are major legal hurdles in the city administration's efforts to launch a multi-million-dollar improvement program.

The judge disqualified himself in the utility tax petition case because — "It appears that several persons signing the petition are related to me within the third degree of consguinity or affinity . . ."

The judge reported his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Aquilino Lopez Sr., and a brother-in-law, Arthur Lujan, had signed the petition.

Judge Lopez
. . . out of 2 cases

Mr. and Mrs. Lopez' signatures were among the 3,202 rejected by the City Commission on various legal points. This action, which left the petition with an insufficient number of names to be effective, resulted in the lawsuit, calling for a ruling on the petition's validity.

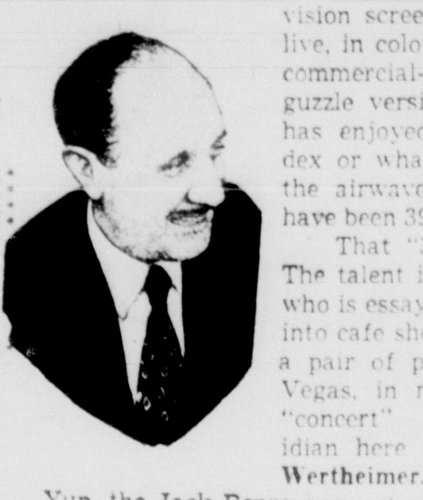
The petition litigation was cited by the state attorney as a block to validation of a $2,750,000 revenue bond issue, proposed by the city.

Because of this connection, Judge Lopez also disqualified himself in the validation hearings.

New dates for hearings in the cases may have to be set to allow time for a substitute judge to be named. Judge Lopez said the chief justice of the State Supreme Court would assign a judge to hear the cases.

Nightlife with George Bourke

Benny's Nightclub Invasion Frolics to a Sweeping Victory



TWICE NIGHTLY — at something around 9:30 and later near oneish in a repeat for the late coast — Ben Novack's enlarged La Ronde Room of the Fontainebleau Hotel is converted these evenings into a 500-inch television screen on which is shown, live, in color and in 3-D a sort of commercial-free, pay - as - you-guzzle version of a talent which has enjoyed high Hooper, Trendex or what-have-you ratings on the airwaves for what seems to have been 39 years.

That "39" should be a clue. The talent is that of Jack Benny, who is essaying his first excursion into cafe show business, excepting a pair of previous dates in Las Vegas, in modern times and a "concert" at the old Floridian here in the 20's for Mert Wertheimer.

Yup, the Jack Benny you get at the Fontainebleau is the same past-master of the off-hand delivery, the identical perfectionist of the long-suffering petulant pose, a happy carbon of the professional protestant of the state of perpetual middle-age, and a soft-key echo of the familiar character who is uncertainly unsure of himself and covers it with self-effacing boastfulness.

* * *

Gisele MacKenzie a Charmer

THESE MATTERS are not the usual fare for cafes.

The habitual pub-crawler might complain that Mr. Benny doesn't have "an act," even with some business with Gisele MacKenzie, who sings, looks and plays the violin with memorable charm, and with Chiquita and Johnson, a pair of exciting dancers. That well might be—by night club standards—but if Mr. Benny doesn't have "an act" then somebody had a charm ray gun concealed somewhere in the wings and was wafting waves of winning stuff audience-wise at the show we caught.

Mr. Benny doesn't overwhelm or shock you in the manner that the Ritz Brothers or Louis Prima and Keely Smith might but when you look at your watch and find he has been on stage something like 40 minutes and it didn't seem like 10 you know you have been watching a personality with class and show savvy at work.

He relies almost completely on techniques and routines already proven audience-proof. He chatters topically and about show business. He fiddles in solo and in duet with Miss MacKenzie and allows an intrusion of the dance team to bring his famous expression of resigned tolerance to his face. And, in his only departure into un-television lines, he makes a mildly daring comparison of the bags under Phil Harris' eyes to the anatomy of a female.

In her solo spot Miss MacKenzie is as clean and refreshing as one of her native Canadian summer breezes. In gimmick-free voice she enchants with a repertory which ranges from a French folk song to a medley of Broadway hit tunes of the Rodgers and Hammerstein variety. You won't learn any new dirty or boorish jokes from Benny and MacKenzie but you won't be bored either.

'Viva Cuba' Rushed to Theaters

WARNER BROTHERS is rushing prints of Carl Dudley's "Viva, Cuba!" out to the theaters to take advantage of the headlines . . . Did you know that the National Suit and Coat Recovery Board is meeting at the EmPRESS Hotel? Wonder if their theme song is "Look for the Silver Lining."

Jack Benny
. . . victor

Bennett Cerf
. . . quake?

Jerry Brooks
. . . home

Add intriguing names: Dawn Greenhalgg, a member of the Canadian Players who will present "As You Like It" at Barry College Auditorium on Feb. 21. Actually she's Mrs. Ted Follows, wife of the troupe's co-star . . . Jimmy Grippo, hypnotist and card manipulator, mesmerizing a steak at Charcoal Hut in Surfside . . . Now there's swank King Arthur's Court in Miami Springs Villas, and there's King Arthur Drive-In on Coral Way. They are not related.

A Los Angeles periodical states: "The foul Florida weather has already put 'Operation Petticoat' behind schedule." Ouch, fellers, my sunburn hurts when we laugh! . . . Wonder if Bennett Cerf has a copy of Milton Berle's new book, "Earthquake" with him at the Fontainebleau? That was the Walter "Lake Tarleton" Jacobs first-nighting with Gabriel Heatter at the Jack Benny opening . . . Jerry Brooks of Luau and the Havana Capri Casino, will be home from Heart Institute today . . .

Marjory Douglas Poem Recited

A lyric poem by Coconut Grove's Marjory Stoneman Douglas "Martin Tabert of North Dakota," was performed in Elmo Russ's setting in a New Art's League concert in New York City last week. The occasion was a recital of songs by Russ, baritone-pianist, in Steinway Hall.

Seymour Kemach Swam to Tug

. . . 'now I know I'll live to be 60'

Former Gables Resident Tells Ordeal

He Gave Up But 'God Was Good'

Seymour Kemach, 36, a Brooklyn salesman and former resident of Coral Gables, was a passegner aboard the ill-fated American Airlines Electra that crashed in New York Tuesday night.

Kemach managed the Three Sisters Store in Hollywood and later the Three Sisters shop on Miracle Mile between 1946 and 1951.

He was sitting in the plane's lounge joking with the stewardesses when the plane slammed into the East River. This is the story he told

By SEYMOUR KEMACH

As Told to United Press International

God was good to me. It's the only way I could figure it out.

I wasn't sitting in my seat. I was sitting in the plane's lounge with another guy and two stewardesses. We were talking and joking. I was strapped into my seat.

Then we went down and I thought I was going to die.

How did I get out of the plane? I don't know, but I helped pull out two hostesses and a little boy.

That water was cold. I thought I'd never see my wife again. You don't know. I came close to giving up.

I swam in the water to a tugboat. I swear to God I gave up twice. You just don't know how lucky I was. Now I know I'll live to be 60.

I'm in good shape, only my ankle. But oh my back, my leg, my head. And I'm still freezing. That water—it was cold!

* * *

NEW YORK—(AP)—Little Robert Sullivan, 8, was sitting in the seat of the big airliner next to his mommy. Nearby were his father and two sisters.

They had been on a happy excursion to visit relatives in Chicago, as they often did, and were almost back home again.

Then came the nightmare. From a hospital bed later, little Robert told about it in halting phrases as he emerged from the shock of a terrible series of events.

"I was sitting in the seat next to mommy," he said.

"I don't know what happened but all of a sudden I began to slide and we went under the seat.

"Then I was on something in the water.

"Mommy was holding me.

"Then in the water we couldn't stay up.

"I tried to hold my breath. I was cold. My arms felt frozen."

Little Robert could speak no further. But somehow he knew of the tragedy that had befallen him.

Robert and his mother were rescued from the icy waters and rushed to the hospital. His mother died in the hospital.

His father, Joseph, and sisters, Patricia, 13, and Joan, 5, were listed among those missing as searchers continued to scour the waters of the East River for bodies.

Tunnel Night Work Halted by Protests

More Broward News, Pages 1C, 7C, and the Broward Section

By PAT MANGAN

Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Night work on the Federal Highway tunnel was stopped Wednesday, but officials said it may be resumed tonight.

Heavy equipment was shut down at 10 p.m. after police and city officials received strong criticism from nearby residents who complained of the noise.

One apartment house owner said an injunction suit will be filed against the construction company if night work continues.

He said he and other apartment house owners in the vicinity were losing tourists because of the racket created by a tractor excavator, jet pump, two draglines, two dump trucks and several generators.

George Poland, project engineer, agreed to shut down the equipment after talking with City Manager William Veeder, Police Chief Lester Holt and Police Lt. Floyd Hall.

"Poland agreed to cut off the equipment tonight but further discussions will be held Thursday," Holt said.

On orders from Veeder, Holt and Hall inpsected the area Wednesday night.

Poland first said he didn't have authority to close down the operation. He said the work would have to continue on schedule until the return of Project Manager James Hood, who is en route here from New York.

Veeder told Holt the night work should be discontinued if it is a nuisance. The city manager was expected to meet with Hood today.

One neighbor complained that the vibration from heavy equipment knocked plaster from his walls and ceiling, and said the noise was disturbing his pregnant wife.

The construction company was working on a 24-hour basis after receiving permission from the City Commission. The tunnel is to be completed in two or three years.

Kennan Sees Reds Playing Close to War

WASHINGTON — (AP) — George F. Kennan, former ambassador to Moscow, voiced belief Wednesday Soviet leaders are prepared to play close to the edge of war to gain their objectives in Berlin.

"I do not think the Soviet leaders want war over Berlin," he told the Senate foreign relations disarmament subcommittee.

KENNAN

But, he said, in current efforts to force Western troop withdrawals and a free Berlin, Soviet leaders are prepared, for reasons not fully apparent, "to play particularly close to the edge.

"They have committed themselves extensively," Kennan continued, "and it would not be wise for the Western governments to take the matter too lightly."

Kennan also told the committee:

"I do not believe the Soviet leaders want another war, or would be likely to inaugurate one by surprise attack just because they felt they had a temporary advantage in long-range striking power."

Kennan called for a package proposal of concessions to Russia in a major Western effort to get the Red Army out of Central Europe.

"But I don't recommend that we do anything unilaterally," he said.

He told the committee he believes the Kremlin's chief concern in Central Europe is to separate German armed power from that of America.

He said a Germany that was neutralized, but allowed to maintain sufficient armed forces for its own defense, could have a democratically elected government safe against Communist political threat.

Bob Hope Can't Be Here But Big Show Goes on

A blood clot behind his left eye Wednesday knocked Bob Hope out of a trip to Miami to be master of ceremonies tonight at the Variety Club's annual "Show of Shows."

"This is the first time in 25 years that I have had to renege on a promise to do a benefit," the veteran funnyman told officials here in a telephone call from Hollywood.

HOPE

He said his doctors told him that the pressure from the high altitude plane trip to Miami might cost him the sight in his left eye. He was putting compresses on the eye Wednesday.

But even without Hope — who predicted the show will still draw a "packed house"—Jack Benny and dozens of big-name film, stage and television stars are here for the program. See story on Page 5C.

McElroy Warns Red China

Says U.S. Will Use Atom Arms

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A plain warning to the Chinese Communists that the U.S. would use atomic weapons in any future Korea-style war was sounded Wednesday by Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy.

McElroy said it would be "against our national interest if any inference were given the Chinese Communists that we would fight the Chinese Communists without general war weapons."

The House Armed Services Committee, before which McElroy was testifying, got into the subject by pressing the secretary for assurances that the U.S. is remaining prepared to fight limited, as well as general, wars.

McElroy said conventional forces suitable for limited conflicts are being maintained, but he went on to say that a conflict on the scale of the Korean one would not be considered today as a limited war.

Reminded that U.S. forces in Korea operated under orders not to use nuclear weapons, McElroy said:

"It was limited as to weapons, but I think there is some doubt as to whether it would be so limited today."

McElroy said earlier that by the end of the year the gap between the U.S. and Russia in intercontinental missiles would be only one or two weapons. He emphasized he was talking about missiles that could hit their targets.

The committee pressed him for an estimate of what Russia could do with its stock of shorter-range missiles.

McElroy replied such missiles would enable the Soviets "to bring quite a few of the advanced European NATO bases under missile attack."

He said this would be true especially if the Russians were willing to risk establishing missile bases in such satellites as East Germany, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. But, he said, U.S. officials are "inclined to doubt that they would do so."

Under questioning, McElroy conceded the possibility the Soviets might over the next few years produce enough intercontinental missiles to put them ahead of the U.S.

"If the Russians use their capability to produce, they will have more ICBM weapons on launching pads than we do," McElroy said. He said, however, the U.S. does not know whether the Soviets will use their full production capacity.

Reds Yield, Let U.S. Trucks Go

HELMSTEDT, Germany, — (UPI)— The Russians backed down during cold-war maneuvering Wednesday night and released an American truck convoy held within a stone's throw of the West German frontier since Monday.

The five GIs manning the four trucks quickly gunned the vehicles past the border checkpoints into the West to end 56 cold hours of detention in East Germany.

They were not allowed to talk to waiting newsmen.

Soviet border guards freed the trucks finally after a meeting between State Department official Findlay Burns and Col. H. F. Markushin, of the Russian army. Burns said the Soviets had dropped their original demand to inspect the trucks' cargoes, but he did not elaborate.

Russian troopers carrying machineguns stopped the trucks Monday afternoon within 50 yards of the U. S. Army's border station here. The troopers insisted the open vehicles had to be searched.

Cpl. Richard C. Masiero, of West Stockbridge, Mass., who was in charge of the convoy during a 110-mile trip through East Germany from West Berlin to the frontier, replied that the trucks contained only jeeps. He refused to allow a search.

The border incident triggered a flurry of cold-war maneuvering highlighted Wednesday by Burns' frontier conference and a State Department protest to Moscow which demanded the release of the trucks and men.

American officials regarded the Russian action as an attempt to embarrass the West by a token cut-off of the land route to West Berlin within shouting distance of the West's heavily - guarded frontier.

Those in the trucks besides Masiero were Drivers Pfc. Benjamin G. Peoples, 20, of Theodore, Ala.; Specialist Robert E. Love, 20, of Plain City, Ohio; Specialist Elwood F. Johnson, 29, of Brooklyn and Specialist James E. Cook, 22, of Hardeeville, S.C.

U.S., Britain Agree On Europe Parley

LONDON—(UPI)—The U. S. and Britain agreed in principle here Wednesday night to meet with Russia in a four-power conference of foreign ministers this spring on Berlin, the overall German issue and European security, diplomatic sources reported.

The sources said the Anglo-American accord emerged in the first round of talks here between U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

But the U.S. and Britain were determined to resist any Soviet attempt to dictate the agenda of such a conference or limit it to the Berlin crisis, the diplomatic sources said.

CAB Says Strip Had No Lights; Only 8 Survive

NEW YORK — (UPI) — An American Airlines prop-jet Electra which plunged into the East River killing 65 persons was trying to land on a runway lacking adequate instrument devices and without runway approach lights, it was revealed Wednesday night.

The new two-million-dollar Lockheed airliner, equipped with every safety factor, crashed shortly before Monday midnight in fog and drizzle less than 30 seconds short of a LaGuardia runway on a nonstop flight from Chicago.

There were 73 aboard. Nine survivors were fished from the icy water with boathooks by a tugboat crew. One of the survivors, a woman, died later.

Joseph Fluet, chief regional investigator for the Civil Aeronautics Board, revealed that the runway had instrument equipment advising the pilot on his direction but not whether he was coming in too high or low over the water for a landing.

Fluet said the Electra was being "tracked on radar" and all the airport-to-air facilities of LaGuardia were working effectively.

"The aircraft was being tracked on the radarscope, and the plane was being vectored, that is being brought into position for its final approach, in a normal instrument landing system procedure," Fluet said.

Fluet declined to say why Runway 22 did not have the glide slope feature. He said that was not within his province. It was understood LaGuardia had been planning to install the device on the runway very shortly.

Capt. Albert H. Dewitt, of Decatur, Mich., the 59-year-old pilot with 30 years experience and one of the first to qualify on jet-prop planes, was killed. American had inagurated the Electra service only 12 days ago.

Investigators of the new Federal Aviation Agency revealed that the runway toward which Dewitt was headed was not equipped with instruments to inform the pilot whether his glide path approach was too high or too low.

There was a ceiling of 400 feet and visibility of two miles as the Electra approached Runway 22, known as the "back course." It had an instrument landing system which automatically radios the plane if it is coming in the proper direction.

But, investigators said, that runway does not have the second beam advising the plane of its altitude and distance from the runway. LaGuardia is equipped with radar. It was not known whether Dewitt asked the control tower to advise whether his approach was all right on the radar scopes.

A DC3 had landed on the same runway just a few minutes before. The Electra made its last radio contact at 11:54 p.m. when it received landing permission. It crashed at 11:57 p.m. less than a mile from the field, traveling at 135 miles an hour.

Lack of automatic guidance on his glide path descent plus the chance of human failure of visual depth perception in coming down over water were possible explanation of the disaster. The CAB made it clear,

GOP Hits 'Budget Busters'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Senate Wednesday turned down a Republican substitute aimed at cutting a $2,925,000,000 Democratic housing bill back to levels favored by President Eisenhower.

Before it adjourned overnight, however, the Senate agreed by voice vote to cut in half a 300-million-dollar provision for direct home loans to veterans. Democratic backers of the bill agreed to the change, which had the effect of cutting the total authorization to $2,775,000,000.

The senate also beat down, 50-37, a Republican move to knock out of the bill provision for 51,000 low-rent, public housing units.

Only a little earlier, the House voted 310-89 for a 300-million-dollar GI home loan bill over protests from Republicans that "budget busters are on the move."

Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana led the House protest, trying to help Eisenhower in his fight against any move that might upset the 77-billion-dollar budget he has submitted.

The substitute the Senate turned down was offered by Sen. Homer Capehart (R., Ind.), who posed the question: "Do we or do we not wish a balanced budget?"

The Senate rejected Capehart's proposal 58-32.

Capehart estimated the spending in the Democratic bill would exceed President Eisenhower's budget estimates by 240 million dollars in the year beginning next July 1.

The Democratic bill compares with $1,800,000,000 in Capehart's substitute, which was revised slightly upward when the Indiana Republican offered it Wednesday.

The big issue, however, centered around proposed spending in the fiscal year starting next July 1. All the programs extend over several years.

Eisenhower said at his news conference Wednesday, in comment on the Democratic bill:

"This means that right off in the very first bill the budget is to be unbalanced."

The house bill would raise interest rates on home loans guranteed by the Veterans Administration from 4¾ per cent to 5¼ per cent. The idea is to encourage the granting of these loans by private institutions.

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower threw the gage of battle to Congress Wednesday, before flying to Georgia to cope with the quail.

Eisenhower took the unusual step of offering hostile comment on legislation not yet presented to him for his signature by the "spenders" of the Democratic 86th Congress.

The President's attitude made it clear that he intends to slug it out with the Democrats as the defender of an already shrunken dollar.

Eisenhower's vigorous and unsolicited criticism of two pending congressional proposals, offered at his press conference, was almost like a promotion ad for the television appearances the President plans to make this winter in his fight to hold the line against federal spending and inflation.

The President hoped a week ago that somebody at his press conference would ask his views about the airport construction bill, a 575-million-dollar tid-bit now in preparation by the Democratic majority.

But nobody raised the question last week and Eisenhower didn't wait Wednesday. He opened his seance with the reporters with a blast not only at the airport construction bill, but at the housing bill now going through the legislative machinery.

"If we are going to ask for these new expenditures," he said, "why doesn't each one of these bills include a measure for increasing taxes?

"That would be the straightforward, honest way to see whether the U.S. really wants this kind of thing." The President declined to say whether he would use his veto power in this fight with the "spenders," but there is no doubt that he intends to veto at least the airport construction bill as it is now shaping up.

The housing bill now before Congress contemplates spending $1,300,000,000 more than the President has recommended.

The airport construction bill, which the President regards as classic of pork-barrel legislation, would spend $375,000,000 more than the White House, the Budget Bureau, and the Federal Aviation Agency regard as prudent.

And Eisenhower made it very clear that he thinks that members of Congress are fakers when they come up with big spending measures and make no provision for taxes to meet the costs.

"I don't believe we should have higher taxes, and I do not believe the U.S. wants higher taxes," the President said.

NE Pilot Recalls '57 Crash

Two years and three days ago a Northeast Airlines plane crashed into New York's East River, killing 20 persons.

The pilot was a Miami man, Capt. Alva R. Marsh, 6020 SW 133rd St. He escaped unhurt. Months later the Civil Aeronautics Board ruled he was to blame.

Wednesday, Marsh remembered.

"It's a terrible thing," said Marsh. "It is horrible. I know.

"When you have been so close to it, you know. I'm sorry. I just don't want to talk about it. I don't want to comment on it."

That was his second crash in the same place. In January, 1952, he was at the controls of a twin-engine Convair which went down in the East River. All aboard survived.

Marsh, 50, now working in Northeast's operations office in New York City, was reached by telephone. He said he learned about the crash Wednesday morning.

"I wasn't working Tuesday night," he said.

Marsh's family still lives here. He considers Miami his home. He flew as a military and commercial pilot 26 years.

The CAB ruled March 11, 1958, that he "did not demonstrate the skill and care required of an airline pilot."

He hasn't flown regularly since.

Marsh personally pulled 20 to 25 passengers through a hole in the left side of the fuselage after the crash two years ago. He was the last survivor to leave the wreckage.

"I just couldn't get her up," he said only hours after the crash. "Her power just drained out. But none of the instruments showed it. She just wouldn't go up."

Producer Of 'Kukla' On Airliner

CHICAGO — (AP) — Miss Beulah Zachary, television pioneer who produced the show, "Kukla, Fran and Ollie," for 10 years, was bound for New York Tuesday night in a renewed effort to bring the show to live audiences.

She was listed Wednesday among the missing and presumed dead in the crash of an American Airlines plane.

Miss Zachary, who advanced from the role of studio hand to producer-director within three years after joining Station WBKB in Chicago in 1944, was personal manager and adviser to Burr Tillstrom, creater of the show.

Kukla and Ollie were a pair of puppet people. Their antics with Fran Allison delighted oldsters as well as the young before the show was dropped by the American Broadcasting Co. in 1957.

Tillstrom was the voice and life to Kukla, Ollie and several other "Kuklapolitans."

Ike's Plane Runs Into Storm

VALDOSTA, Ga. — (UPI) — A heavy rain and thunderstorm pummelled President Eisenhower's plane bringing the chief executive to a South Georgia vacation retreat Wednesday, forcing it to fly to an alternate field for a landing by instruments and radar. It landed safely at 4:18 p.m. at Valdosta.

A line squall from a Gulf of Mexico storm system raked the Valdosta-Moultrie area just as the presidential plane Columbine arrived for a scheduled landing at Spence Air Base, Moultrie, then flew on to Valdosta. The landing was delayed more than an hour because of the bad weather.

Safety Devices Lacking--65 Died

however, that it had reached no conclusion as to the cause of the crash.

"As of 6 p.m. tonight, the Civil Aeronautics Board Investigation of the American Airlines Electra accident near LaGuardia Field had revealed no facts indicating the cause of the crash," Edward E. Flattery, CAB information officer said.

Meanwhile, in Washington the House Commerce Committee announced it would look into the crash. Chairman Oren Harris (D., Ark.) called on the new Federal Aviation Agency to report on the accident at a closed committee session Friday.

The sleek four-engine liner smashed into the East River with a blast of noise that a tugboat captain said "sounded like dynamite." There was no flash of light nor any fire in the crash of the kerosene-fueled turbo-jet.

The tug H. Thomas Teti, towing two barges, was only a little more than 200 yards away. It cut loose the barges, opened full speed and rushed toward a fuselage and wing picked up in its spotlight.

The crew of eight lined the rail and pulled the living from the icy water with boathooks. Among them were Mrs. Lorraine Sullivan, 40, and her son, Robert, eight. The boy lived. Mrs. Sullivan died five hours later. The father, Joseph, and two daughters, Patricia, 13, and Joan, five, also perished. They were from Hempstead, N.Y.

Among the others killed was Beulah Zachary, Chicago TV producer of the Kukla, Fran and Ollie show.

Three of the five-member crew survived. Co-pilot Frank Hlavacek, 33, Wilmette, Ill., is in critical condition as is Joan Zeller, 21, Riverside, N. Y., a stewardess who began flying six months ago because "it is so thrilling." Warren E. Cook, 36, flight engineer from Aurora, Ill., is in poor condition.

Seymour Kemach, 36, a salesman from Brooklyn, pulled the Sullivan boy and the two stewardesses from the wreckage and suffered only a broken leg himself. Mae Markides, Rochester, N.Y., the other stewardess, died.

Also killed was Richard Winn of Norwalk, Conn., an American Airline executive appointed Feb. 1 to head the airline's jet research, development and planning.

Capt. Samuel Nickerson, 57, Rockland, Mass., captain of the tug Teti, said he didn't know at first what had happened when he heard the tremendous blast.

"We turned on our search light and the beam picked up wreckage floating in mud and water about 700 feet off our bow," he said.

Co-Capt. Everett Phelps, 48, Arlington, Vt., said the crew fished out the living with boathooks. They didn't bother with the dead, he said.

"Three people were perched on the fuselage," Phelps continued. "We hauled them aboard. As we did so, a hand poked through a door in the wreckage. The man inside called for help.

"Crewmen yanked on the door with hooks but couldn't get it open. Then the fuselage section pulled away from the hooks. The man's hand disappeared."

The Electra crashed in about 30 feet of water. The tip of the tail could be seen above it. The scene was about a mile from Riker's Island where a Northeast Airlines DC-6 crashed in a blizzard Feb. 1, 1957, killing 20 of the 101 persons aboard.

Interama's Home

Right at Broward County's back door will be the Inter-American Cultural and Trade Center on this tract of land given to the Interama Authority Wednesday by the Miami City Commission. The 30 million dollar center to go up on the 1,675-acre tract is intended to promote cultural and business relations with Latin American nations. Interama already has $500,000 appropriation from the Metro commission for the first two years' administrative expenses.

Hopes High for Fall Opening

Speedup Ordered On Junior College

Limited Start Proposed

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — School Board members voted Wednesday to step up plans for a proposed junior college here, and agreed to participate in a $2.4 million state bond sale.

They said every effort should be made to have the college open this September instead of the following one as recommended recently by a committee of several local eudcators.

Because funds for the college can't be appropriated until the Legislature meets this spring, the committee said it would be inadvisable to open it this fall.

Board members felt, however, that the school could be started on a limited basis, and pledged their support in speeding up necessary action.

In other action, the board:

VOTED to build three new junior high schools and add to South Broward High with $2.4 million the county is entitled to from the sale of auto tags.

AGREED to increase travel allowances for six homebound teachers from $50 a month to $75, but said consideration should be given to whether it would be cheaper to provide cars for the instructors.

TOOK UNDER STUDY a recommendation that West Side Elementary School be abandoned and the building used for administrative purposes. Board Member John Calvin thought this would be less expensive than building a $100,000 additional to the present administration office.

VOTED to buy 288 new American flags for school grounds, and invited civic and patriotic organizations to furnish small ones for individual classrooms.

DEFERRED action for one week on awarding a contract for the construction of an addition to Wilton Manors Elementary School.

DEFERRED action on a proposed new policy intended to make teaching contracts more binding.

No Change Is Seen for Lien Law

By DICK MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE—The public should become familiar with the state lien law, because it isn't likely to be amended for a long time.

State Sen. George Tedder Jr. so informed Broward Builders Exchange members Wednesday at their semi-annual dinner meeting at the Beach Club Hotel.

Tedder was the principal speaker for a craftsmanship awards night program. Thirteen outstanding building jobs were cited by a committee comprised of BBE officers, architects and engineers.

The senator lauded the BBE plan for a public forum in the spring on provisions of the lien law.

"This is timely," he said, "for indications are that the law will stay on the books as written. The Legislature isn't apt to make any change.

"If people work within the existing law, it isn't too bad," he added. "It would help if there was a better understanding of its provisions."

Liens result when builders are unable to satisfy subcontractors and suppliers. There have been few foreclosures here, principally because of legal costs and a widespread misunderstanding of the lien law.

Craftsmanship cretificates of merit were given for work performed in 1958. Two distinctive residences were cited for two awards apiece, as was the W. G. Crawford architectual office.

Jack Green received a special award for a nonprofessional owner craftsman. His "do it yourself" project was a lace pattern woodwork job on his home, at 1777 SE 10th St.

Ludwig Colombi's tile arrangement in the Green home also merited recognition.

Also recognized were these jobs:

Causeway Lumber Co. Showroom—Jack Maloney, for carpentry on overhang.

George Gore residence, Sea Ranch Lakes, Lauderdale-by-the-Sea — Julian Haywood (Harrell and Haywood), for brickwork and masonry.

Commercial building for United Insurance Co., 1214 S. Andrews Ave.—Otis Nolan (Acousti Corp.), for suspended ceiling.

Commercial building for United Insurance C., 1214 S. Andrews Ave. — Guido Dolfi (Ocean Tile, Marble and Terrazzo Co.), for monolithic terrazzo floor.

Office building for W. G. Crawford, 2114 NE 21st St. — Gerald Eastman, for Steel Framing Erection. Also, James Haywood (Harrell and Haywood), for concrete block work.

City police building, 1300 W. Broward Blvd. — James Hyde (Caldwell-Scott Construction Co.), for concrete structural work.

Low Bidder Miffed At Losing Contract

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

WILTON MANORS — The City Council's decision to hand a paving contract to a firm which was not the low bidder was called "irregular" Wednesday by the company that lost out.

"I hate to see a thing like this get started in the industry," said E. C. Thompson of the paving company bearing his name.

"We're kind of upset at spending the time to prepare a bid and get a bid bond, and then have them give it to someone else."

He submitted a low bid of $3,393.39 for paving a parking area at City Hall. The council Tuesday night awarded a contract for the work to the Di-Mar Paving Co. of Hollywood which submitted a bid $75 higher than Thompson's.

Thompson offered to do the work in 20 days. Di-Mar proposed to take 10 days longer.

The council acted on the recommendation of Wallace Wakeley, street superintendent. Wakeley refused to comment Wednesday on his recommendation.

The city charter stipulates that "all contracts for more than $500 shall be awarded to the lowest and best responsible bidder . . ." City Attorney William G. Miller said he was not present when the contract was awarded.

The council is required, he added, to award a contract to the lowest bidder if he meets all requirements.

Councilman Harold Price said it was his understanding that the city would save some money in engineering costs for drainage of the parking area by awarding the contract, to the Di-Mar firm which would do the work for nothing.

The Di-Mar company has just completed paving a parking area at the Food Fair store adjoining City Hall.

Wakeley said he would confer today with Mayor Frank Starling before releasing a statement.

The Hollywood City Commission has been criticized for awarding the bulk of its paving work to the Di-Mar company. A few months ago the Hollywood city manager, Col. Joseph Watson, and Charles Serianni, president of Di-Mar, engaged in a fist fight in Watson's office over city work.

Love . . . In Full Bloom

HOLLYWOOD — Patrolmn Michael Golumban discovered that some folks just don't like policemen, no matter what.

When he noticed a woman sitting in a parked car he stopped, asked her twice if she was all right, but got no answer.

He walked over to the car and then saw that a gentleman friend was in the front seat beside her.

Before he could leave, the man stepped from the auto and unbraided him for bothering them. He promished to complain to the city manager, the city attorney and the governor.

Golumban calmed him; explained that police always check people parked in cars at that hour of the morning (1 a.m.)

The man said it was his wedding day, and he did not want his future wife embarrassed by police checks.

He said her feelings were hurt by the intrusion.

When Golumban left, the 74-year-old groom and his 62-year-old bride were still sitting there.

Warehouse Hit by Fire

The fire was reported under control about 10:30 p.m. Units from West Hollywood, Dania and the Everglades Fire Control District were at the scene.

Extent of damage was not known immediately.

Church Gets $1,000 Gift

This is quite a day. The sum of $1,000 has been offered to the Holy Temple Pentecostal Church (Negro) to help replace the termite-ridden building which city commissioners reluctantly condemned a couple of weeks ago.

With this donation, and what they can borrow on their property, the congregation should be able to erect a quite adequate little sanctuary.

The donors are a Fort Lauderdale family whose name will never be made public, and will not even be disclosed to the church congregation until later.

They are exceptional people, needless to say, who quietly perform many good works in the county. For example, they now are supporting six young men who are studying for the ministry in various colleges around the country, and give frequent help to a half dozen girls also being trained in Christian education.

Truly, a fine bright day . . .

Sunday Hours in Housewives' Hands

"I WOULD LIKE TO REMIND Broward County housewives that they alone sit in the driver's seat as to whether or not the supermarkets remain open on Sundays. By refusing to patronize them on Sundays, we can be sure they will quickly return to a six-day week."

So writes a Fort Lauderdale woman Mrs Mona Walker.

There was much reaction of this nature to the announcement of Sunday openings by the supermarkets, coming on the heels of efforts to keep other businesses closed—the attempts, for example, by automobile dealers to get together on a solid Sunday closing.

(Yet, in nearly every neighborhood there's a small grocery store which is open on Sundays, and many housewives are glad to have it available.)

"We can all go one step further," Mrs. Walker adds, "by promptly writing and supporting our legislators in proposing a statewide ban of Sunday retailers."

Navy Men Got Free Fishing Trips

A COUPLE OF YEARS BACK, Herb Lutz, one of the leaders of the Coast Guard Auxiliary, offered to make a number of private boats available to the city for fishing trips for visiting dignitaries and Navy men coming into Port Everglades on liberty. Nothing happened.

When the cruiser USS Newport News arrived recently, Herb made contact with some of the officers and three boats—Lutz's, Al Kosetter's and Frank Race's—took out nine of the visitors and gave them a real red-carpet treatment. The reaction voiced by the Navy men, as a result of this gesture and the other hospitality shown that weekend, was: "This town is terrific!"

Now, among members of the auxiliary, the Fort Lauderdale Power Squadron and the Fort Lauderdale Fishing Club, Herb has lined up 10 boats which will be available for similar service in the future . . . Fine work . . .

Attorney Warns of Abuses

Port Board Leans To Local Bidding

By PETER LAINE
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — The Port Authority Wednesday considered slicing up its lucrative construction work among five general contractors within the port area.

Commissioner Robert McConnaughey moved to close the door on "so-called foreign contractors" south of the county line and north of Oakland Park Beach Blvd.

He withdrew the motion when Attorney Ted Cabot broke in: "Let's hold this over until next week."

Chairman Ed Crowells supported the proposal, but Manager R. T. Spangler warned: "It will eliminate competitive bidding. Dredging and other big jobs are coming up."

McConnaughey suggested that five local bidders would provide sufficient competition for warehouses and other projects. The last warehouse built cost about $300,000.

Cabot siad: "If you leave this discretion with the commission, at what point are you going to stop?"

The state used to favor Florida firms with a five per cent price differential but abandoned the practice because of "obvious abuses," Cabot said.

McConnaughey said his idea was "not for eternity, and could be changed if not in the public interest."

The issue followed the board's reluctant award of a fence contract to Anchor Post Products, of Miami, for a low bid of $7,194.

Commissioner W. P. Hartman opposed the award. Commissioners Fred Stevens and Igor Dart moved earlier to give it to a local firm for $126 more.

Cabot said: "The charter is fairly clear. The contract goes to the lowest responsible bidder wherever he lives."

McConnaughey was then successful with a motion requiring future contract winners to employ local labor "where qualified and available." Cabot said this was all right because it was "not mandatory."

Frank Pierce, local union official and Democratic leader, observed the session. He said he was pleased with the labor decision.

In other action, the board approved the security report submitted by Stevens' committee over Hartman's objections. Hartman said it needed more thought.

The board also held up for another week payment of a $3,927 contract retainer fee for R. H. Wright and Son Inc. for completed paving work.

Spangler In the Spotlight

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — Port Manager R. T. Spangler bobbed around on the surface of Wednesday's Port Commission discussion like a cork on the tides. The board:

QUESTIONED him about two loads of weed killer at a week's interval, both at a cost of $900, then formally authorized him to make purchases up to $1,000.

DEBATED paying $1,000 for membership in the Florida Ports and Foreign Trade Council, which Spangler is expected to head. The fee was approved over Hartman's protests.

AUTHORIZED Spangler to accept the council presidency, if offered. Stevens and Hartman feared the job would take too much of the manager's time.

ALLOWED him to go to a council meeting Feb. 17 in Orlando, then on to an association meeting in Jacksonville.

VOTED 3-2 to pay $100 a year in membership dues for Spangler to join the Executive Association of Fort Lauderdale. Crowells and Hartman objected.

HIRED Spangler a new secretary, Mrs. Rosalie Schnell, at a starting salary of $350 a month. Hartman protested that the salary was too high for a beginner.

Wilton Manors Named in Suit

WILTON MANORS — The city was named as a defendant in a suit over deed restrictions filed Wednesday in Circuit Court.

The plaintiffs, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Coffey, of NE Eighth Ter., charge that a business building is under construction on the corner of the terrace and Wilton Dr., contrary to deed agreements which call for a single-family dwelling.

Attorney W. J. Robinson said his clients are seeking an injunction to stop construction plus compensatory damages. Other defendants are Property Owner Sam Spector, Contractor O. D. Hart, and Building Inspector Frank Wolfe.

Ex-Cop Held as Forger

FORT LAUDERDALE — Richard J. Somogyi, 33, 4271 SW 11th St., was booked at county jail Wednesday on three counts of forgery.

Deputy Montie Smith said Somogyi, a former city policeman here, is suspected of writing an Oakland Park bar owner's name on checks. Bond was set at $1,000 on each charge.

Somogyi, now unemployed, was picked up Wednesday on his return from Ohio. Smith said the suspect left the police force about a year ago.

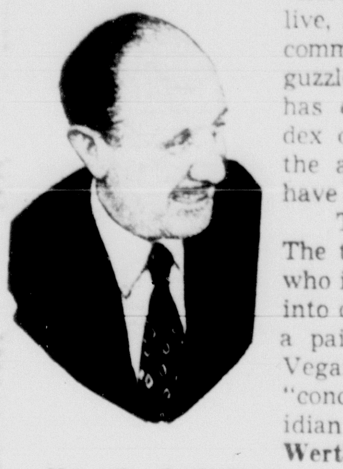
Nightlife with George Bourke

Benny's Nightclub Invasion Frolics to a Sweeping Victory



TWICE NIGHTLY — at something around 9:30 and later near oneish in a repeat for the late coast — Ben Novack's enlarged La Ronde Room of the Fontainebleau Hotel is converted these evenings into a 500-inch television screen on which is shown, live, in color and in 3-D a sort of commercial-free, pay - as - you-guzzle version of a talent which has enjoyed high Hooper, Trendex or what-have-you ratings on the airwaves for what seems to have been 39 years.

That "39" should be a clue. The talent is that of Jack Benny, who is essaying his first excursion into cafe show business, excepting a pair of previous dates in Las Vegas, in modern times and a "concert" at the old Floridian here in the 20's for Mert Wertheimer.

Yup, the Jack Benny you get at the Fontainebleau is the same past-master of the off-hand delivery, the identical perfectionist of the long-suffering petulant pose, a happy carbon of the professional protestant of the state of perpetual middle-age, and a soft-key echo of the familiar character who is uncertainly unsure of himself and covers it with self-effacing boastfulness.

* * *

Gisele MacKenzie a Charmer

THESE MATTERS are not the usual fare for cafes.

The habitual pub-crawler might complain that Mr. Benny doesn't have "an act," even with some business with Gisele MacKenzie, who sings, looks and plays the violin with memorable charm, and with Chiquita and Johnson, a pair of exciting dancers. That well might be—by night club standards—but if Mr. Benny doesn't have "an act" then somebody had a charm ray gun concealed somewhere in the wings and was wafting waves of winning stuff audience-wise at the show we caught.

Mr. Benny doesn't overwhelm or shock you in the manner that the Ritz Brothers or Louis Prima and Keely Smith might but when you look at your watch and find he has been on stage something like 40 minutes and it didn't seem like 10 you know you have been watching a personality with class and show savvy at work.

He relies almost completely on techniques and routines already proven audience-proof. He chatters topically and about show business. He fiddles in solo and in duet with Miss MacKenzie and allows an intrusion of the dance team to bring his famous expression of resigned tolerance to his face. And, in his only departure into un-television lines, he makes a mildly daring comparison of the bags under Phil Harris' eyes to the anatomy of a female.

In her solo spot Miss MacKenzie is as clean and refreshing as one of her native Canadian summer breezes. In gimmick-free voice she enchants with a repertory which ranges from a French folk song to a medley of Broadway hit tunes of the Rodgers and Hammerstein variety. You won't learn any new dirty or boorish jokes from Benny and MacKenzie but you won't be bored either.

Florida's preoccupation with the missile program at Cape Canaveral gave this citrus exhibitor at the 11-day Tampa State Fair a basis for his display. Oranges, grapefruit and tangerines went into the model rocket, which drew these fascinated stares from Lari and Tracy Hoster.

Iranians To Study Our Homes

By HENRY KINNEY
Herald Staff Writer

MARGATE — A delegation of officials from Iran, including the son-in-law of ruler Mohammed Riza Shah, is expected here next Wednesday in search of architectural ideas which can be adapted to their country.

The Ibec Housing Corp., the Rockefeller-backed firm which is building homes here, will be host to the party. IHC President George A. Dudley of New York will head a group of company officials also coming for the event.

IHC now is completing plans for 300 Florida-type homes to be built in Iran, announced Emile Berger, architect for the corporation, who recently returned from there.

The Iranians will spend two days inspecting architecture here and in the rest of the area between Miami and Boca Raton. Their host will be Harvey C. Weeks, IHC vice president and manager for Florida.

The son-in-law of the Shah is an engineer, Ardeshir Zahedi. With him will be Ebrahim Kashani, governor of Bank Melli, the central bank of Iran, and Dr. Houshang Ram, president of Bank Omran.

Iranian builders are seeking designs for homes as they are being built here and in other sections of South Florida, as well as in Puerto Rico and other warmer climates of the western world, IHC explained.

Before reaching here, the party will have inspected the IHC home development program in Puerto Rico and the corporation's headquarters in Rockefeller Plaza, New York City.

Leak Found In Hollywood Water Line

Herald Bureau

HOLLYWOOD — One of three water lines to Hollywood Beach was closed off Wednesday after a serious leak was discovered in the pipe under the Intracoastal Waterway.

Water pressure on South Beach had dropped radically Tuesday night.

But complaints from hotel owners died out by mid-day Wednesday after a diver found the leak and pressure was stepped up in the other two lines.

A waterborne crane arrived at 5 p.m. to begin repairs, City Manager Joseph Watson said.

Public Works Director Mike Ware said a crew would work through the night to have the line back in operation this morning.

The Washington St. main probably was damaged by barge traffic, Watson said. Although the line is eight feet beneath the waterway bottom, it crosses at an extremely narrow point and the water is turbulent when commercial craft pass, he said.

The two other lines cross at Arizona and Sheridan Sts.

Board Quits in Tiff Over Appointment

A clash between the DEERFIELD BEACH City Commission and an advisory committee has resulted in the mass resignation of the five-member Parks and Recreation Board it was learned Wednesday.

The resignations followed the commissions' reluctance Monday to allow the board to hire a recreation director for the city.

The board had already chosen Francis Schuster and agreed on a $5,200 salary — higher than the $4,000 budgeted by the city. An additional $5,000 had been budgeted for the recreation program.

Apparently the commission wanted to retain the hiring authority, as provided in the charter.

City officials were mum on the incident, and Mrs. D. S. Pruitt, chairman of the board, said "I don't ant to be quoted on the matter."

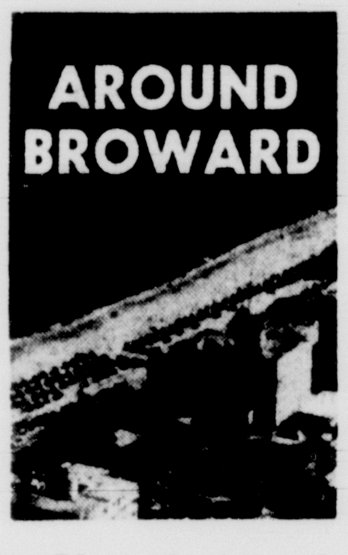
Tike Hikes Home

Five-year-old Alan McQueen of FORT LAUDERDALE wandered away from his mother in a supermarket at S. Andrews Ave. and 17th St. Wednesday, and turned up over an hour later a half-block from his home at 2881 W. Collins Rd., nearly three miles away.



Mr. and Mrs. Hubert McQueen, his parents, said he apparently walked almost all the way home before a neighbor found him.

Check Charge

Charles R. Churchill, 42, was charged by Fort Lauderdale police Wednesday with issuing a worthless check in the amount of $100. Police said Churchill told a local bank he was transferring $1,600 here from an account in Iowa and asked for a $100 advance. Bank officials later became suspicious and checked the Iowa bank only to learn Churchill told them the same story a few weeks ago and made away with $56 there.

Dougherty said that Light-House Point Mayor Russell Clarke, the outgoing president, declined renomination but will remain on the advisory committee.

Other officers elected Tuesday night were James Smith III, of Lauderdale-by-the-Sea vice president; Sam Hedge, of Pompano Beach, treasurer; and Mrs. Evelyn Mastman, of Pompano Beach, secretary.

Also on the advisory committee are Hazen Ames, Dean Smith, A. M. Check and Vern Miller. Charles Jessup is district chairman.

Unusual Phone Quiz: Woman Calls Police

Herald Bureau

POMPANO BEACH — Mary Ann Roberts correctly answered only two out of three true-false questions on a "telephone quiz" Wednesday evening, but was told she'd won $90 worth of merchandise and services — if she'd first pay $3.60 sales tax to a special messenger.

She reported the incident to police who advised her not to pay the tax until she saw the merchandise.

Mrs. Roberts said the caller claimed he represented the Telephone Company Better Businessman's Association.

He asked her: Is Lincoln's picture on a $1 bill; was Hoover the 27th President; did England give the U.S. the Statue of Liberty?

She incorrectly answered the last question.

But the caller said a special messenger would be over today to pick up the $3.60 sales tax. The gifts would follow later.

A subsequent check with Bell Telephone by Desk Sgt. G. Peter Grande disclosed there is no Telephone Company Better Businessman's Association.

Hallandale Sewer Plan Breaks Even

By TOM VINCIGUERRA
Herald Staff Writer

HALLANDALE — The City Commission has both gained and lost ground in efforts to build a sewer plant in the troubled northeast section.

The forward step was taken Tuesday night when the city fathers hired the firm of Leedy, Wheeler and Alleman, fiscal agents, to handle financing of the proposed plant.

But an unexpected setback developed when attorneys for Developer H. B. Layne and Gulfstream Race Track Corp., owner of the 10-acre site the city wants for the sewer plant, said their clients have plans to develop the land for multiple family dwellings.

The action came as a surprise to a large group of northeast property owners who attended the meeting confident the commission would move to condemn the tract.

Instead the city fathers tabled the matter until next Tuesday.

Arthur August, head of the Northeastern Civic Association, Wednesday accused the attorney for Layne, S. Lee Crouch, of "serving two masters."

"Crouch is president of the Chamber of Commerce, head of the chamber sewer committee and also attorney for Layne. He's serving two masters," declared August.

When informed of August's accusation, Grouch had no comment.

The northeast property owners, plagued with septic tank troubles because of poor soil percolation, cleared a major hurdle in their efforts to get sewers when the city fathers authorized plans and specifications two months ago.

Ed Page Guilty of Perjury

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Eddie Page, 35, Boca Raton, who "beat the rap" here last August on a "bookie" charge, was convicted Wednesday on a charge of perjury which developed from the earlier case.

The six man Criminal Court jury which required about an hour to find Page guilty on the perjury count, recommended mercy.

The two cases in which Page was involved had an ironic twist.

In the bookie case, which he won, he could have received a maximum penalty of six years imprisonment. The county solicitor's office said the maximum provided for perjury, the charge on which Page was convicted, is 20 years in prison.

Judge E. G. Newell deferred sentence, continued Page's bond at $5,000 and gave Defense Attorney Edward Starr 10 days in which to file a motion for a new trial.

Migrant Housing Bill Introduced

Herald Service

WASHINGTON — A bill, introduced by Rep. Paul G. Rogers (D., Fla.), that would provide improved housing for migrant laborers, was aired Monday before the House Sub-committee on Housing of the Committee on Banking and Currency.

Rogers testified, "only when we can provide decent housing can we hope to clean up deplorable conditions existing in the labor camps and farms where migrant labor is housed."

Roger's bill, which grew out of the worse than usual conditions created by last winter's freeze, calls for federal insurance on loans by investors for construction of migrant labor housing.

The bill was introduced during the last Congress, but failed to get favorable consideration by the House during the last days of the session. A new bill was therefore necessary.

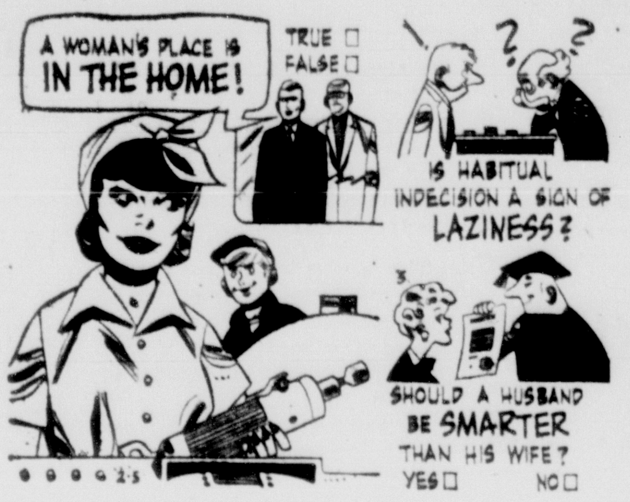
Woman's Place



A WOMAN'S PLACE IS IN THE HOME!
TRUE ☐
FALSE ☐
IS HABITUAL INDECISION A SIGN OF LAZINESS?
SHOULD A HUSBAND BE SMARTER THAN HIS WIFE?
YES☐ NO☐

By S. M. DUVALL and EVELAN M. DUVALL, Ph.Ds

MARRIED WOMEN certainly should take care of their families. But, studies by General Electric and at a Research Center of the University of Michigan show that working wives, on the whole, do as well as those who "stay home." There is some evidence to show also, that an active interest in worthy causes gives the children an example of good citizenship, and makes the wife a more interesting person to the husband.

2. No. The person who can't make up his mind may have to work far harder at it than the individual who makes decisions quickly. Chronic indecision is usually an indication of fear of failure. If the uncertain person makes up his mind the wrong way, things may turn out all wrong—the chance the indecisive one finds it unusually hard to take. The anxiety underlying chronic inability to make decisions can sometimes be relieved by psychotherapy.

3. Since this is socially expected, it is usually safer than the other way around. Certainly, too, men with special training, such as doctors or lawyers, can hardly expect competence equal to their own in their fields. Yet a wife should be intelligent and educated enough to meet her husband's friends and their wives on a fairly equal basis. Too great a difference is risky.

'You Send $1 to Washington--Get 45 Cents Back'

School Leaders Fight U.S. 'Handout'

By ART ROBINSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Accepting two big boats from the federal government is one thing — taking its cash is quite another, say School Board members who oppose government aid to public schools.

Their opposition to government funds made available to Florida schools has raised a question that's likely to get hot before it's answered.

The question is this:

Should school systems be financed solely by the local taxpayers they serve? Or should they accept some money from Washington when it's offered?

School Superintendent Raymond R. Maxwell feels they shouldn't — that it's wrong to send tax money to Washington and then have some bureaucracy send it back in the form of a "giveaway."

The cost of handling the tax dollar in Washington means that the school system doesn't get the full dollar back, Maxwell contends. Board member John Calvin agrees.

"You send $1 to Washington and get 45 cents back," Calvin said.

The School Board accepted two 75-foot harbor patrol vessels from the government in November. It will work them into the vocational training program next year.

Maxwell said he does not feel that accepting boats and cash are the same, since the boats were surplus and might go unused if the School Board had not taken them.

This year the school system is eligible for federal aid amounting to $15,000 for classroom materials and library reference books, and $17,000 for purchase of equipment for vocational training. The money was appropriated under the National Defense Education Act, which was passed to raise the level of American education to meet competition from Russia.

The School Board would have to match the first sum, dollar for dollar. The state would match the second. Broward thus would put up $15,000, the state $17,000, and the federal government would pitch in $32,000 to match it. All the money would be spent in Broward. The school's supervisory department has drawn up programs for use of the money.

Calvin, Maxwell and Mrs. Virginia Young, a board member, object to "strings" attached to the money. The defense act spells out just how the money can be used.

"The purposes that the money is made available for don't begin to meet the needs," Calvin said.

"There's a need to promote scientific education, but they've offered us nothing for that purpose," Calvin added.

"In the meantime we've started accelerated classes in science, mathematics and some other subjects to give our children a better education. We've done this without any help from Washington.

"The government should be offering more money for scholarships for our best students to send them to colleges and universities . . . Just because somebody waves the flag doesn't mean that we should stumble into something that doesn't offer us any real help and just brings on federal supervision of our schools."

'Take Money When Offered'

FORT LAUDERDALE—Some educators and at least one School Board member feel that, when it comes to federal aid, the time to take it is when it's offered.

If the school system doesn't latch onto federal money available now, it will go to some other Florida county, they say.

One educator, who doesn't want his name used for obvious reasons, pointed out that federal funds are allocated to the states under the National Defense Education Act.

Florida will get a certain amount. If Broward County passes up its share, it will go elsewhere. This educator has little patience with objections to accepting the money which are based on philosophical grounds.

The federal money will buy things the school system needs but doesn't have money for, such as audio-visual aids, reference books and other classroom materials, he said.

Under one program, the school system would get money for the purchase of equipment to teach adult electronics classes. There is a big demand for additional training for adults employed in electronics plants in Broward County. This program has not been submitted to the School Board.

Herbert Cooke, president of Airpax Products Co., said:

"We practically shove our people into schools at night, but only half of them can go. There aren't courses for the others."

Robert G. Kraner, president of Airtronics International Corp., now employs 55 persons and expects to have 200 on the payroll in a year, but there is a problem of training them. Electronics industries are expanding at an amazing rate in Florida, he noted.

School Board member Wesley Parrish said the county will ask the Legislature for more money for schools. If it does this after turning down federal funds, the Legislature isn't likely to feel the county is in serious need of more money, he said.

One educator declared the federal program is designed to help local systems and to help teach skills, just as the GI Bill of Rights did for veterans. Hundreds of thousands of veterans acquired skills under that program which have contributed to the present high level of prosperity, he said.

One of those who received training under the federal program was the school superintendent, Raymond Maxwell, who completed his training as an accountant under the GI Bill's on-the-job training program.

Maxwell does not believe this kind of training is comparable to the present federal "giveaway." Veterans interrupted their educations to serve in the last war and the government assumed some responsibility in helping them make up lost time, he said.

Palm Beach's Finding Answer To Erosion of Beach: It's Cash

By ED PFISTER
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH—Constantly buffeted by capricious seas and currents, peninsular Florida's hundreds of miles of ocean front have been stricken by a chronic case of "beach starvation."

In Palm Beach and Pompano Beach, where the symptoms are alike, the case has become acute.

Both blame the eroded beaches on jetties which extend into the ocean and block the normal flow of the sea and the sand it carries from north to south.

Both are trying to do something about it before another Atlantic howler comes along and washes out the beaches altogether.

Palm Beach has 14 miles of oceanfront beach which over the years have proved a magnet for thousands of winter visitors and tourists in this section of the Gold Coast.

But since the early 40s, Atlantic storms and the normal wear of the sea have reduced the resort's beaches to a mere sliver of sand.

They undermined and virtually destroyed scenic Ocean Blvd., forcing the state to relocate the coastal highway along the shore of the Inland Waterway.

Pompano's three mile stretch of ocean front beach is disappearing at the rate of about 13 feet a year. It won't take many years—or many more storms—to reduce it to nothing.

Since 1954, the beach has eroded an estimated 112 feet with the worst case of starvation at the foot of SE Fourth St.

The University of Florida Coastal engineering laboratories at Gainesville have undertaken a study of the beach erosion situation at Pompano Beach and a report about April 1 is expected to recommend artificial nourishment.

Palm Beach, whose sand starved beaches have been a problem for years, has already spent thousands of dollars in an artificial program of beach restoration.

The resort pumped sand from the bottom of Lake Worth on one side of the island to the oceanfront on the other.

The idea proved only temporarily successful. The waves and the currents gradually ate away the fill and the beaches back of it and the jetties jutting out to the north prevented new sand from coming in.

Now Palm Beach—joined by the county—is involved in a unique and costly experiment to restore the beaches through the use of a sand transfer plant that cost $513,000.

The plant, which the town financed and which the county has agreed to maintain, has been in operation since August. In that period of time it has transported 70,000 yards of sand from the north side of the jetties—where the storms pile it up—to the southern beaches which have been eaten away.

County Engineer Stephen Middleton said estimates are that the sand transfer plant will carry 125,000 yards across the port of Palm Beach channel in a year.

The sand transfer plant consists of a structure operating with pumps that push the sand through a pipe sunk on the floor of the channel.

Admittedly, there have been "bugs." In one instance, the pipe broke away from its anchorage on the channel floor. Generally, the operation has proved valuable.

But the sand transfer plant was not expected to restore the beaches without some other type of implementation, and already the Palm Beach Civic Association has deplored the high cost of operation.

The county, meantime, is proceeding with a $10 million beach restoration program which will not only aid Palm Beach but other towns up and down its 40 miles of coastline.

Currently a fiscal study is under way to determine a method of financing the plan. The proposal is before the U. S. Engineers, preliminary to congressional action which would involve federal participation in the cost.

County Engineer Middleton said every successful plan for beach restoration has been incorporated into the Palm Beach County proposal.

FORT LAUDERDALE — How would you like to go to the moon and . . .

— SKI in the lunar Alps.

—FISH in the Sea of Nectar.

—SUN on the beach by the Sea of Tranquility.

—PROSPECT for uranium in the Lunar Apennienes.

A Fort Lauderdale plumber, DuLane Maddox of 3637 SW 12th Ct., claims all these privileges and more too.

Back in 1955, when satellites were only Russian allies and a moon shot was nothing more than a jigger of corn whisky, Maddox bought land on the moon.

A transplanted Texan, Maddox sent off for a dollar's worth of lunar real estate when he saw it advertised for sale in an El Paso newspaper.

He got back a deed to an acre of moon land and a brochure describing the attractions on the moon as artfully as the finest tourist brochure any Chamber of Commerce ever put out.

A company bearing the name of Interplanetary Development Corp. sold him the deed.

It calls itself "a profit corporation dedicated to exploration of planets, public education, development of satellites, and similar activities — also rockets."

Skimmed Prices Curdle Milkmen

By ERWIN POTTS
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — "Milkman, stop my home delivery. I can get it cheaper at the store."

These words, being echoed more every day by local housewives, have sent home delivery milk salesmen into a tizzy here.

D. P. Zimmerman
. . . 'meats cost more'

Norman Jewell
. . . 'laying 'em off'

J. J. Devitt
. . . 'killing me'

Paul Llewellyn
. . . '35 cents yet'

Local supermarkets have cut the price of their half-gallon cartons of milk from 51 to 39 cents. Home delivered milk costs 54 cents.

The milkman is feeling the cut where it hurts the most—in his pocketbook.

"My salary is down $20 to $30 a week," said Borden's Dairy Driver D. P. Zimmerman. "And I have to work even harder trying to talk my customers into sticking with me."

It was the same with other Borden drivers.

"I'm just barely making a living," said Woody Meyer. "I'm drawing about a third less than I was getting this time last year."

"If this keeps up we'll start laying off drivers in a few weeks," said Norman Jewell, Borden's driver supervisor.

"Some of the men aren't making any more money than their company guarantee ($70)," he said.

Said Driver Paul Llewellyn, "I was one of the first affected by the cuts. On my route in West Hollywood they cut it down to as low as 35 cents a half gallon. I'm just having to get used to it."

The drivers said supermarkets are using attractive half-gallon milk prices for "leaders"—to get people into the stores.

The drivers claimed some stores have sold milk even cheaper than it can be bought from the farmer.

Most drivers felt that Stevens Market Inc. started the trouble originally when it cut the price to 39 cents.

Stevens Store Manager A. D. Tipton said, "At least we don't go below 39 cents. Some stores have sold for as low as 29 cents."

Driver Meyer, who's managed to keep his sense of humor throughout the situation, had a ready answer for one housewife who wanted to stop delivery to buy cheaper at the market.

"Lady, you can't possibly get it as cheap as you're getting it from me," he told her.

"You haven't paid me in three months."

His Sales Flagging But Boom's Waving

By ERWIN POTTS

FORT LAUDERDALE — The new 49-star flags are on their way here and a local flag dealer warns buyers they'd better get them early.

Dealer Lew Duncan said flag manufacturers already have a 30-day backlog of orders and the backlog is increasing daily.

"The flags can't be displayed until July 4," said Duncan, "but people who want them had better get their orders in now."

"There's going to be more and more demand for them as we get nearer July 4, and there are only a few flag manufacturers in existence. It'll be hard for them to satisfy the demand."

Duncan said he is taking orders now for the flag, and giving early orders delivery time priority. He said manufacturers are doing the same.

"I expect we'll actually have the flag available by Feb. 9," Duncan said.

Duncan said prices on some new flags will be slightly higher, but will remain the same on most.

The changed design of the flag left Duncan with 500 48-star flags. Formerly priced at five dollars each, he's now letting them go for a dollar.

Duncan said that since Alaska was admitted to statehood his flag sales have practically been at a standstill.

"But it'll certainly pick up now," he added, hopefully.

JACKIE MILES will be on stage in War Memorial Auditorium Feb. 27 and 28 for the Police Benevolent Association's annual benefit performance. Woody Woodbury is slated to emcee the show which will feature a number of TV personalities.

Big Pipeline Moves Coal

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Coal is being moved through a 108-mile pipeline in eastern Ohio these days, a swift, economical process that may someday be adopted throughout the country.

More than 1,350,000 tons of coal annually are expected to be funneled through the new $13,500,000 steel pipe that runs between the Consolidated Coal Co. bituminous field in Belmont County and the Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. generating plant in Eastlake.

According to Steelways, official publication of the American Iron and Steel Institute, the coal is crushed and mixed with water so it can be pumped through the pipe at about three miles an hour.

Engineers are said to estimate that the pipeline will cut normal transportation costs by about 35 per cent.

Double Duty

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Use the vacuum cleaner to remove abrasive sandings and steel wool particles from pieces of furniture you are smoothing as well as from the floor.

Foster Homes Now Helping Oldsters Too

PITTSBURGH — (UPI) — A "foster parents" plan for elderly and chronically ill patients is being worked out at a multi-million dollar hospital here.

The proposal has put new hope in the hearts of patients who have responded to treatment and rehabilitation at the John J. Kane Hospital, Allegheny County's new "model institution" for the chronically ill.

Approximately 400 of these patients are nearly completed self-sufficent and ready for discharge. But they have no place to go.

To overcome this obstacle and keep beds free for incoming patients who really need them, the hospital is developing a "foster care" plan.

The plan, still in the discussion stage, would call for a fairly self-sufficent oldster to receive $100-$125 a month from some level of state government. The patient then would be placed in a home, perhaps with a kindly couple whose children have grown up, married and moved away.

The plan has a two-way pitch.

The income would help the couple make ends meet and retain their home in the face of rising costs. And the rehabilitated oldster would have a "home" and some supervision.

Dr. Alfred Kraft, assistant director of the hospital, said current living patterns have put many elderly persons in the "unwanted" category.

"In earlier days," he said, "there always was a spare bedroom or even a whole upstairs floor in which grandfather could live. However, with the advent of small apartments and split-level ranch-type homes, there is just no room for an elderly and perhaps ill parent."

While the sons and daughters, if they live in the area, are not hard-hearted where their parents are concerned, some do feel their primary responsibility is to raise their own offspring rather than care for oldsters, according to the experts.

The intensive treatment of chronically-ill oldsters has produced some startling and dramatical results at Kane Hospital. The medical staff there believes in what it calls "comprehensive restorative service."

Example: a typical patient 70 years old might well have arteriosclerosis, impending gangrene, heart trouble, hernia and cataracts of the eye. The doctors treat all these ills.

The patient may also be socially, psychologically ill. He may have lost his home, his money, his family and friends with the passing years and vicissitudes of life.

The patient is encouraged to regain his dignity and interest in life, to dress himself, get around socially and play games, as well as do many other normal things of life.

So the oldster recovers. He is ready to go home. However, his children are either not around or are wrapped up in their own concerns.

His relief check or small annuity is not enough to allow him to live decently. He may reside in substandard rooming-houses and hang out in cheap taverns.

The return to the hospital is not long in coming.

And that's where the foster care plan comes in.

3-Year-Olds Should See A Dentist

NEW YORK — (UPI) — A child's first visit to the dentist should never be delayed past the age of three, whether the youngster seems to need dental care or not.

This visit, says the American Dental Association, can be in the nature of a social call, giving the child a chance to get acquainted with the dentist on terms that do not associate him with discomfort or pain.

The idea is to set the stage for providing the youngster with dental care in those early years when the foundation is laid for healthy teeth throughout life.

Brushing should also begin at an early age, dentists agree, even though the first teeth will be later replaced. This establishes a pattern of dental care and prepares the child for the "six-year" molars, which are permanent teeth.

There are "kid-sized" toothbrushes and "kid-sized" toothpaste tubes to help interest the child in taking care of his teeth when it counts most.

AAA Predicts Record Season

FORT LAUDERDALE—Despite a slow winter, a record spring and summer tourist business has been predicted by Robert Finley, South Florida manager of the American Automobile Association.

Finley based his prediction on statistics compiled by the AAA.

He said the association is circulating a tour book devoted entirely to Florida, and pointed out that the organization has six million members.

Directors of the South Florida branch met here to decide on matters which will be presented to the Legislature this spring.

Finley said the AAA will oppose any increase in motor vehicle taxation which would not be used for highway purposes.

The association also favors strict driver licensing procedures, expansion of high school driver training program, a uniform system of traffic courts and bond schedules, and other legislative proposals to prevent accidents.

Five Fort Lauderdale men have been named to the association's advisory committee: George W. Gill, hotel owner; Howard Allen, senior vice president of the First National Bank; Samuel O'Bryan, attorney; William McGarry, manager of a concrete pipe plant, and Thomas Cook, a paint distributor.

Leaky Sewer Stars In Television Show

By RICK TUTTLE
Hollywood Bureau Chief

HOLLYWOOD — City officials from Hollywood, North Miami, Fort Lauderdale and Pompano Beach watched a television show in the Rodman-Funston St. alley.

This is a strange place to watch television but it was an unusual show.

The stage was between 16th and 17th Aves.

The star was a leaky sewer pipe.

The Industrial Pipe Repair Corp. of Wilton Manors was demonstrating how it uses closed-cirucit TV to detect sanitary sewer leaks.

Robert F. Hahnau, who with Edwin O'Toole developed the method during the last year, explained the operation this way:

A TV camera enclosed in a water-tight case along with flood lamps is pulled through a leaky sewer pipe by a cable.

It photographs the inside of of the pipe and the exact spot where the groundwater causes gushes into the line can be established to the inch.

The workman pulling the cable and the man watching the monitor talk over two-way radios. When the leak is pinpointed, the camera is stopped and it televises progress of the repair.

Pipes are forced down from the leak until they reach the sewer line.

Water under pressure is used to blast away the dirt as the shaft goes down. When the shafts (one on each side of the sewer line) are finished, another pipe is inserted in the columns and cement is forced in around the leaking line.

A serious leak takes about two days to fix, but the cost of repairing the 3,000-foot Rodman-Funston Sts. section in this manner is only about one-third of the estimated cost of rebuilding the whole sewer.

"If we reapir the 60 major leaks this way it will cost about $50,000," City Manager Joseph W. Watson said.

The estimated cost to rebuild the line is $150,000.

Infiltrating groundwater made up two-thirds of the amount treated from this section at the sewage treatment plant last year. It cost the city $15,000 to process the groundwater along with the sewage that had to be treated.

"We can see exactly what we are doing by using television," Hahnau said. "This solves the real problem—locating leak. Fixing it isn't tough."

Hahnau and O'Toole began experimenting with still cameras. They've been working with television about three months.

Two to Attend League Meeting

A legislative program is to be disclosed. Childers is a director of the league.

They Bathe In Snow, 50 Below

LITTLE AMERCA V, Antarctica — (UPI) — Residents of this Antarctica base think nothing of going from a steam bath hotter than 250 degrees and rolling in the snow at temperatures colder than 50 below zero.

They're members of Antarctica's "250 Club," a select group of hardy individualists who patronize "Dr. Slagle's Thermo Therapy Clinic and Health Farm" — 750 miles from the South Pole.

The doctor is Captain Thomas D. Slagle of the U.S. Navy's medical corps. He's a native of Sylva, North Carolina.

Earlier this year, the grey-bearded medic, who is in his fifties, warmed himself up to a temperature of 251 degrees. Then, he rolled in the snow outside. It was 55 degrees below zero.

Participating in the spread of 306 degrees was Lt. Max J. Perlitsch, U.S.N. Dental Corps. He's from Medford, Mass.

The institution on this frigid continent consists of a small gymansium and a steamroom of the type seen in Scandinavian countries. The stove is surrounded by big rocks. These radiate the intense heat.

Getting rocks presented a problem when the "clinic" was being established. Little America is built on a huge chunk of ice the size of California and 800 feet thick. There's nothing but ice and snow for hundred of miles in all directions.

But the icebreaker Glacier hauled big rocks from Marble Point on McMurdo Sound, about 400 miles west of here.

Members of the "250 Club" sit on three tiers of seats in the small Finnish bath and absorb the dry heat radiating from the rocks on the stove.

When they have had enough, the lobster-red men roll in the snow outside for several minutes. They wear shoes only.

Capt. Slagle opened up for business at the beginning of the Antartica Winter Night, a time when darkness covers the frozen continent for several months.

His clientele includes Navy men at the base and International Geophysical Year scientists.

He said extreme temperatures are good for the system, particularly for circulation of the blood. During the long winter night recently, two club members underwent the heating process in the steam room and then, in their birthday suits, rolled in the snow outside.

After a few minutes at 50 below, the two searched for the entrance of the pit leading back to the snow-covered base.

They couldn't find it.

Full of Challenges And He's Just 86

WHAT WOULD YOU do if an 86-year-old man challenged you to a game of shuffleboard?

That's what Ed Marks did to me a few days ago.

I was walking through Stranahan Park and stopped to light a cigaret when this little old man with white hair and a cane issued the challenge.

Then he introduced himself and told me he had won four straight games the day before.

I don't know how I did it, but I wiggled out of the invitation somehow, and suggested that it might be better if we just sat down and visited a few minutes.

* * *

Two Predictions, One Good

ED AGREED and started the conversation by asking if I believed in premonitions.

Then he told how he and his father were trimming a hedge at their home in Edwardsville, Ill., in 1903, when he predicted that a flying machine would be invented soon.

"Dad told me I was crazy, but within 30 days the Wright brothers had their plane in the air," Ed beamed. But that wasn't Ed's only premonition.

Once a friend of his decided to go to California. Ed felt it was a mistake, but said nothing. Just as the train was about to enter Salt Lake City, a chef went berserk and killed Ed's pal with a butcher knife.

A former undertaker and machinist, Ed retired 20 years ago and has been living on a meager pension. He's never had money to throw around, but will if everything goes well.

* * *

There's Oil in Illinois

ABOUT 40 YEARS ago Ed owned a farm near Bunkerhill, Ill., and one day he dug a 25-foot well which he immediately covered because the water was so oily his cows wouldn't drink it.

He later sold the farm, but retained oil and mineral rights, and a few months ago oil was discovered a half mile down the road.

"If things go well, I'll be sitting pretty," Ed smiled. And he figures he's got plenty of time to spend the pending fortune.

"I plan to live to be 100," he said confidently. "I've never been sick a day in my life. And when I was a young undertaker I used to embalm smallpox victims."

While never a soldier himself, Ed has been close to two wars.

His father fought for the North in the Civil War, and during World War II Ed worked in a defense plant near St. Louis.

"I didn't know it at the time, but I helped build the first atomic bomb," Ed said.

He's Looking for a Wife

ED FIGURES all men should keep busy and look to the future.

That's what he's doing.

But it's not shuffleboard that keeps him going back.

"I'm looking for a wife," he confided. "I've had three and they've died. Now I'm looking for another one."

Students Pass Class In Crime

BUFFALO, N. Y. —(UPI)— When the University of Buffalo decided to install toll gates on its four parking lots, it underestimated student "resourcefulness."

The gates were set up so that an incoming car needs only to pass over a treadle to enter, but on leaving a dime must be deposited to raise the wooden arm. At least that's the way it was intended.

At first, the students discovered that one car outside could roll back and forth over the treadle and let any number of cars out free. Later, according to UB's chief engineer James W. Sarra, the car was replaced by manpower—seven or eight burly collegians jumping up and down on the treadle.

And then there were the less sophisticated undergraduates who broke the wooden arms off so often (more than 200 times) that the university had to start turning them out in the carpenter's shop to save heavy replacement expenses.

The university has now ordered new "fool-proof" treadles.

WEST HOLLYWOOD

This Arthur Godfrey Arrived Minus Fanfare

By FRAN LASLIE
Herald Staff Writer

FRAN

ARTHUR GODFREY moved into West Hollywood nine months ago—without so much as a strum of the ukulele to signal his arrival. The lack of fanfare doesn't disturb blue-eyed Arthur though.

He's making a pitch for the limelight via a beauty contest. Currently he is among the top six candidates for king of the Hallandale Industrial and Agricultural Fair Feb. 23.

His application lists the Florida orange as his favorite food and he says he loves the bottle—if it is filled with milk.

Don't be silly—of course we're not talking about television's man of humility.

This Arthur Godfrey is just nine months old and the only scenes he has stolen to date are some animal pictures from an older brother's coloring book. He wasn't very humble about the act either.

But he is showing signs of becoming a regular ham, according to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Godfrey of 5600 SW 39th St.

Young Arthur sways to music from television programs, and picks at a toy uke, they say.

Arthur has no comments on this—or anything else — as yet.

His mother said her third son, named Arthur in a rash of enthusiasm for the TV star, still has no middle name.

"I'm still trying to reach the TV Godfrey in Miami to find out what his middle name is," said Mrs. Godfrey of West Hollywood.

Three Named In Mayor Race

OUT MIRAMAR WAY, political speculation is focused on who will seek the mayor's seat now that a special election has been set for April 7.

The three names most often heard thus far, are no surprise.

They are Charles Knapp, who resigned in the midst of a dispute over some of his municipal appointments; Buddy Arbuckel who refused to resign as building inspector; and W. P. Powers, once-defeated candidate for mayor.

Chamber Seeks Curb on Traffic

THREE DEATHS from automobile accidents in recent weeks have some civic leaders worried about the increasing traffic along State Rd. 7.

In an effort to curb the highway death toll, the Chamber of Commerce endorsed as its main project a plan to relieve congestion on the heavily traveled road.

"I believe we could adjust the traffic flow on State Rd. 7 (60th Ave.) by improving and extending the secondary routes such as 62nd Ave., said Bob Fegers, program of works chairman.

In addition, the chamber will work toward speedy installation of pedestrian crosswalks along the boulevard.

Deputy Suggests Roadblock Plan

AFTER OBSERVING the State Rd. 7 traffic congestion, a West Hollywood sheriff's deputy suggested that roadblocks be instigated here — at least on weekends.

He pointed out that there were 10 accidents during a 1½ hour period one Saturday afternoon.

Roadblocks, he believes, would crack down on the number of hotrodders who flaunt speed limits, tipsy drivers and motorists who do not have operator's permits.

Miramar Sets Curfew at Dark

IN MIRAMAR, Police Chief James O'Toole set an "after dark curfew" for youngsters. Moved by the death of a six-year-old boy, killed when he was hurled from his bike by an auto, the chief warned parents that all youngsters seen on the streets at night will be escorted home by a policeman.

Big Ships Welcome In Lisbon

LISBON —(UPI)— Lisbon harbor, home port of the tiny ships which helped to open up the sealanes of the world 500 years ago, is ready to play host to the 100,000-ton liner of the future.

It will be a tight squeeze coming in over the bar that separates the Tagus Estuary from the Atlantic rollers, and docking also presents a problem. But the men who run the harbor are confident they can accommodate the giants of future ocean travel.

In places, the estuary has a depth of 125 feet and the biggest ships are not likely to have a draught of more than 43 feet. But the bar is something else.

At high tide, it is covered by 46.5 feet of water, just enough to let the big liners in. Methods of improving facilities are to be studied.

It will also be necessary to provide deeper water at the quays. At present, the deepest water available at the dockside is 31 feet.

An Icy 'Hand'

KENT, Ohio —(UPI)— Ice is not necessarily an enemy of trees. With a dense, low-branched evergreen, according to experts of the Davey Tree Co. here, the icicles sometimes develop downward from branch to branch and finally to the ground, actually supporting the tree.

FOUNDED 1933 . . . 25 YEARS OF SERVICE

A Planning Dream Came True—Nearly

By PAT MANGAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Thirty-one years ago, Fort Lauderdale's first city planner advocated a system of waterfront parkways, more park areas and replacing Fort Lauderdale High School with a civic center.

Except for the construction of E. Las Olas Blvd., the vision of connecting river parkways never materialized. The city is still seeking recreation areas and may yet acquire the high school site as a civic center.

The planner, Richard Schemmerhorn Jr., New York City, prepared a plan that would have provided the city with a magnificent system of landscaped parkways along the canals.

"The opportunity for river parkways in Fort Lauderdale is particularly noteworthy and the planning of a complete river drive system would be of usual benefit to the entire city and form the basis for a magnificent parkway system," he said in his report.

The planner opposed waterfront real estate development. "It benefits only a few individuals," he said. "A river drive benefits the entire city."

Among the parkways he envisioned to connect river parkways are Federal Hwy. (then only a plan), Las Olas Blvd., a section of SE First Ave., SE 15th St., and others not easily identifiable because the names of the streets have been changed.

Schemmerhorn was retained to prepare a plan because of the city's great growth—from 180 residents in 1910 to 17,000 in 1927.

Another city plan is now in preparation. It's expected to take two years to complete.

Other of Schemmerhorn's plans, made when Sunrise Blvd. was the only paved street in the Progresso section, have become fact.

Broward Blvd., he said, would become the principal east-west street through town. The Florida East Coast Railway station should be moved out of the center of the city, he advised. (It was, two years ago.) Sunrise Blvd. should be extended to the beach, he added. (It was, in 1937.)

Schemmerhorn stressed street widening, but he said 100-foot streets are not practical. To much street to take care of, he said.

Many are that wide today, but Schemmerhorn apparently didn't anticipate what was going to happen to automobiles.

Cars, he said, need only five feet of space. A 60-foot street, he said, would permit a 12-foot sidewalk and four lines of vehicles.

Schemmerhorn wanted the city to have plenty of parks and to provide for tree planting on residential streets.

"The destruction of natural vegetation that has followed real estate developments has done much to detract from the very objects for which these developments were made," he said.

"The amount of park area allotted to the city by developers is pitifully small."

The planner also wanted the city to construct a civic center in Stranahan Park for municipal buildings, a school and library. City Manager William J. Veeder last year asked for a civic center in the same location.

Schemmerhorn foresaw a need for more parking area.

"The Floridian is well known for his lack of inclination to walk for even short distances," he said, "and therefore must have parking space near his business or shopping."

The early street names appearing in the plan were not as businesslike as Fort Lauderdale's present number system, but in some ways they were a good deal more interesting.

One could live on Charley St. (Eighth Ave.), or walk on Castlecliff Rd. (SW 35th St.), consider a house on Bourbon Ave. (SW 31st St.), or visit friends on Junebud St. (SW 37th St.).

COMEDIAN Henny Youngman will be on hand for the Police Benevolent Association's annual benefit show Feb. 27 and 28 in War Memorial Auditorium. Six other "name" performers also will be on stage.

A Quicker Way

Germans Building Roads in Factory

STUTTGART, Germany —(UPI) — The city of Stuttgart may have started a revolution in modern road-building — its new city roads are being constructed right in the factory.

The new method is faster than the old one by as much as four to five weeks, during which there is no need for traffic-paralyzing road blocks and diversions.

Otto Winternitz, head of the Stuttgart road construction department, is credited with developing the method. He believes major cities throughout the world may be following his example before long.

This is how it works: First, the old road is completely excavated. Then, a bed of gravel and bitumen is laid and leveled to protect the road from frost.

Meanwhile, concrete blocks eight inches thick and five yards square are being turned out in a factory. They are fitted over the ground road layer and covered with asphalt. Thus, the four or five weeks usually needed for letting concrete dry are eliminated.

$1,000 Earns Million Plus

NEW YORK —(UPI)— If you had invested $1,000 in General Motors common stock back in 1908, your holdings today would be worth more than $1 million, and you would have received a total of $643,000 in dividends, according to a GM spokesman.

You would have received only about 10 shares for your original investment, but your holdings now would total 22,897 shares as the result of repeated stock splits.

He'd Like to Drum Up Jazz-Symphony Link

By BEVERLY PAULSON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Krupa is no musician of the beatnik brand.

This daddy-o doesn't "dig." His music isn't "cool." He speaks instead of "emotional impacts," "musical alliances" and "commercialism" in his life.

He's a jazz drummer first; but he's a student of the tympani and philharmonic music. The union of the two is his dream.

"I'd like to be part of an alliance between philharmonic music and jazz," the ruggedly handsome drummer said, giving one of his rare smiles.

"I'd like to be in a jazz group in a symphony. If I had enough time, I'd try to see Leonard Bernstein about it. That would be my next concert series."

But take a shot in a symphony orchestra? Never. "That's simply a matter of routine; you have to learn to follow a lot of directors."

When Krupa told about his hope to see the freedom of jazz expression in a symphonic surrounding, his dark eyes lighted up. But most of the time he seems a bit bored with an entertainer's life.

On his upcoming trip to Europe, for instance, he said, "That's old stuff after a dozen trips. I suppose it was exciting the first time."

But isn't it exciting to be part of Europe's new enthusiasm for jazz? He shrugged and frowned.

Krupa, a Chicago boy, was just nine when he started playing the drums. By the time he was 13, he was a professional bandsman.

"I had a job in a music store—dusting furniture and that sort of thing. I was forever looking in catalogs and drums were the cheapest instrument, so I bought one," he said of his start.

Krupa is interested in young drummers. In fact, he has a school for rhythm students in New York. "It's more a hobby than a commercial venture. Some of the best drummers in New York teach in their spare time."

He tried to think of a tip —A single clue to success—for the boy who wants to be great. He wriggled in his chair in the Jolly Roger Hotel lobby, then gave up. "I can't answer that," he admitted.

Studying all types of music is important, he said. "Symphony might have an emotional impact.

"And a boy has to have more than talent. He has to have ambition. I know one really great young drummer who gave up because he didn't want to leave his family."

Traveling is the hardest part of an entertainer's life, the slender, graying musician said. But it's not a lonely life —"You always meet people you know."

With him in Fort Lauderdale, for instance, was Sal Mineo, who is portraying the drummer in the film story of his life.

No, Krupa's not excited that he has earned enough fame to have the movie made. "I'm beyond emotion. This is sordid commercialism," he said.

Dishwashers Obsolete

New Restaurant Needs No Waiters

CLEVELAND, Ohio —(UPI) — Pretty soon you may be able to enter a restaurant where there's no waitress to flirt with or waiter to yell at. In fact, you'll be darn lonely if you don't bring your own best gal or beau.

Designers for Industry, Inc., here have developed an all-electronic restaurant which hasn't a waiter, chef, cook or dishwasher in the place.

Gilbert Hunt, director of industrial design for the company, said diners will sit at a semi-circular table and order their meals simply by pushing a button. Anything from a cup of coffee to a five-course meal will appear out of the wall.

For single diners, the table, complete with food, dishes, silverware and all, will pop up with a push of the thumb.

"About the only person in the restaurant will be the cashier," said Hunt. "And the setup can be arranged so that customers can pay electronically by credit card."

At the other end of the push button, about 250 frozen precooked meals will be stored in the kitchen. When the customer orders, the meals are moved into radar range and within seconds are ready to serve piping hot.

An electronic brain will keep track of food supplies and only one attendant will be required to fill the empty racks to feed 32 diners at one time.

Dishwashers are eliminated in the electronic eatery because disposable plastic dishes go into the garbage and silverware is automatically sterilized and set up for the next diner.

Group of Parents Without Partners To Organize Unit

FORT LAUDERDALE — A group of parents who have lost their mates through death or divorce will meet at 8:30 tonight at Lauderdale Lanes, 1910 SW 40th Ave., to discuss the welfare of their children.

The group plans to form a county unit of an organization that started in New York —Parents Without Partners. Some 25 adults are expected. Newcomers are invited.

Philip Gamble, 695 Fairway Dr., one of the organizers, said that many Broward parents have been attending the meetings of the Miami chapter, which now has some 200 members.

The group aims at giving its children "the same prospects for adulthood as children who mature with their parents together." An exchange of mutual problems is encouraged.

Others active in the unit's formation are Mrs. Jeanne Lehning, of Fort Lauderdale, Mrs. Eleanor Tubbs of Dania and Mrs. Kitty Bucek, of Pompano Beach. Speakers will be invited to lecture at monthly meetings, Gamble said.

Robot Hands Can 'Feel'

CHICAGO —(UPI)— The Argonne National Laboratory has announced development of a series of "master-slave" manipulators, mechanical hands that can "feel."

The devices, which were produced by the laboratory's Remote Control Engineering Division, are designed to permit work with highly radioactive materials behind heavy shielding.

Argonne said the manipulators are of two basic types, mechanically controlled and electronically controlled.

Needy States Get Surplus

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The Federal government has been helping individual states by transferring to them surplus property for educational, public health, and civil defense projects.

Under the provisions of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, "property no longer needed by the Federal government" is distributed by regional offices of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to needy states.

Property transferred includes hospital building sites and buildings suitable for dormitories, as well as office, school, and hospital furniture.

Degree at 18 Under Plan

FORT LAUDERDALE — One of the nation's leading young college presidents, an advocate of a 12-month school year, says his plan would enable youngsters to graduate from universities at the age of 18.

Dr. Gus Turbeville, president of Northland College in Ashland, Wis., also believes a stepped-up educational plan would prepare young people to marry earlier in life — when they're 18 or 19 years old.

Dr. Turbeville said a recent news story erred in quoting him as saying he favored marriage for 15 and 16-year-old youths, and that a 12-month school year would enable students to graduate from college when they're 21.

The educator was interviewed here last month while being recognized as one of the nation's 10 outstanding young men.

Adoption: Heartbreak and Joy

By MARY RUNYAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — When Broward County, through the children's home society, opened its arms to the pitifully confused and lonely unwed mother last November, it had no idea just what was in store.

Today this United Fund agency has 14 financially dependent and helpless women in its care, only one of whom has delivered her child.

The child is adoptable, pending the mother's decision. But, this may take anywhere from two days to three months. And still the mother is not compelled to give up her child for adoption.

"Our prime concern is the unwed girl, not the number of adoptions we can fulfill," said Miss Mary Graves, the agency's social worker.

Adoption provisions is the second concern of the organization, the first of its kind in the immediate vicinity.

"We feel, while we are aiding childless couples, we still must concentrate our efforts on the mothers of the children, whom we accept from all over the U. S.," said Miss Graves.

"Some people may be concerned" with our caring for out-of-towners. What they don't realize is that we are a means to an end to these tragic women and by our helping them we are able to take these children born out wedlock into our custody for adoption to Broward Countians," she stressed.

And, to show the need for such an agency in this county, Miss Graves can pull out a file of 35 applications for adoption filed just in the last two months.

In addition to footing the medical bills for the mothers-to-be, in some cases board, the Children's Home Society also takes complete care of the child after it is born until adoption.

"Prior to adoption, the baby is placed in a licensed foster home, where the foster parents are given agency money for its care as to medicines, diaper service and the like," explained Miss Graves.

"This money comes from the agency's total budget which is $16,800 with the United Fund contributing $12,000. The remainder, we hope, will come from gifts to the association and from our adoption fees which are a flat $200.

"You see we are strictly a nonprofit organization," said Miss Graves.

The women she deals with Lodge 209, F.&A.M., will concome from the North and the South but they all have something in common. They're scared, guilty and usually almost broke with no one to turn to.

Several of Miss Graves' cases even deal with married women who either have another man's child or who have so many children they can't afford any more.

The adoption procedure when going through an agency is strictly a court transaction.

"Once the mother has considered all phases of being able to keep her child and still decides to turn it over for adoption, the agency waits until such a time that they are sure she no longer is under acute emotional stress.

"If she wants to see her child, she may," explains Miss Graves, adding that most do not want this.

"Only after the mother has signed the final decree in front of a judge does she relinquish her child, and this is where the agency has full custody.

"She never can claim her child after that," Miss Graves explained.

Miss Graves said that the agency hopes to bring up the standards of adoption in Broward County and to make it a centralized thing, thus doing away with "gray" and "black" marketing of babies.

Browardites Join Yacht Race--and Parties--in Nassau

By GRIFF PRESTON
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE—Parties starting Monday in Nassau for yachtsmen of the Southern Ocean Racing Circuit's Miami-Nassau sailing race classic will include some familiar faces of local blue-water sailors.

Dick Richardson, whose yawl Good Hope was an entry, Hugh Schaddelee, owner of the Hilaria, Ken Batcheller in the race with his Pirouette, and Fred Temple who skippered the Shelldrake will be among the guests at Government House at Sir Raynor Arthur's cocktail party today.

Friday will be the big, big Symonette party at their famed "Red Roofs" (an annual red letter date among the international yachting set) when some 500 of the sailing fraternity, spiced with a generous sprinkling of celebrities, will meet for cocktails and the fabulous Symonette barbecue of Bahamian goodies.

Saturday will be the Nassau Yacht Club party, cocktails and dinner, and the awarding of the Governor's Cup by Sir Raynor Arthur, governor of the Bahamas.

Flying over today for all this Nassauvian merrymaking will be Mrs. Dick Richardson with Mrs. Bill Gould and Mrs. Frank Duffy, to join their husbands who sailed the Good Hope. For the Richardsons, Saturday will be a double date on parties — before the Governor's Cup dinner they'll be honored guests at the lush new Nassau Beach Hotel opening party. This tender trap for tourists on Emerald Beach, is a sort of Fort Lauderdale "baby"—designed by Architect Charles McKirahan (first Bahamian hotel with central heating, incidentally) —it was built by Dick Richardson.

Hello and Goodby Party Today

PARTY TODAY at the Lauderdale Yacht Club will be the luncheon given by Mrs. W. M. Cornelius for her house guest, Mrs. N. C. Skinner of Kansas City, Mo. She sails aboard the Constitution next month to visit Spain, the Mediterranean and the British Isles.

All proceeds of the Miami show are for the benefit of the Cancer Institute.

They Enjoyed Dunking McArthur Coaches

TEENS TALKING

By MARY RUNYAN
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — There were thrills, spills and chills says Sue Pansa of Mc-Arthur High but most fun was the coaches' dip at the school's annual carnival, sponsored by the Quarterback Club.

This little stunt was part of a bull's-eye game in which the football players were most proficient. Each time one hit the bulls'-eye, a coach slipped down into a tub of ice cold water.

Future Teachers of America have elected Camille Lizzi as their president. Other officers are Robert Krause, vice president; Dick Burkhardt, secretary; Michell Mokos, treasurer, and Phil Scott, librarian.

McArthur's chorus will participate in Broward County's second annual Chorus Festival at 8 p.m. Feb. 16 in the Hollywood bandshell. They will be under the direction of Dr. Wiley Housewright, head of the music department of Florida State University.

MEET CAROLE MIGDEN. She's a new correspondent from Stranahan. A sophomore, Carol is already editing the sports page of the school newspaper, the Stranahan Echo, is secretary of the Future Homemakers of America, a member of the Pep Club, Latin Club and is helping to organize a press club for the school.

Carole Migden
. . . new correspondent

Carole is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Migden, 350 W. Dayton Circle.

The senior's first big dance of the year, as reported by Kathy Magda, was Winter Rhapsody Saturday night on Stranahan's patio.

The theme was borrowed from the well-known winter song, making decorations a bit unusual for southern climes. Sleighbells, snowmen and other similar signs of the season gave lively punch to the affair for which the Drifters of Pompano High played dance music.

Tonight the curtain goes up at 8 o'clock for the first of two performances of the junior class play, "The Guest Cottage."

Leading roles are being handled by Virginia Boyd and Bill Greene with Marcia Mallinger as student director.

Senior work day will find many of the high and mighties busy with the elbow grease Tuesday when the crew will be found in all phases of the business world.

Proceeds from this day will be used for four scholarships.

THE SENIORS at South Broward are really getting snooty. Now they have built a special patio just for themselves.

Funds came from their treasury, which now they're all busy trying to replenish.

The group also plans to replace the bulldog, the SBHS mascot, which was stolen over a month ago.

Leslie Caron Going 'Home'

HOLLYWOOD — (UPI) — Leslie Caron tells me that after she completes "The Man Who Understood Women" at 20th, she'll head back to her native France for a picture—the first she has made in her own country for eight years!

"I've been promised Brigitte Bardot's ex-husband, Roger Vadim, as my director," the vivacious Parisienne said. "So far there is no title on the story. But I'll enjoy working at home again."

Main reason Leslie hasn't been home is that she's too busy making American hits like "Gigi." Her own honors she takes in stride. But she really boasts about her brilliant husband Peter Hall.

"Peter has been named director of the famed Stratford on Avon Theatre," she said proudly, "and he is only 27!"

★ ★ ★

WOULDN'T Nat King Cole be perfect in "Emperor Jones?" Well, that's what he is going to do with Al Zugsmith for the independent company they have organized.

"We are in negotiation with Ed Muhl," Al told me. "Universal-International owns the rights to the famous Eugene O'Neill play. If U-I will sell, Nat and I will make it on our own. If they won't, we'll forget the independent company and make it for them."

This is a powerful play. I remember seeing it with Rex Ingram in New York years ago. Nat played in "Night of the Quarter Moon" for Zugsmith.

LIBERACE'S famed black-and-white house with it's piano-shaped swimming pool has been sold to millionaire Actor Spencer Carlisle (his family are shoe manufacturers and have millions). The new owner laughs and admits, "I don't know yet what I'm going to do with that darned piano-shaped pool."

Spencer's background is unusual to say the least. He's always been crazy to be an actor but to please his family he stayed in the shoe business until he was 40 years old!

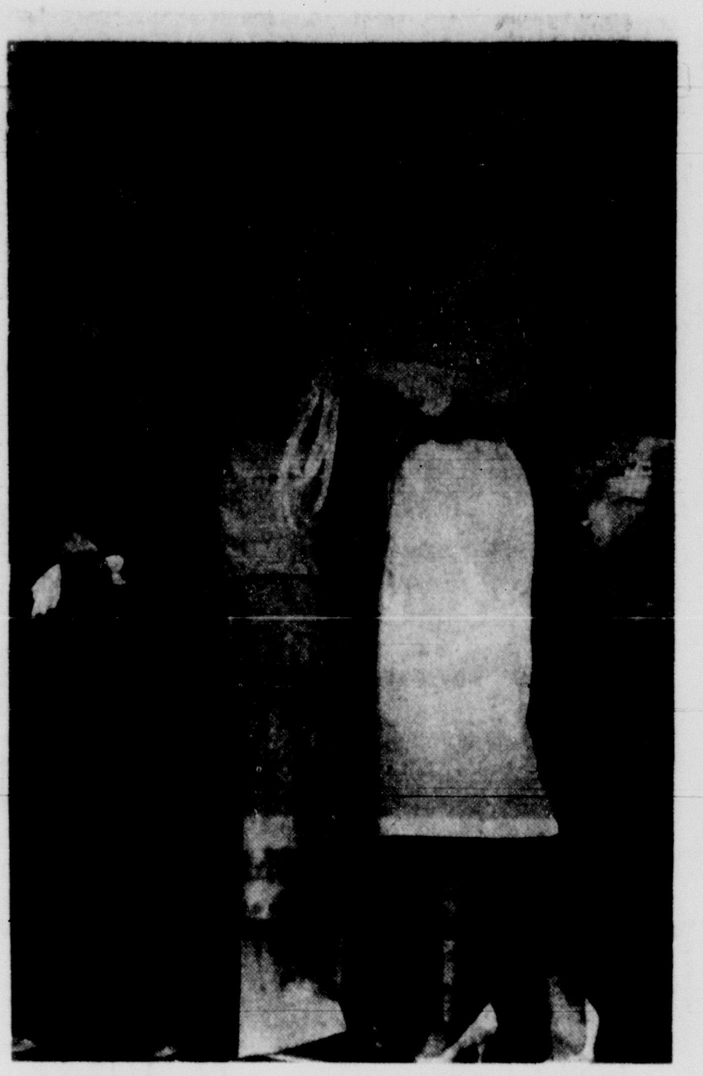
Now he's doing what he always wanted to do. In four months in Hollywood he's appeared in "Stopover," several TV films, and is now completing "The Young and the Damned."

★ ★ ★

I DISLIKE criticizing Lauren Bacall, whom I've known long before she ever married Humphrey Bogart, but I think she's acting very foolishly in criticizing her own country, the U.S., to the British press. Betty, as she is called by her pals, is still carrying a torch two miles long for Frank Sinatra, and if she battled with him and separated from him, she cannot blame her own country for her squabbles.

If she is quoted correctly she said she'd exchange Hollywood, "where flesh is cheap and people forget too quickly, for England, where people have something to say and are willing to listen to what I think."

I only hope Miss Bacall doesn't live to regret the most foolish statement I've ever heard any actress say, who had made her fame and fortune in our country.



A CORPORAL is about to embrace a lieutenant following their marriage in "The Perfect Furlough," now at the Gateway in Fort Lauderdale. The corporal is Tony Curtis, who is outranked by Janet Leigh.

Not Tired of Travel

Holden: He Chases Roles

NEW YORK —(AP)— Bill Holden's movie chase has brought him home again.

For the first time in almost three years far-travelling Holden is on domestic location, appearing in "The Horse Soldiers." The five-million-dollar opus concerning an incident in the War Between the States is being made around Natchitoches, La., and Natchez, Miss.

Just before setting off for action, Holden paused here long enough to set the record straight concerning recent, far-flung engagements.

"I've been accused of all sorts of things, from making runaway productions to preferring life in Hong Kong to the U. S. A.," Bill shrugs.

"Actually, all my traveling has been caused by just one thing — the pursuit of good properties.

"Hollywood for years has kept saying 'Why can't American actors show the same versatility as the English?' Then when I do try it, they say 'You're crazy!'"

Sharing top billing with Holden in the new film is another prime box office lure, John Wayne. The director is John Ford, and "The Horse Soldiers" is Holden's first teamup with either one.

The situation gives Bill opportunity to take off on another of his favorite ideas as a dedicated actor. The synopsis of the movie indicates Wayne may have the meatier part. Holden doesn't care.

"Stories with two good men's parts are difficult to find," he says, "yet they are one of the best of all types for a film. But I've never been interested in the length of a role.

"You're not playing second fiddle as long as you're giving the best of your talent.

"What I look for is a property that is stimulating and exciting for an audience and has something they can identify themselves with.

"That's the real secret of the fantasy — being able to look and say 'There but for the grace of God go I.'"

Sometimes, Holden finds, his own involvement in a film reaches that intense level—and he'd like it to occur even more frequently.

"The Horse Soldiers" is an account of a raid by Union cavalry 600 miles southward to facilitate Gen. U. S. Grant's siege of Vicksburg. The historical event is being cinematically elaborated to enable dramatic conflict between Wayne, military commander of the foray, and Holden, a medico caught up in the struggle.

What he does next, Holden isn't sure yet, for he's in the midst of tangled lawsuit over his Paramount contract ("The Horse Soldiers" is an independent film for which he had to get special court permission.)

Eagle-Eyed Woodcarver To Show Birds at Show

By DICK MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Levis Benoit's ship stern eagles will look out over nautical scenes for the first and last time this weekend.

Woodcarver Benoit will display his fierce-looking wooden birds at the Boat and Sport Show, opening today for a four-day run at War Memorial Auditorium.

His two brightly-painted replicas of famed stern decorations and several pilot house eagles won't go to sea.

"They won't go any farther than the den of a house I will build here," Benoit explained. "I carved them for my collection of American eagles."

Levis doesn't have or want a boat, for he gets seasick.

But he's made a study of sea lore involving craft which displayed American eagles as stern pieces or figureheads.

One stern decoration to be shown at the auditorium duplicates the stern eagle of a brig wrecked in 1840 off Swan Island, Maine. The other is from an original in a Nantucket, Mass., marine museum.

"Boatmen have tried to buy them," he said, "but I intend keeping all I have and those I'm working on now. I want them for that den."

The hobbyist admits that he is "fascinated" by the American eagle — the only kind he carves.

"Our eagle is better proportioned than the Russian, Prussian or Polish eagles," it was explained. "It appears to be more graceful.

"I try to make him appear lifelike, and when I see a picture of him that portrays his pride and grace I get my scissors. My picture collection fills a book."

Why does a landlubber prefer to make ship stern eagles?

"Probably because an American eagle on the stern of a ship becomes an emblem almost as distinctive as our flag. To sailors, he represents good luck—some crews have refused to sail because a pilot house eagle was missing."

So far, Benoit hasn't attempted eagle figureheads, but he allows the "Lancaster eagle," carved by John Haley Bellamy, is a beautiful bird.

One of these days Levis may get a particularly large piece of sugar pine wood and attempt a figurehead like it as the prime "conversation piece" for his den.

Bowers Out of Hospital

Grid Hopes Hinge On Tank's Knee

By TOM VINCIGUERRA
Herald Staff Writer

WEST HOLLYWOOD — Football fortunes of the McArthur High School team next fall depend heavily on the left knee of the school's star athlete, Eugene (Tank) Bowers.

The powerful Seminole Indian right halfback was released from Memorial Hospital Saturday after an operation on the knee to remove a torn cartilage.

"It'll hurt us if he can't play," said Head Football Coach Floyd Huggins.

Ahead for Bowers, 17-year-old junior, is a long series of leg exercises with a weighted shoe to get the knee muscle strong enough to do the work of the missing cartilage, Huggins said.

Bowers, a three-letter man at McArthur, scored 18 touchdowns in the 1957 season and that year was voted the school's most oustanding athlete.

In six of the 10 football games he played last season, the husky Indian youth ran over the opposition for five TDs, set up a sixth on clutch passes, and kicked three extra points and a field goal.

The troubled knee kept him out of most of the final three games of the season, but he was in on one play in the wind-up with Norland High School and pitched a 20-yard six-pointer.

Huggins is confident Bowers will be able to play next season.

"About 50 per cent of the pro football players have had cartilage troubles. If complications don't develop Bowers will play," said his coach.

Al Ford Favored In 30-Lap Feature

HOLLYWOOD — Newlywed Al Ford, who last week celebrated his marriage by setting a new track record, is the driver to watch in a 30-lap feature Saturday night at the Hollywood Speedway.

An eight-race program of sportsman-modified racing will begin at 8:30.

Ford, driving a modified Ford, racked up a 8:06.01 standard for the 7½-mile route to better by three seconds a Red Farmer mark set in 1956.

Bobby Johns will return to the local speedway in an attempt to regain the lead in track point standings.

A 15-lap jalopy race will round out the card.

Pompano Finmen To Meet Gables

POMPANO BEACH—Junior teams of the Pompano Beach and Coral Gables swimming associations will compete in a dual meet Saturday at 9 a.m. in Recreation Park pool.

Big Boat Show To Open Today

FORT LAUDERDALE — Sixth annual Fort Lauderdale Boat and Sport Show, expected to attract 20,000 visitors during a four-day stand, opens today.

The War Memorial Auditorium doors will open at 2 p.m., following a motorcade of boats and belles. The "motorized boat parade" will begin at 10 a.m. from the E. Sunrise Blvd. side of Fort Lauderdale High School.

Miss Dreamboat finalists and Fort Lauderdale High majorettes and bandsmen are to be featured in the parade.

It will proceed to the beach over E. Sunrise Blvd., thence south to the Brook Memorial Causeway, west to Andrews Ave. and north on Andrews to the FEC railway crossing before heading south again on NE Third Ave. back to the starting point.

About 15 boats will be shown.

The Boat and Sports Show, sponsored by Downtown Kiwanians to benefit their aid program for worthy youths, will continue through Sunday. The 34 exhibits will be manned daily from 2 to 5:30 and 7 to 10 p.m., and on Sunday from 1 to 5:30 and 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Exhibit space has been sold out for months, and some exhibitors will set up their displays outside the auditorium.

Safety exhibits include those of the Fort Lauderdale Power Squadron, Flotilla II of the Coast Guard Auxiliary, and the Broward County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

The Harbor Beach Tackle and Marine Store display will include a diving tank to illustrate the use of skin and scuba diving gear.

Florida's half-billion dollar a year stake in pleasure boating is accented by the extent of participation by boat manufacturers and dealers.

Miss Dreamboat will be selected tonight from six finalists in a competition beginning at 8. A sports and outdoor wear style show is set for 8 p.m. Saturday.

As a publicity promotion, 24 plastic bottles containing pairs of show tickets are cast adrift in local waterways. The bottles also contain safe boating regulations published by the Power Squadron.

Good Old Days? Not All of 'Em

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — (UPI) — The "good old days" were not so good according to Thomas M. Storke, 82-year-old editor and publisher of the Santa Barbara News-Press, oldest daily newspaper in Southern California.

Telling of conditions 60 years ago, Storke writes in his autobiography:

"I have seen men sell their vote for a dollar, not once but many times. I have known many instances where corporations financed the political campaigns of members of the city council and members of the county board of supervisors, thus placing public officials under personal obligation to them. This was, in fact, the accepted way of life in Santa Barbara in the '90s . . .

"The prevailing daily wage was a dollar. Most of the voters were of the common labor class. Many of them—a majority, in fact—were illiterate. They could not read a ballot, or the names to be voted upon."

Storke said, however, that "vote selling was not the common practice of a great majority of our literate citizens. The bribery method of voting usually occurred in one or two wards at most.

"The evil thing, however, was that frequently one of these wards held the balance of power in city government. Thus the purchase of a relatively small number of votes in a key ward could result in control of city hall by selfish interests."

Storke, born in 1876, became a newspaper publisher at 24. He borrowed $2,000 to buy the Santa Barbara Independent. Fifty-eight years later his prosperous News-Press is regarded as one of the finest newspapers in the state.

His book, "California Editor," published by Westernlore Press, covers most of the period that California has been a state.

Efficiency Chopped

CHICAGO — (UPI) — The American Dental Association recently checked 2,032 toothbrushes in 1,000 American homes and found that only 700 of them were capable of brushing effectively.

Wuthering Height a Problem

POMPANO BEACH — The city is thinking of hiring a firm to periodically inspect a 150-foot-high water tower because no city employes will dare do the job.

Maintenance work on the tank has disclosed that some steel parts have deteriorated badly, and should be inspected more frequently.

Commissioner Robert L. Kester suggested that "we can find plenty of teenagers who would be willing to climb up there."

Vice Mayor Alice Lindner commented that "we usually have trouble keeping them off the tank."

But City Manager James Hughes suggested consideration of a regular maintenance contract because it is doubtful the teenagers would know what to look for on an "inspection" climb.

Seymour Kemach Swam to Tug

. . . 'now I know I'll live to be 60'

Former Gables Resident Tells Ordeal

He Gave Up But 'God Was Good'

Seymour Kemach, 36, a Brooklyn salesman and former resident of Coral Gables, was a passegner aboard the ill-fated American Airlines Electra that crashed in New York Tuesday night.

Kemach managed the Three Sisters Store in Hollywood and later the Three Sisters shop on Miracle Mile between 1946 and 1951.

He was sitting in the plane's lounge joking with the stewardesses when the plane slammed into the East River. This is the story he told

By SEYMOUR KEMACH

As Told to United Press International

God was good to me. It's the only way I could figure it out.

I wasn't sitting in my seat. I was sitting in the plane's lounge with another guy and two stewardesses. We were talking and joking. I was strapped into my seat.

Then we went down and I thought I was going to die.

How did I get out of the plane? I don't know, but I helped pull out two hostesses and a little boy.

That water was cold. I thought I'd never see my wife again. You don't know. I came close to giving up.

I swam in the water to a tugboat. I swear to God I gave up twice. You just don't know how lucky I was. Now I know I'll live to be 60.

I'm in good shape, only my ankle. But oh my back, my leg, my head. And I'm still freezing. That water—it was cold!

NEW YORK—(AP)—Little Robert Sullivan, 8, was sitting in the seat of the big airliner next to his mommy. Nearby were his father and two sisters.

They had been on a happy excursion to visit relatives in Chicago, as they often did, and were almost back home again.

Then came the nightmare. From a hospital bed later, little Robert told about it in halting phrases as he emerged from the shock of a terrible series of events.

"I was sitting in the seat next to mommy," he said.

"I don't know what happened but all of a sudden I began to slide and we went under the seat.

"Then I was on something in the water.

"Mommy was holding me.

"Then in the water we couldn't stay up.

"I tried to hold my breath. I was cold. My arms felt frozen."

Little Robert could speak no further. But somehow he knew of the tragedy that had befallen him.

Robert and his mother were rescued from the icy waters and rushed to the hospital. His mother died in the hospital.

His father, Joseph, and sisters, Patricia, 13, and Joan, 5, were listed among those missing as searchers continued to scour the waters of the East River for bodies.

Reds Back Down, Let Trucks Pass

HELMSTEDT, Germany — (UPI) — The Russians backed down during cold-war maneuvering Wednesday night and released an American truck convoy held within a stone's throw of the West German frontier since Monday.

The five GIs manning the four trucks quickly gunned the vehicles past the border checkpoints into the West to end 56 cold hours of detention in East Germany.

They were not allowed to talk to waiting newsmen.

Soviet border guards freed the trucks finally after a meeting between State Department official Findlay Burns and Col. H. F. Markushin, of the Russian army. Burns said the Soviets had dropped their original demand to inspect the trucks' cargoes, but he did not elaborate.

Russian troopers carrying machineguns stopped the trucks Monday afternoon within 50 yards of the U. S. Army's border station here. The troopers insisted the open vehicles had to be searched.

Cpl. Richard C. Masiero, of West Stockbridge, Mass., who was in charge of the convoy during a 110-mile trip through East Germany from West Berlin to the frontier, replied that the trucks contained only jeeps. He refused to allow a search.

The border incident triggered a flurry of cold-war maneuvering highlighted Wednesday by Burns' frontier conference and a State Department protest to Moscow which demanded the release of the trucks and men.

American officials regarded the Russian action as an attempt to embarrass the West by a token cut-off of the land route to West Berlin within shouting distance of the West's heavily - guarded frontier.

Those in the trucks besides Masiero were Drivers Pfc. Benjamin G. Peoples, 20, of Theodore, Ala.; Specialist Robert E. Love, 20, of Plain City, Ohio; Specialist Elwood F. Johnson, 29, of Brooklyn and Specialist James E. Cook, 22, of Hardeeville, S.C.

Kennan Sees Reds Playing Close to War

WASHINGTON — (AP) — George F. Kennan, former ambassador to Moscow, voiced belief Wednesday Soviet leaders are prepared to play close to the edge of war to gain their objectives in Berlin.

"I do not think the Soviet leaders want war over Berlin," he told the Senate foreign relations disarmament subcommittee.

But, he said, in current efforts to force Western troop withdrawals and a free Berlin, Soviet leaders are prepared, for reasons not fully apparent, "to play particularly close to the edge.

KENNAN

"They have committed themselves extensively," Kennan continued, "and it would not be wise for the Western governments to take the matter too lightly."

Kennan also told the committee:

"I do not believe the Soviet leaders want another war, or would be likely to inaugurate one by surprise attack just because they felt they had a temporary advantage in long-range striking power."

Kennan called for a package proposal of concessions to Russia in a major Western effort to get the Red Army out of Central Europe.

"But I don't recommend that we do anything unilaterally," he said.

He told the committee he believes the Kremlin's chief concern in Central Europe is to separate German armed power from that of America.

He said a Germany that was neutralized, but allowed to maintain sufficient armed forces for its own defense, could have a democratically elected government safe against Communist political threat.

U.S., Britain Agr On Europe Parley

LONDON—(UPI)—The U. S. and Britain agreed in principle here Wednesday night to meet with Russia in a four-power conference of foreign ministers this spring on Berlin, the over-all German issue and European security, diplomatic sources reported.

The sources said the Anglo-American accord emerged in the first round of talks here between U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd.

But the U.S. and Britain were determined to resist any Soviet attempt to dictate the agenda of such a conference or limit it to the Berlin crisis, the diplomatic sources said.

McElroy Warns Red China

Says U.S. Will Use Atom Arms

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A plain warning to the Chinese Communists that the U.S. would use atomic weapons in any future Korea-style war was sounded Wednesday by Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy.

McElroy said it would be "against our national interest if any inference were given the Chinese Communists that we would fight the Chinese Communists without general war weapons."

The House Armed Services Committee, before which McElroy was testifying, got into the subject by pressing the secretary for assurances that the U.S. is remaining prepared to fight limited, as well as general, wars.

McElroy said conventional forces suitable for limited conflicts are being maintained, but he went on to say that a conflict on the scale of the Korean one would not be considered today as a limited war.

Reminded that U.S. forces in Korea operated under orders not to use nuclear weapons, McElroy said:

"It was limited as to weapons, but I think there is some doubt as to whether it would be so limited today."

McElroy said earlier that by the end of the year the gap between the U.S. and Russia in intercontinental missiles would be only one or two weapons. He emphasized he was talking about missiles that could hit their targets.

The committee pressed him for an estimate of what Russia could do with its stock of shorter-range missiles.

McElroy replied such missiles would enable the Soviets "to bring quite a few of the advanced European NATO bases under missile attack."

He said this would be true especially if the Russians were willing to risk establishing missile bases in such satellites as East Germany, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. But, he said, U.S. officials are "inclined to doubt that they would do so."

Under questioning, McElroy conceded the possibility the Soviets might over the next few years produce enough intercontinental missiles to put them ahead of the U.S.

"If the Russians use their capability to produce, they will have more ICBM weapons on launching pads than we do," McElroy said. He said, however, the U.S. does not know whether the Soviets will use their full production capacity.

WEST PALM BEACH—The city Wednesday issued an ultimatum to a Fort Lauderdale construction firm on repairing city streets torn up in a recent sewer program.

In a letter to Intercounty Construction Corp., City Manager James J. Mott said the firm was responsible for paving repairs under its sanitary sewer contract with the city.

The firm had been notified last Nov. 7 and again Jan. 12 to complete the repairs. No action was taken by the company.

In his latest letter, Mott warned the company to have its crews on the job in a few days. If not, the city will do the work and bill the Intercounty Construction Corp., Mott said.

The streets involved have rough surfaces and settlements.

Affected are S. Olive St. from Palmetto and Murray; Churchill Rd. west of Parker Ave.; Australian Ave.; Churchill Circle and Churchill Ct.

CAB Says Strip Had No Lights; Only 8 Survive

NEW YORK — (UPI) — An American Airlines prop-jet Electra which plunged into the East River killing 65 persons was trying to land on a runway lacking adequate instrument devices and without runway approach lights, it was revealed Wednesday night.

The new two-million-dollar Lockheed airliner, equipped with every safety factor, crashed shortly before Monday midnight in fog and drizzle less than 30 seconds short of a LaGuardia runway on a nonstop flight from Chicago.

There were 73 aboard. Nine survivors were fished from the icy water with boathooks by a tugboat crew. One of the survivors, a woman, died later.

Joseph Fluet, chief regional investigator for the Civil Aeronautics Board, revealed that the runway had instrument equipment advising the pilot on his direction but not whether he was coming in too high or low over the water for a landing.

Fluet said the Electra was being "tracked on radar" and all the airport-to-air facilities of LaGuardia were working effectively.

"The aircraft was being tracked on the radarscope, and the plane was being vectored, that is being brought into position for its final approach, in a normal instrument landing system procedure," Fluet said.

Fluet declined to say why Runway 22 did not have the glide slope feature. He said that was not within his province. It was understood LaGuardia had been planning to install the device on the runway very shortly.

Capt. Albert H. Dewitt, of Decatur, Mich., the 59-year-old pilot with 30 years experience and one of the first to qualify on jet-prop planes, was killed. American had inagurated the Electra service only 12 days ago.

Investigators of the new Federal Aviation Agency revealed that the runway toward which Dewitt was headed was not equipped with instruments to inform the pilot whether his glide path approach was too high or too low.

There was a ceiling of 400 feet and visibility of two miles as the Electra approached Runway 22, known as the "back course." It had an instrument landing system which automatically radios the plane if it is coming in the proper direction.

But, investigators said, that runway does not have the second beam advising the plane of its altitude and distance from the runway. LaGuardia is equipped with radar. It was not known whether Dewitt asked the control tower to advise whether his approach was all right on the radar scopes.

A DC3 had landed on the same runway just a few minutes before. The Electra made its last radio contact at 11:54 p.m. when it received landing permission. It crashed at 11:57 p.m. less than a mile from the field, traveling at 135 miles an hour.

Lack of automatic guidance on his glide path descent plus the chance of human failure of visual depth perception in coming down over water were possible explanation of the disaster. The CAB made it clear,

Bob Hope Can't Be Here But Big Show Goes on

A blood clot behind his left eye Wednesday knocked Bob Hope out of a trip to Miami to be master of ceremonies tonight at the Variety Club's annual "Show of Shows."

"This is the first time in 25 years that I have had to renege on a promise to do a benefit," the veteran funnyman told officials here in a telephone call from Hollywood.

HOPE

He said his doctors told him that the pressure from the high altitude plane trip to Miami might cost him the sight in his left eye. He was putting compresses on the eye Wednesday.

But even without Hope — who predicted the show will still draw a "packed house"— Jack Benny and dozens of big-name film, stage and television stars are here for the program. See story on Page 5C.

GOP Hits 'Budget Busters'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Senate Wednesday turned down a Republican substitute aimed at cutting a $2,925,000,000 Democratic housing bill back to levels favored by President Eisenhower.

Before it adjourned overnight, however, the Senate agreed by voice vote to cut in half a 300-million-dollar provision for direct home loans to veterans. Democratic backers of the bill agreed to the change, which had the effect of cutting the total authorization to $2,775,000,000.

The senate also beat down, 50-37, a Republican move to knock out of the bill provision for 51,000 low-rent, public housing units.

Only a little earlier, the House voted 310-89 for a 300-million-dollar GI home loan bill over protests from Republicans that "budget busters are on the move."

Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana led the House protest, trying to help Eisenhower in his fight against any move that might upset the 77-billion-dollar budget he has submitted.

The substitute the Senate turned down was offered by Sen. Homer Capehart (R., Ind.), who posed the question: "Do we or do we not wish a balanced budget?"

The Senate rejected Capehart's proposal 58-32.

Capehart estimated the spending in the Democratic bill would exceed President Eisenhower's budget estimates by 240 million dollars in the year beginning next July 1.

The Democratic bill compares with $1,800,000,000 in Capehart's substitute, which was revised slightly upward when the Indiana Republican offered it Wednesday.

The big issue, however, centered around proposed spending in the fiscal year starting next July 1. All the programs extend over several years.

Eisenhower said at his news conference Wednesday, in comment on the Democratic bill: "This means that right off in the very first bill the budget is to be unbalanced."

The house bill would raise interest rates on home loans guranteed by the Veterans Administration from 4¾ per cent to 5¼ per cent. The idea is to encourage the granting of these loans by private institutions.

Ike's Parting Shot At Demo Spenders: 'What of Taxes?'

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower threw the gage of battle to Congress Wednesday, before flying to Georgia to cope with the quail.

Eisenhower took the unusual step of offering hostile comment on legislation not yet presented to him for his signature by the "spenders" of the Democratic 86th Congress.

The President's attitude made it clear that he intends to slug it out with the Democrats as the defender of an already shrunken dollar.

Eisenhower's vigorous and unsolicited criticism of two pending congressional proposals, offered at his press conference, was almost like a promotion ad for the television appearances the President plans to make this winter in his fight to hold the line against federal spending and inflation.

The President hoped a week ago that somebody at his press conference would ask his views about the airport construction bill, a 575-million-dollar tid-bit now in preparation by the Democratic majority.

But nobody raised the question last week and Eisenhower didn't wait Wednesday. He opened his seance with the reporters with a blast not only at the airport construction bill, but at the housing bill now going through the legislative machinery.

"If we are going to ask for these new expenditures," he said, "why doesn't each one of these bills include a measure for increasing taxes?

"That would be the straightforward, honest way to see whether the U.S. really wants this kind of thing." The President declined to say whether he would use his veto power in this fight with the "spenders," but there is no doubt that he intends to veto at least the airport construction bill as it is now shaping up.

The housing bill now before Congress contemplates spending $1,300,000,000 more than the President has recommended.

The airport construction bill, which the President regards as classic of pork-barrel legislation, would spend $375,000,000 more than the White House, the Budget Bureau, and the Federal Aviation Agency regard as prudent.

And Eisenhower made it very clear that he thinks that members of Congress are fakers when they come up with big spending measures and make no provision for taxes to meet the costs.

"I don't believe we should have higher taxes, and I do not believe the U.S. wants higher taxes," the President said.

NE Pilot Recalls '57 Crash

Two years and three days ago a Northeast Airlines plane crashed into New York's East River, killing 20 persons.

The pilot was a Miami man, Capt. Alva R. Marsh, 6020 SW 133rd St. He escaped unhurt. Months later the Civil Aeronautics Board ruled he was to blame.

Wednesday, Marsh remembered.

"It's a terrible thing," said Marsh. "It is horrible. I know.

"When you have been so close to it, you know. I'm sorry. I just don't want to talk about it. I don't want to comment on it."

That was his second crash in the same place. In January, 1952, he was at the controls of a twin-engine Convair which went down in the East River. All aboard survived.

Marsh, 50, now working in Northeast's operations office in New York City, was reached by telephone. He said he learned about the crash Wednesday morning.

"I wasn't working Tuesday night," he said.

Marsh's family still lives here. He considers Miami his home. He flew as a military and commercial pilot 26 years.

The CAB ruled March 11, 1958, that he "did not demonstrate the skill and care required of an airline pilot."

He hasn't flown regularly since.

Marsh personally pulled 20 to 25 passengers through a hole in the left side of the fuselage after the crash two years ago. He was the last survivor to leave the wreckage.

"I just couldn't get her up," he said only hours after the crash. "Her power just drained out. But none of the instruments showed it. She just wouldn't go up."

Producer Of 'Kukla' On Airliner

CHICAGO — (AP) — Miss Beulah Zachary, television pioneer who produced the show "Kukla, Fran and Ollie," for 10 years, was bound for New York Tuesday night in a renewed effort to bring the show to live audiences.

She was listed Wednesday among the missing and presumed dead in the crash of an American Airlines plane.

Miss Zachary, who advanced from the role of studio hand to producer-director within three years after joining Station WBKB in Chicago in 1944, was personal manager and adviser to Burr Tillstrom, creater of the show.

Kukla and Ollie were a pair of puppet people. Their antics with Fran Allison delighted oldsters as well as the young before the show was dropped by the American Broadcasting Co. in 1957.

Tillstrom was the voice and life to Kukla, Ollie and several other "Kuklapolitans."

Ike's Plane Runs Into Storm

VALDOSTA, Ga. — (UPI) — A heavy rain and thunderstorm pummelled President Eisenhower's plane bringing the chief executive to a South Georgia vacation retreat Wednesday, forcing it to fly to an alternate field for a landing by instruments and radar. It landed safely at 4:18 p.m. at Valdosta.

A line squall from a Gulf of Mexico storm system raked the Valdosta-Moultrie area just as the presidential plane Columbine arrived for a scheduled landing at Spence Air Base, Moultrie, then flew on to Valdosta. The landing was delayed more than an hour because of the bad weather.

Safety Devices Lacking--65 Died

however, that it had reached no conclusion as to the cause of the crash.

"As of 6 p.m. tonight, the Civil Aeronautics Board Investigation of the American Airlines Electra accident near LaGuardia Field had revealed no facts indicating the cause of the crash," Edward E. Flattery, CAB information officer said.

Meanwhile, in Washington the House Commerce Committee announced it would look into the crash. Chairman Oren Harris (D., Ark.) called on the new Federal Aviation Agency to report on the accident at a closed committee session Friday.

The sleek four-engine liner smashed into the East River with a blast of noise that a tugboat captain said "sounded like dynamite." There was no flash of light nor any fire in the crash of the kerosene-fueled turbo-jet.

The tug H. Thomas Teti, towing two barges, was only a little more than 200 yards away. It cut loose the barges, opened full speed and rushed toward a fuselage and wing picked up in its spotlight.

The crew of eight lined the rail and pulled the living from the icy water with boathooks. Among them were Mrs. Lorraine Sullivan, 40, and her son, Robert, eight. The boy lived. Mrs. Sullivan died five hours later. The father, Joseph, and two daughters, Patricia, 13, and Joan, five, also perished. They were from Hempstead, N.Y.

Among the others killed was Beulah Zachary, Chicago TV producer of the Kukla, Fran and Ollie show.

Three of the five-member crew survived. Co-pilot Frank Hlavacek, 33, Wilmette, Ill., is in critical condition as is Joan Zeller, 21, Riverside, N. Y., a stewardess who began flying six months ago because "it is so thrilling." Warren E. Cook, 36, flight engineer from Aurora, Ill., is in poor condition.

Seymour Kemach, 36, a salesman from Brooklyn, pulled the Sullivan boy and the two stewardesses from the wreckage and suffered only a broken leg himself. Mae Markides, Rochester, N.Y., the other stewardess, died.

Also killed was Richard Winn of Norwalk, Conn., an American Airline executive appointed Feb. 1 to head the airline's jet research, development and planning.

Capt. Samuel Nickerson, 57, Rockland, Mass., captain of the tug Teti, said he didn't know at first what had happened when he heard the tremendous blast.

"We turned on our search light and the beam picked up wreckage floating in mud and water about 700 feet off our bow," he said.

Co-Capt. Everett Phelps, 48, Arlington, Vt., said the crew fished out the living with boathooks. They didn't bother with the dead, he said.

"Three people were perched on the fuselage," Phelps continued. "We hauled them aboard. As we did so, a hand poked through a door in the wreckage. The man inside called for help.

"Crewmen yanked on the door with hooks but couldn't get it open. Then the fuselage section pulled away from the hooks. The man's hand disappeared."

The Electra crashed in about 30 feet of water. The tip of the tail could be seen above it. The scene was about a mile from Riker's Island where a Northeast Airlines DC-6 crashed in a blizzard Feb. 1, 1957, killing 20 of the 101 persons aboard.

Sand Transfer Plant's at Work

Resort Is Waging War on Beach Erosion

By ED PFISTER
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH—Constantly buffeted by capricious seas and currents, peninsular Florida's hundreds of miles of ocean front have been stricken by a chronic case of "beach starvation."

In Palm Beach and Pompano Beach, where the symptoms are alike, the case has become acute.

Both blame the eroded beaches on jetties which extend into the ocean and block the normal flow of the sea and the sand it carries from north to south.

Both are trying to do something about it before another Atlantic howler comes along and washes out the beaches altogether.

Palm Beach has 14 miles of oceanfront beach which over the years have proved a magnet for thousands of winter visitors and tourists in this section of the Gold Coast.

But since the early 40s, Atlantic storms and the normal wear of the sea have reduced the resort's beaches to a mere sliver of sand.

They undermined and virtually destroyed scenic Ocean Blvd., forcing the state to relocate the coastal highway along the shore of the Inland Waterway.

Pompano's three mile stretch of ocean front beach is disappearing at the rate of about 13 feet a year. It won't take many years—or many more storms—to reduce it to nothing.

Since 1954, the beach has eroded an estimated 112 feet with the worst case of starvation at the foot of SE Fourth St.

The University of Florida Coastal engineering laboratories at Gainesville have undertaken a study of the beach erosion situation at Pompano Beach and a report about April 1 is expected to recommend artificial nourishment.

Palm Beach, whose sand starved beaches have been a problem for years, has already spent thousands of dollars in an artificial program of beach restoration.

The resort pumped sand from the bottom of Lake Worth on one side of the island to the oceanfront on the other.

The idea proved only temporarily successful. The waves and the currents gradually ate away the fill and the beaches back of it and the jetties jutting out to the north prevented new sand from coming in.

Now Palm Beach—joined by the county—is involved in a unique and costly experiment to restore the beaches through the use of a sand transfer plant that cost $513,000.

The plant, which the town financed and which the county has agreed to maintain, has been in operation since August. In that period of time it has transported 70,000 yards of sand from the north side of the jetties—where the storms pile it up—to the southern beaches which have been eaten away.

County Engineer Stephen Middleton said estimates are that the sand transfer plant will carry 125,000 yards across the port of Palm Beach channel in a year.

The sand transfer plant consists of a structure operating with pumps that push the sand through a pipe sunk on the floor of the channel.

Admittedly, there have been "bugs." In one instance, the pipe broke away from its anchorage on the channel floor. Generally, the operation has proved valuable.

But the sand transfer plant was not expected to restore the beaches without some other type of implementation, and already the Palm Beach Civic Association has deplored the high cost of operation.

The county, meantime, is proceeding with a $10 million beach restoration program which will not only aid Palm Beach but other towns up and down its 40 miles of coastline.

Currently a fiscal study is under way to determine a method of financing the plan. The proposal is before the U. S. Engineers, preliminary to congressional action which would involve federal participation in the cost.

County Engineer Middleton said every successful plan for beach restoration has been incorporated into the Palm Beach County proposal.

New Radio System Set For Patrol

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — The Sheriff's Department will put a new radio system into operation Saturday or early next week and by Feb. 15 expects to beef up its road patrol to 21 by adding 16 new men.

Chief Deputy John F. Kirk Jr. said Wednesday the new deputies are attending a two weeks FBI school in police work in Riviera Beach.

When the FBI course is completed, they will take an indoctrination course at the sheriff's office.

Seven new cars for the patrol are in the garage having new radio sets installed.

The augmented force, plus the new sheriff substations in Belle Glade and Delray will provide a countywide patrol, available 24 hours a day, that will be directed by the new radio system, Kirk said.

The old system is to be discarded because it failed to reach deep into the Everglades and to the south end of the county, under certain atmospheric conditions.

The tower for the new service is located in the area of Twenty Mile Bend.

15-Month Survey Team Reports

Committee on Delinquency Recommends Second Judge

By ED PFISTER
Herald Bureau Chief

WEST PALM BEACH — Appointment of a second county judge to provide more "judicial time" for Juvenile Court, was recommended Wednesday by a survey team of the Palm Beach County Parent Teachers Association.

The recommendation was one of nine prepared by the three-member committee after an intensive 15-months study of juvenile problems.

They were based on information obtained both in the study and from interviews with clergymen, doctors, enforcement agencies, PTA councils, the FBI, treasury agents and other groups and persons.

Throughout they recognized the responsibility of the parents, the community and the individual in the fight to prevent spread of delinquency.

In submitting its report, the committee told the county PTA Council at a Mounts Bldg. meeting that, "The overall picture of the juvenile delinquent in Palm Beach County is most heartening."

It said the survey showed "practically no use of narcotics in Palm Beach County and very few reports of known homosexuals among juveniles—the two most advertised forms of delinquency."

But the committee warned, "This report must not make us complacent. Palm Beach County is in good condition, but as long as one young person is classified as a delinquent, we cannot be satisfied."

In that connection, it went on to recommend not only the added judge who would assure more time could be devoted to juvenile problems, but also that:

THE COUNTY arrange for a properly facilitated and staffed detention home for maximum security and training of juvenile delinquents and to abolish the present system of having them incarcerated in county jail.

THE COUNTY consider adding more assistant juvenile counselors to the Juvenile Court to care for an increased work load stemming from population gains.

ADULT training classes be established to teach parents how to become better mothers and fathers.

ARRANGEMENTS be made to attach psychologists to the Juvenile Court to make available more adequate assistance for case study of emotionally disturbed juvenile delinquents.

ENCOURAGEMENT be given by county and local municipalities to sponsored and chaperoned youth events, such as athletic programs, teenage dances and hobby clubs.

CONTINUOUS and improved vigilance be exerted by civic groups regarding literature sold in neighborhood stores, particularly those children patronize.

The report was drafted by a committee, consisting of Herman W. Kip, chairman; Mrs. Adger L. Wright and Rev. Russel Toms, which was approved and authorized to start its inquiry Oct. 15, 1957 by the PTA County Council.

Parking Facility Sites Proposed

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Seven sites were proposed Wednesday night for a one-million-dollar off-street parking facility with strong support thrown to a plan which would raze almost a block of "downtown slum."

The newly-formed Parking Committee also heard Claude Wolf, chairman of the Orlando Parking Commission, outline Orlando's successful program.

City Commissioner L. W. Kelloway proposed a parking facility site on First St. between Dixie and Olive. Investigation revealed only one of the seven property owners involved were willing to sell, however.

Kelloway advocated condemning the property "immediately." "It's a downtown firetrap and a slum," he stormed.

Carl Anthony and Joe Shaw, committee members, agreed that the First St. site was the most suitable. The site would also allow the city to widen First St.

Other sites mentioned included parcels on Narcisus and Datura.

Mayor, 2 Councilmen Take Office at PB

PALM BEACH — Mayor Claude D. Reese and Town Councilmen John U. Cushman and Edgar H. Latham Jr. were sworn into iffice Wednesday following their unopposed reelection in Tuesday's general election.

The swearing in followed a canvass of the votes, which showed Reese polled 132, Cushman 128 and Latham 126 out of a total of 135 votes cast.

The council took under consideration a request from the Florida Public Utilities Co. for a new 30-year franchise covering natural gas. The present franchise, providing for distribution of manufactured gas, runs out in 1965.

FPU Attorney George W. Coleman said a new franchise now would help the company with the long-term financing necessary to bring in natural gas.

Coleman predicted that the new fuel would be available here by June.

A new franchise ordinance would require the vote of the electors in an election that would have to be held sometime before April 1.

School Board Hears Eye Test Complaint

Ed Page Guilty of Perjury

Tried on Lying In Bookie Case

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Eddie Page, 35, Boca Raton, who "beat the rap" here last August on a "bookie" charge, was convicted Wednesday on a charge of perjury which developed from the earlier case.

The six man Criminal Court jury which required about an hour to find Page guilty on the perjury count, recommended mercy.

The two cases in which Page was involved had an ironic twist.

In the bookie case, which he won, he could have received a maximum penalty of six years imprisonment. The county solicitor's office said the maximum provided for perjury, the charge on which Page was convicted, is 20 years in prison.

Judge E. G. Newell deferred sentence, continued Page's bond at $5,000 and gave Defense Attorney Edward Starr 10 days in which to file a motion for a new trial.

The first case here ended in a mistrial when a juror declined to serve on Saturday because of his religious convictions. Page was found not guilty by a six man jury when the retrial was held.

He was equally fortunate when he went to trial on similar charges in Broward County. The case ended with a hung jury and was later tossed out of court.

But in the Palm Beach County case, Solicitor Charles A. Nugent charged Page lied when the testified in the bookie trial that he had not been involved in bookmaking either in Palm Beach or Broward Counties. He filed an information charging perjury.

Page went on trial Tuesday morning and testimony was completed before the trial was recessed. Judge Newell gave the case to the jury at noon Wednesday.

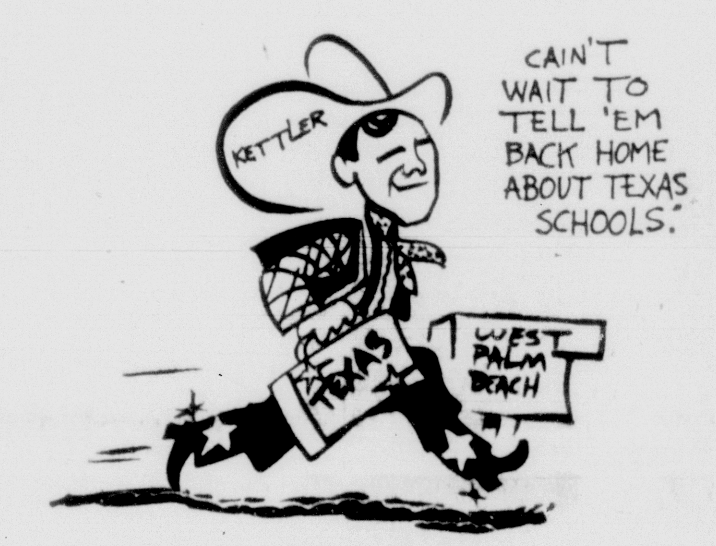
WEST PALM BEACH — Four-year-old Debrah Williams was in cheerful spirits Wednesday, cheerful even though hours before she lost an eye.

Doctors at Good Samaritan Hospital battled for nine days to save the eye injured by a 'missile' from a peashooter. The accident occurred near the Williams trailer home at 5604 Carver St. in Lake Worth while the girl, blonde and blue-eyed, was playing outside.



CAN'T WAIT TO TELL 'EM BACK HOME ABOUT TEXAS SCHOOLS.
KETTLER
TEXAS
WEST PALM BEACH

Anti-Fan Man Sees Cool School

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Ralph Kettler was buffaloed by Texas.

Kettler, chairman of the Palm Beach County School Board, journeyed deep into the heart of Texas and learned that in the Lone Star State the schools are air conditioned.

It was no tall Texas tale, either.

Last week the School Board feuded about fans in public school classrooms. Kettler claimed teachers could not learn how to use them and therefore the fans were a waste of money.

The feud got Kettler a free trip to Texas, courtesy of an air conditioning firm — which wanted to show off its installation in San Angelo.

The trip left Kettler agog. He even went so far as to suggest the Palm Beach County system air condition one of its smaller schools as an experiment. This, mind you, from the man who didn't want fans.

"No kidding," Kettler said as his fellow board members smiled and shook their heads. "We can find out the cost and upkeep by experiment."

Kettler also raved about the 3½ million dollar high school in San Angelo which had wall-to-wall carpeting in the library, busboys in the student cafeteria and rich colorful drapes in all the classrooms.

"It was so elaborate it was out of this world," beamed Kettler.

The San Angelo school in question cost $2,200 per pupil to construct compared to a going local rate of $900 per pupil for a high school in Palm Beach County.

Kelloway Asks Support Of Tri-County League

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Urging support for the new Tri-County League, City Commissioner L. W. Kelloway Tuesday blasted a "20-senator" block which he contends controls state government.

"The pork chop gang is a vicious thing to fight," Kelloway said.

Kelloway is a director of the new league, which embraces Palm Beach, Broward and Dade Counties.

The league will lobby at the April Legislature to get more funds allocated for public improvements in Southern Florida.

Kelloway said Palm Beach County pours 18 million dollars into the state treasury and gets only 10 million back.

Of the 10 million dollars, the commissioner asserted, there is a 37 per cent charge back.

"That means about $3,750,000 goes right back up there for administration and clerical work," Kelloway fumed.

"It's bureaucratic government," the commissioner charged.

Kelloway also claimed that the Florida League of Municipalities and the county governmental group are dominated by the 20-senator block.

He called the Tri-County League a "step in the right direction."

UNESCO Contest Vetoed

By ROSE ALLEGATO
Herald Staff Writer

WEST PALM BEACH — The Palm Beach County School Board Wednesday found itself caught in the middle of two controversies. They came from these sources:

The Palm Beach Medical Society, which attacked a vision testing program carried on in public schools by optometrists.

The county chapter of the American Association for the United Nations, which pressed for School Board approval of a contest in secondary schools.

The board postponed action on the Medical Society letter and resolution which complained that the vision testing program now in use was not "medically approved."

The society maintained that in the past the vision screening program was conducted under the supervision of the County Health Department with the approval of the Medical Society.

It urged that this type of program be re-established. The optometrist group has been conducting the vision testing among school children and even has supplemented its program with a mobile unit.

The school board indicated there would be conferences next week on the issue.

The UN contest proposal revived the controversy dating back to last summer when PTA groups in the county split sharply over UNESCO. The school board established a policy forbidding teachings about UNESCO in the wake of that feud.

The League of Women Voters, the Palm Beach County PTA Council, and the local chapter of the American for the United Nations, through representatives, Wednesday asked the School Board to endorse the UN contest.

It would consist of a short quiz and two essay questions on the UN. Savings bonds would be awarded as local prizes.

Mrs. R. W. Glasner, local contest chairman, said teachers, students, and parents were interested in the competition but had been told the School Board refused to grant permission.

After attempting to postpone the issue for a week, the board finally vetoed the contest on the grounds it did not want to involve the schools in a controversial issue.

Over 40 Florida schools have already enrolled in the contest. The local group first applied for Palm Beach County permission in October.

Member Jack Horner said the UNESCO issue had "practically wrecked" the PTA and contended the contest would fan the controversay.

Nightlife with George Bourke

Benny's Nightclub Invasion Frolics to a Sweeping Victory

TWICE NIGHTLY — at something around 9:30 and later near oneish in a repeat for the late coast — Ben Novack's enlarged La Ronde Room of the Fontainebleau Hotel is converted these evenings into a 500-inch television screen on which is shown, live, in color and in 3-D a sort of commercial-free, pay - as - you-guzzle version of a talent which has enjoyed high Hooper, Trendex or what-have-you ratings on the airwaves for what seems to have been 39 years.

That "39" should be a clue. The talent is that of Jack Benny, who is essaying his first excursion into cafe show business, excepting a pair of previous dates in Las Vegas, in modern times and a "concert" at the old Floridian here in the 20's for Mert Wertheimer.

Yup, the Jack Benny you get at the Fontainebleau is the same past-master of the off-hand delivery, the identical perfectionist of the long-suffering petulant pose, a happy carbon of the professional protestant of the state of perpetual middle-age, and a soft-key echo of the familiar character who is uncertainly unsure of himself and covers it with self-effacing boastfulness.

* * *

Gisele MacKenzie a Charmer

THESE MATTERS are not the usual fare for cafes.

The habitual pub-crawler might complain that Mr. Benny doesn't have "an act," even with some business with Gisele MacKenzie, who sings, looks and plays the violin with memorable charm, and with Chiquita and Johnson, a pair of exciting dancers. That well might be—by night club standards—but if Mr. Benny doesn't have "an act" then somebody had a charm ray gun concealed somewhere in the wings and was wafting waves of winning stuff audience-wise at the show we caught.

Mr. Benny doesn't overwhelm or shock you in the manner that the Ritz Brothers or Louis Prima and Keely Smith might but when you look at your watch and find he has been on stage something like 40 minutes and it didn't seem like 10 you know you have been watching a personality with class and show savvy at work.

He relies almost completely on techniques and routines already proven audience-proof. He chatters topically and about show business. He fiddles in solo and in duet with Miss MacKenzie and allows an intrusion of the dance team to bring his famous expression of resigned tolerance to his face. And, in his only departure into un-television lines, he makes a mildly daring comparison of the bags under Phil Harris' eyes to the anatomy of a female.

In her solo spot Miss MacKenzie is as clean and refreshing as one of her native Canadian summer breezes. In gimmick-free voice she enchants with a repertory which ranges from a French folk song to a medley of Broadway hit tunes of the Rodgers and Hammerstein variety. You won't learn any new dirty or boorish jokes from Benny and MacKenzie but you won't be bored either.

'Viva Cuba' Rushed to Theaters

WARNER BROTHERS is rushing prints of Carl Dudley's "Viva, Cuba!" out to the theaters to take advantage of the headlines . . . Did you know that the National Suit and Coat Recovery Board is meeting at the EmPRESS Hotel? Wonder if their theme song is "Look for the Silver Lining."

Jack Benny
. . . victor

Bennett Cerf
. . . quake?

Jerry Brooks
. . . home

Add intriguing names: Dawn Greenhalgg, a member of the Canadian Players who will present "As You Like It" at Barry College Auditorium on Feb. 21. Actually she's Mrs. Ted Follows, wife of the troupe's co-star . . . Jimmy Grippo, hypnotist and card manipulator, mesmerizing a steak at Charcoal Hut in Surfside . . . Now there's swank King Arthur's Court in Miami Springs Villas, and there's King Arthur Drive-In on Coral Way. They are not related.

A Los Angeles periodical states: "The foul Florida weather has already put 'Operation Petticoat' behind schedule." Ouch, fellers, my sunburn hurts when we laugh! . . . Wonder if Bennett Cerf has a copy of Milton Berle's new book, "Earthquake" with him at the Fontainebleau? That was the Walter "Lake Tarleton" Jacobs first-nighting with Gabriel Heatter at the Jack Benny opening . . . Jerry Brooks of Luau and the Havana Capri Casino, will be home from Heart Institute today . . .

Marjory Douglas Poem Recited

A lyric poem by Coconut Grove's Marjory Stoneman Douglas "Martin Tabert of North Dakota," was performed in Elmo Russ's setting in a New Art's League concert in New York City last week.

The occasion was a recital of songs by Russ, baritone-pianist, in Steinway Hall.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — (UPI) — A recent visitor to the secretaries at Paramount was Carroll Baker, who has learned to take shorthand and to type for her role in "But Not for Me."
